Minor damage due to summer storm

A summer storm hit the Northwest suburbs last night, causing minor damage. In Elk Grove Village, firefighters responded to a report of lightning striking a home at 1148 Glenn Tr. Minor damage was reported. Des Plaines firefighters reported a small power line was downed at 609 Jon Ln., and Schaumburg police said an electrical outage was reported at Fairlane Drive in the southern part of the village. In Mount Prospect, telephone service in the 1500 block of Mitchell Drive was interrupted when lightning apparently struck a utility pole. Northwest Highway in Arlington Heights between Euclid and Dryden avenues at the Davis St. underpass was flooded. Mount Prospect firemen said a transformer failed and power lines were down near Algonquin and Busse roads. Some power was out in the area but there was no fire and no injuries were reported, firemen said.

Arlington Heights police reported lightning apparently hit an antenna and put their computer out of commission.

Bison in Buffalo Grove?

John Banghart came to Buffalo Grove Thursday night to try and put the bison in Buffalo Grove's Bicentennial. And it can be done, the 36-year-old farmer and buffalo breeder from Marengo, Ill., told a meeting of the village's plan commission. For $4,500, Banghart said he will sell the village three buffalo. The Commission is considering the purchase as a Bicentennial project.

Controlers hit airport security

Air traffic controllers at Palwaukee Airport have joined the criticism of the airport's lack of security, which allows pedestrian and vehicle traffic in aircraft movement areas. Records kept by air traffic controllers at Palwaukee show 551 incidents in which cars and pedestrians strayed onto runways or taxiways from April through July. Robert Mark, president of Local 363, Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization, said Thursday, "It's only a matter of time before we have an accident. We have been promised action, but we are still waiting..." PATCO's criticism of safety measures at the airport came in response to a report issued last month by the Aviation Safety Institute (ASI), which cited the same security problems.

Thompson to make daily disclosure of donations

Former U. S. Atty. James R. Thompson Thursday said he will make daily disclosures of contributions to his gubernatorial campaign and revealed that his biggest backer so far is hamburger tycoon Ray A. Kroc.

Kroc, founder of the McDonald's restaurant empire, gave $10,000 of the $35,914 collected so far from 138 contributors to Thompson's campaign for the Republican nomination for governor.

Thompson said he will make the amount of each contribution and the name and address of each contributor available on a day-to-day basis throughout his campaign.

THOMPSON SAID the contributions will be listed daily in a ledger in the offices of Citizens for Jim Thompson, 110 S. Dearborn, Chicago. The ledger will be available for inspection upon request by any citizen and by the news media, Thompson said.

"There will be no questions about who owns Jim Thompson. Nobody does," Thompson said.

Announcing his plan to make contributions public, Thompson praised citizens who have made the $5 and $20 contributions to his campaign. "In tight economic times such as we have now they represent a financial sacrifice on the part of many citizens," he said.

Thompson said his plan to disclose contributions daily is unique in Illinois history.

Contributions to his campaign won't bring political favors, he pledged. "There are no deals and no promises. There have been and will be no promises of jobs, no promises of legislation, no promises of any kind in return for a campaign contribution."

He said campaign financing is "an integral part of our political process."

Israeli protest greets Kissinger

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger arrived in Israel Thursday amid unprecedented peacetime security precautions to launch his 10th Middle East shuttle diplomacy mission. A senior official in his party said progress has been made on all fronts toward an interim Israeli-Egyptian peace pact.

Kissinger's arrival was marred by protest demonstrations by hundreds of rightwingers who fear Israel's security will be jeopardized by withdrawals from occupied Arab territory. There was also a reported threat against his life.

Police said they arrested three persons, one of them a former American, on suspicion of conspiring to harm Kissinger. Police sources identified the former American as Joel Lerner, a member of the Jewish Defense League who was arrested more than two years ago in a case of arson involving a fire in a shop selling Christian missionary books.

The sources said Lerner had expressed threats to assassinate Kissinger, but police would say only the three were being held on suspicion of plotting an act of violence against the American diplomat. They refused to identify the three who are being detained for 48 hours without charges being filed.

On his arrival at Ben Gurion airport, which had been virtually sealed off from the public, Kissinger told reporters that the failure of his previous on-the-spot mediation in March left him "feeling that still another horrible tragedy was still in store for the people of Israel and the Middle East."

"I return today with the same concern but with renewed hope that a strong desire for peace will take precedence over tendencies towards war," he said.

The official said during the flight from Washington that chances are good Kissinger will arrange a new interim accord between Cairo and Jerusalem in about 10 days.

If the mission fails, the drift toward a new Middle East war will speed up greatly, the official said.

From Ben-Gurion Airport, Kissinger and his party flew in army helicopters to Jerusalem to avoid planned protest demonstrations.

In Cairo, it was announced U.S. companies will build two new early warning monitoring centers in Sinai for Egypt and man them and Israel's already-functioning post on the Gidi pass with American civilians. Political sources said both Egypt and Israel would provide technical assistants at the monitoring posts.

They said the Soviet Union, co-chairman with the United States at the Geneva Middle East peace conference, had been consulted on the plan.

Kissinger said Egypt had decided to allow Israel to retain control of its Gidi spy center at Umm Khasiba.

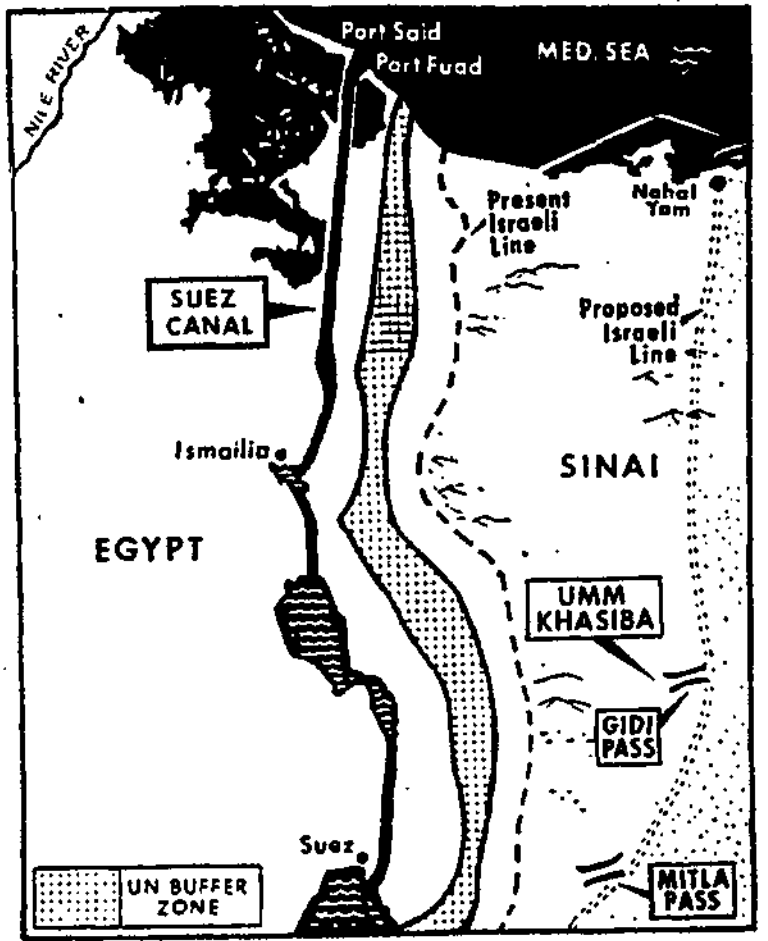

Sources said the American companies would construct two more for Egypt inside the buffer zone.

"The men would be sent by the companies which built the Gidi station and will build centers for Egypt and work under the U.N. flag," the sources said. They noted that by manning the posts with nongovernmental technical employees the need for U.S. Congressional approval of the plan might be avoided.

The sources said "less than 100" American civilians would be involved and that Egyptians and Israelis would be allowed access to the buffer zone to assist them in their respective stations.

ISRAEL SAID through its newspapers Thursday that Egypt has agreed to let them control the prime early warning spy post in the Gidi pass at Umm Khasiba in the Sinai Desert.

cent in July. Spendable income is what is left of a payroll check after deductions for taxes and Social Security.

• The 18-month recession ended sometime in the spring with a 1.6 per cent increase in the Gross National Product during the second quarter. This surge in the nation's total output of goods and services was the first in 18 months.

• A recovery is under way and should produce more employment. Orders for durable goods rose 5.3 per cent in July to an adjusted $41.4 billion the Commerce Dept. said. It was the fourth monthly increase in a row and the sharpest since April.

• Corporations are making more money. Commerce said profits in April, May and June were up 8.2 per cent from the first three months of the year but still were 20 per cent below a year ago. The second quarter increase to a seasonally adjusted $87.4 billion was the first rise since last fall.

LOOKING TO the future, Agriculture Sec. Earl Butz predicts 1975 retail food prices will average about 9 per cent above last year. He insisted Soviet grain sales will have little impact.

Food price rise for '75 predicted as 9 per cent

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The agriculture Department said Thursday consumers will pay about 9 per cent more for food in 1975 than they did last year. But they insisted that grain sales to Russia will have little immediate impact on retail food prices.

Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz told a news conference most of this year's price rise has already taken place and average retail prices may increase only about another 1.5 per cent between now and the end of the year.

Department experts earlier predicted consumer grocery bills would go up 6 to 8 per cent this year. The forecast of a 9 per cent hike was still well below the 14.5 per cent food inflation in the past two years.

"The message I get out of this is, let's don't panic," Butz said. He said consumers would have ample food supplies at "reasonable" prices.

Cost of living spurts upward

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The cost of living spurted upward in July at the fastest rate this year, the Labor Department reported Thursday, suggesting inflation may be ready to boil over once again.

But government economists cautioned that special factors were at work last month and that consumer prices would probably increase at modest rate for the rest of 1975.

For July, the Consumer Price Index jumped 1.2 per cent, seasonally adjusted. Higher prices for meat, poultry, fresh fruits and vegetables, gasoline and used cars were responsible for about three-fourths of the increase.

Since July 1974, the CPI has risen nearly 10 per cent and now stands at 162.3 compared to 100 in 1967. This means retail goods and services has risen during that time from $10 to $16.23.

The department released its forecast shortly after the Labor Department reported retail food prices went up 1.7 per cent in July, the biggest boost in 11 months.

Economist J. Dawson Ahalt told the news conference that grain sales to Russia — which have already reached 10 million tons and are expected to go higher — "will not seriously affect retail food prices."

Ahalt said the impact of the Soviet sales was included in the 9 per cent estimated increase. Overall, he said, the Soviet sales are likely to raise average U.S. food prices 1.5 per cent if sales remain at current levels, or slightly more if more grain is sold.

A very minor portion of the 1.5 per cent price effect is being felt this year, he said. Most of it will be reflected in 1976 as the increase in grain prices works through into retail prices of meat and other livestock products.

U.S. lifts 2 Cuba trade sanctions

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States eliminated Thursday some of the 13-year-old trade sanctions against Cuba which mean a hardship to third countries, but it gave no indication of an imminent end to the full embargo on direct U.S. - Cuban commerce.

It lifted two restrictions:

—Foreign subsidiaries of U.S. manufacturers will now be permitted to sell to Cuba, but the ban on exports from the parent companies within the United States will continue.

—The prohibition on refueling in U.S. ports for merchant ships of any nation which have stopped in Cuba was dropped, but U.S. ships still are forbidden to sail there.

Spokesman Robert Funseth also said the department will ask Congress to once again permit sale of surplus American agricultural products to third countries for local currencies. Those so-called Point Four sales have been prohibited to countries dealing with Cuba.

The new measures do not alter the major barriers in the way of restoring diplomatic relations. Direct trade between the United States and Cuba continues to be banned and Cuban government funds blocked here remain frozen.

Although department officials insist the actions are aimed solely at "modifying aspects of our Cuban denial policy which affect other countries," they acknowledge privately they expect the limited move will improve the atmosphere for eventual talks between Washington and Havana on issues blocking the restoration of relations.

The Organization of American States, with support from the United States, recently voted to remove its LISBON (UPI) — Moderates in the ruling Armed Forces Movement began canvassing military units around Portugal Thursday for the formation of a new government excluding Communists.

Military sources said the chief aim of the moderates was the ouster of Prime Minister Vasco Gonçalves who has become dependent on the Communist party for his power base.

They said army chief of staff, Gen. Carlos Spínola, was the man to replace Gonçalves but several key commands still needed to be convinced he

GNP up; report recession recovery now under way

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Gross National Product rose 1.6 per cent in the second quarter to end the nation's worst recession since World War II, the Commerce Department reported Thursday.

"Looking not just at GNP data, but all recent data, it is apparent that the bottom of the recession was reached in April or May," Assistant Commerce Secretary James L. Pate said.

"It's very difficult to say precisely when the recession ended, but certainly by June and July we have seen an abundance of evidence to suggest that recovery is under way."

Economists define a recession as two consecutive quarters of decline in GNP. A recession ends when growth resumes.

Last month's preliminary data on second quarter GNP showed a 0.3 per cent decline from the first quarter. But more complete information in Thursday's report reversed the decline into the sharpest real growth since 1971.

The improvement was attributed to a stronger international trade surplus.

When the GNP is falling, U.S. industry is reducing its output and laying off workers. The GNP turnaround reflected in Thursday's report helps to explain why unemployment began improving in June.

Portugal moderates seek leaders could hold the competing political forces in the country together.

The first man to be approached was Brig. Franco Charals, a moderate officer who commands the central military region. Fabiao went to Coimbra for talks with him Thursday. He was accompanied by military security chief, Gen. Otelo Saraiva de Carvalho.

Socialist party leaders, who demanded Gonçalves' ouster as their price for returning to the government, held an emergency meeting to discuss ban on members' relations with Cuba. In Vall, Colo., presidential press secretary Ron Nessen told reporters the President made the decision but said it "doesn't really relate to bilateral relations with Cubans."

Since the OAS voted to allow member nations to decide how they individually want to deal with Cuba, he said, "It would be inconsistent for the United States to penalize other countries for carrying out the resolution."

He repeated administration policy that the United States sees "no advantage — to a permanent antagonism," but said "any change in our bilateral relationship with Cuba will depend on Cuba's attitude . . . It is not possible to predict whether or when it will be possible to begin to work on these issues."

Young's decision may narrow field

12 may be scrambling for GOP nod in the 10th

by BOB LAHEY

The Republican scramble for the party nomination to Congress in the 10th District could rival the free-for-all race in the former 13th District which followed Donald Rumsfeld's resignation in 1969.

The present 10th District, where Democrat Abner J. Mikva unseated one-term Republican Samuel Young in 1974, contains a large portion of the former 13th.

When Rumsfeld quit the congressional post to join the Nixon administration, 13 Republican hopefuls jumped into the contest to take over what was then considered a solidly GOP position. By ballot time, eight remained in the running.

WITH MORE THAN four months remaining for candidates to formally announce their intentions at least a dozen Republicans are known, believed, or rumored to be preparing a run against Mikva.

They include:

- Young, narrow winner over Mikva in 1972, and even narrower loser in 1974, the former congressman is expected to announce his reelection bid at a press conference Monday morning.
- Wayne Andersen, 1974 GOP candidate for Cook County treasurer. He is a young (30) member in the law firm of George Burditt, 1974 Republican candidate against Sen. Adlai Stevenson.
- State Rep. Brian Duff of Wilmette. A member of the Republican leadership in the Illinois House and sometimes aspirant to the office of state treasurer, Duff will need to decide which path he wishes to follow.
- State Sen. Bradley M. Glass of Northfield. Glass is thought to be close to Young and his consideration of a race for Congress could be ended if Young decides to try to regain his seat.
- David R. Macdonald, assistant U.S. Treasury secretary, of Winnetka. Macdonald is known as an associate of Rumsfeld and could overcome lack of name recognition with the help of the top White House counselor.
- State Sen. John Nimrod of Skokie. Nimrod appears secure in his Senate district and is quickly gaining prominence in Springfield, which might discourage him from the risk.
- State Rep. John Edward Porter of Evanston. Porter calls the odds that he will run "slim," but says he will not let the Republican nomination be awarded "by default."
- Thomas Roeser of Park Ridge, a lobbyist for Quaker Oats and chairman of an independent voters' organization, L.E.A.P. (Legal Elections in All Precincts). While friends have promoted Roeser's candidacy, he reports that in light of his association with L.E.A.P. and Common Cause the silence of conservative Republicans in the 10th District "is deafening."

- Harvey Schwartz, corporation counsel of Skokie.
- Joe Mathewson former TV newsman and now an aide to Atty. Gen. William J. Scott. Mathewson was one of the candidates in the 1969 Republican primary.

In addition to all those, some of the potential candidates harbor the suspicion that Richard H. Cooper, declared candidate for governor might yet return to the congressional race.

Cooper originally announced his candidacy for Congress in the 10th, but then declared he is running against former U.S. Atty. James Thompson for the gubernatorial nomination.

Some skeptics speculate that multi-millionaire Cooper, former president of Weight Watchers, Inc., who has said he is prepared to spend $500,000 of his own money on a campaign, might do that in publicizing his name — then return to the congressional campaign, in which the recent federal law on campaign procedures would prevent that kind of spending.

IF YOUNG announces, as expected, that he will try to regain his seat in Congress, several of these potential candidates probably will be deterred from running.

But with or without Young, a primary contest appears a certainty.

In the former 13th District, with Rumsfeld as the incumbent, the North Shore territory which makes up the lions share of the district, was considered impregnable to the Democrats.

Since redistricting, however, it has become one of the true "swing" districts in the nation, as demonstrated by the 1972 and 1974 contests between Young and Mikva.

In the Republican landslide year of 1972, Young won by only 7,000 votes, out of nearly 237,000. In the Democratic sweep of 1974, Mikva won by only 3,000.

MIKVA, AN experienced campaigner who served two terms in Congress before losing his Chicago district in the redistricting of 1971, has acted effectively to consolidate his strength. As one prospective GOP candidate put it, "If Abner Mikva is ever going to be beat in that district, this is the year to do it."

A number of Republicans consider Young to have first call on the GOP nomination. But others resent the fact that he once held the seat and was unable to protect it against the liberal Mikva.

Such resentment might hamper Young in raising the money which will be needed for what most Republicans concede will be an uphill fight against incumbent Mikva.

But the fact that Young once defeated Mikva, and the familiarity he gained among voters during his two years in Congress, add up to a head-start for Young in a free-for-all primary.

Half state teacher pacts unsettled

by JUDY JOBBITT

More than 380 of the 800 teachers' groups affiliated with the Illinois Education Assn., a statewide teachers' union, are still negotiating contracts for this fall compared to 225 at this time last year.

Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 and East Maine Dist. 63 are the only two Northwest suburban districts among 70 throughout Illinois listed in a "critical" state by the IEA.

Although Dist. 59 and 63 have been called "critical," both unions still are negotiating with their school boards.

Dist. 59's major issues include salary increases and a layoff clause. Toni Dane, chief negotiator, said the teachers want the contract to include a policy for laying off tenured teachers because of the declining enrollment and possibility of staff reductions. The board also has offered the teachers a 2 per cent cost-of-living increase which the teachers have not decided to accept yet, said Mrs. Kane.

Luke Allen, of the East Maine Education Assn., said "we haven't settled yet, and it is unlikely we will settle before school starts."

He said major items include salary increases and adding seniority rights for staff reductions. Teachers also want the contract to include a policy giving seniority rights to teachers forced to change schools because of declining enrollment, said James Chlakulas, IEA representative.

Other district negotiations are progressing as follows:

- Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 18 resolved a July breakdown that resulted from the board's refusal to negotiate anything but salary increases in the year-old contract. The board has agreed to negotiate other items.
- Teachers apparently have agreed to retain a "no-strike" clause. Neither side expects negotiations to be completed by the first day of school, Aug. 29, with the next meeting scheduled Aug. 29.
- Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 is planning a marathon negotiations session Monday to try to settle the contract before school starts Aug. 29. The teachers will meet Wednesday to decide what to do if no agreement is reached, said Hugh Brady, teacher union negotiator, with a strike as "one of our options."
- An impasse was declared in Prospect Heights Dist. 23 contract talks July 17 and both sides entered impasse procedure meetings last week. They met Thursday to decide whether to bring in a mediator or continue negotiating together but at press time their decision had not been reached. The district is entering the second year of a two-year contract and only salary items are being negotiated.
- Arlington Heights Dist. 25 has reached a tentative contract agreement with its teachers' union which will be finalized by a vote this fall. The new contract calls for a 6 to 8 per cent over-all salary increase.
- River Trails Dist. 26 teachers and board members agreed on most contract items before adjourning for the summer. Salary increases have not been settled with the teachers rejecting the board's proposal of a 6.5 per cent overall increase. Nancy Miller, a teacher negotiator, said one reason they rejected the proposal was because the teachers wanted to see if the district would receive more state funding over the summer. Negotiations will resume Sept. 3.
- Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 teachers are entering the third year of a three-year contract and have reopened the contract only for salary changes. The last meeting was held in May and another meeting has not been scheduled.

- Mount Prospect Dist. 57 has not held negotiation sessions since July with the next session to be held the first week of school; said Robert Novy, board member. He said money is the main issue this year.
- Des Plaines Dist. 62 is not expected to complete negotiations by the first day of school but both sides are still talking, said Chlakulas. He said working conditions, a staff reduction clause and salaries are the major items to be discussed. The next meeting will be on Tuesday.
- Long Grove-Buffalo Grove Dist. 58 teachers agreed to a 6.4 per cent increase in base salary last March, raising it to $9,200.
- High School Dist. 125 teachers agreed to a 1.6 per cent increase in base salary, raising it to $9,400 because of a $200,000 deficit projected in the education fund this year.
- Maine Township High School Dist. 207 expects teachers to return to work although contract negotiations probably will not be completed. The next session is scheduled for Tuesday.
- High School Dist. 211 teachers declared an impasse in June and are now in mediation. Their last meeting with the board and mediator was June 13 and the next meeting has not been scheduled. Teachers have asked for a 5.7 per cent raise in base salary increasing it from $9,650 to $10,200 this year. The board has offered teachers a two-year contract which would raise the base to $10,200 in the second year.
- High School Dist. 214 is in the third year of a three-year contract. There are no contract negotiations this year.

Township weighs police tax unit

Wheeling Township officials will consider establishing a special police protection taxing district for unincorporated areas, including Prospect Heights, at a special meeting Sept. 2.

Residents of the Prospect Heights area, through the Prospect Heights Improvement Assn. (PHIA), have requested formation of the special district because of increased vandalism, malicious mischief and burglaries.

The PHIA has said Sheriff's Police patrols in the area are "inadequate," and police officials have responded they lack sufficient funds to assign more than two squad cars to the area. Richard Wolf, PHIA president, said it will cost an estimated $122,000 annually to hire two off-duty Sheriff's policemen to patrol the area on a 24-hour daily basis. Wolf said the annual cost to homeowners in the special tax district would be about $24 per $10,000 assessed valuation.

A SURVEY, requesting unincorporated area residents' opinions about a special taxing district to pay for added police protection, was published recently in local newspapers and the Prospect Heights Town Bulletin.

"We have received more than 200 replies to our special survey so far, with the returns running three to one in favor of the special taxing district," Wolf said.

Township Auditor William Reid said the special 7:30 p.m. Sept. 2 meeting will be before the regularly scheduled township board meeting.

"We have a Sept. 9 deadline for filing our budget ordinance," he said.

Reid stressed the special taxing district, if created, would apply to all unincorporated areas in the township, not just Prospect Heights. "The opinion of our attorney is it would have to be all of the unincorporated area," Reid said.

"ALL CITIZENS of the township will have an opportunity to present information at the special meeting," Reid said. He added the most the township could levy would be $100 per $10,000 assessed valuation.

Reid said about 13,000 residents of the total estimated 21,000 unincorporated township residents live in the area designated as Prospect Heights.

The special meeting will be at the township hall, 1818 E. Northwest Hwy., Arlington Heights.

LE TITI DE PARIS. Busboy George Fernandez examines the damage to the popular French restaurant, 2275 Rand Rd., Palatine Township. The main dining room and service bar were gutted by fire early Thursday, believed to be caused by arsonists.

Le Titi De Paris burns with arson suspected

by STIRLING MORITA

Le Titi De Paris in Palatine Township, the second fashionable, French restaurant in the area gutted by fire in a month, was the apparent victim of arson early Thursday, fire officials said.

State fire marshals were called in to join the Long Grove Fire Protection District and Sheriff's police in an arson probe after a five-gallon gasoline can was found in front of the burning building, 2275 Rand Rd.

Another popular French restaurant, Le Francais, Wheeling, was destroyed July 18 after an electrical short circuit touched off a fire.

Long Grove fire officials said damage to Le Titi De Paris was estimated to be about $100,000. The fire was discovered about 4 a.m. by Sheriff's police, responding to an activated burglar alarm at the restaurant.

MEL TOWNER, chief engineer for the fire district, said when police arrived at the scene, the front of the one-story building was engulfed in flames. Long Grove fire units were dispatched, and firefighters could see the fire from their station, Towner said.

Towner said someone broke the window to the front dining area and apparently tossed gasoline into the building and set fire to it. Three Long Grove units were dispatched, and the fire was quickly extinguished. A Palatine unit assisted, and a Buffalo Grove fire crew stood by at the Long Grove station.

Paul Christian, Palatine, the restaurant owner, said he did not know who would want to set fire to his restaurant and that he had not received any threats.

Christian had established a high-quality reputation for his restaurant, which opened about three years ago.

As he swept wet debris from the kitchen area, Christian said he would rebuild the structure and continue to serve French cuisine.

Interviews set for Bears impact study

The Arlington Heights Environmental Control Commission will interview firms that may be retained for an environmental impact study of the proposed Chicago Bears football stadium at Arlington Park Race Track. The interviews will be Wednesday and Sept. 3.

The commission will recommend a consulting firm to the village board. If an independent consultant is hired, Madison Square Garden Corp., owner of the race track, will be asked to pay for the study.

Jean Hanlon, ECC chairman, Thursday said the scope of the ecological study still is being defined. Generally, the consultants will examine traffic, air pollution, noise, solid waste disposal and other problems associated with the stadium plan.

Mrs. Hanlon said she expects the ECC to make its recommendation on which of several firms should be hired Sept. 4. The next village board meeting, when the recommendation will be considered, is Sept. 8.

The ECC criticized an environmental report on the 76,000-seat stadium commissioned by Madison Square Garden. Mrs. Hanlon said the report was vague and lacking in detail.

Because of the alleged deficiencies in the report, Mrs. Hanlon said the ECC could not make a recommendation to approve or reject the stadium proposal.

The report prepared for Madison Square Garden concluded the stadium would not have any serious adverse effects on the local environment.

Report on future water needs coming in 30 days

A comprehensive report on Arlington Heights' future water needs being prepared by village administrators should be completed in 30 days, said Assistant Village Mgr. Frank Charlton.

"Because we're the largest town (in the Northwest suburbs) we're trying to include some definite recommendations for future action," he said.

On July 23, Gene Willroth, public works director, testified for Arlington Heights' need for Lake Michigan water before the Illinois Division of Waterways.

THE STATE AGENCY is conducting hearings every other week on lake water allocations.

The Illinois Division of Waterways is expected to announce lake water allocations sometime next spring.

THE VILLAGE is a member of the Des Plaines, Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect and Palatine Water Commission, which for several years has been planning to bring Lake Michigan water to the four towns.

Arlington Heights, in cooperation with Elk Grove Village, also is studying the cost of buying water from the City of Chicago.

The last comprehensive report on the village's water system was completed in 1971. It outlined more than $7 million worth of improvements, including new wells, water mains and reservoirs. The village has been following the 1971 plan, using utility tax funds to pay for the improvements.

Charlton said he hoped the upcoming report would provide some clear-cut direction for meeting future water needs.

"I don't think we have to apologize for what's been done in the past," he said, but added that he wants the 1975 report to be the basis for the village's water policy.

GEORGE HARRIS
Your Pharmacist

THE DISPENSING of prescriptions requires pharmacists to continuously strive for absolute perfection. No detail is considered unimportant.

EVERY PRESCRIPTION must be carefully read several times to make certain we know what your physician has specified. So many drugs have similar names. Digitalis, Digoxin, Digestamic, and Digesfort are just a few of those that begin with Dig.

WHEN YOUR PRESCRIPTION contains more than one ingredient we must use our pharmaceutical knowledge to so combine them that the completed prescription will best accomplish the desired effect.

THE PRESCRIPTION LABEL must contain the exact information your physician directs so that you can properly take the medicine.

WE MUST PERMANENTLY record every prescription so that the information in it is available for future reference.

AFTER WE HAVE completed your prescription, just before you get it, we once more check everything about it. We know that in it is our reputation. When you entrust your prescription to us you place your very life in our hands.

Rover cashes in on premiums Family dogs banking on business

by LAURA SCHMALBACH

Three-year-old Buffy knows a nice bank when she sees one.

As the car pulls up, Buffy's nose is pressed against the window — eagerly awaiting the teller's friendly smile and the treat that comes back with it.

Buffy is the family poodle, and several local banks are catering to her (and her mistress' money) by handing out dog biscuits for the canines as well as lollipops for the kids.

A dog biscuit survey was met with uncontrollable laughter from some banks and dead seriousness from others, but almost all agreed that if they saw a need for the service, they would cheerfully comply.

THOSE BANKS THAT have started the service did so for various reasons — some noticed other drive-up windows catering to the canines and decided to get into the act, and others took the advice of dog-loving tellers who know a selling point when they saw one.

The Arlington Heights Bank and Trust has been passing out dog biscuits for five years. The move came after a guard realized that "those dogs really came to depend on him for their treats," said Jeanne McGeehan, public relations officer.

"The dogs are just like the kids," she continued. "They expect their treat and they don't stop barking until the envelope comes back to the car with it inside."

Ms. McGeehan estimated the bank goes through a pound of biscuits a week at each window, and said the only raised eyebrows have come from check out lines at local supermarkets.

"Naturally the dogs aren't going to deposit with us," she added, "but the people just love it!"

DOLING OUT DOG biscuits with $10's and $20's can be "really weird," said Kendra Wright, Des Plaines National Bank's officer in charge of drive-ups. Customer reactions have ranged from surprise at the start of the service five years ago to complete acceptance now, she said.

"Let's face it, most people out here treat their dogs like members of the family," she snickered. "The only problems we've had have been some real high-class dogs that won't eat the biscuits. But it's a lot of fun — many of the tellers know the dogs and make them speak before they'll send out the biscuits."

Although the Buffalo Grove National Bank hasn't gone to the dogs yet, the move to Milk Bones is imminent, said president Jack Sharp.

"It's great because it keeps those kids and dogs quiet when the housewife is trying to think," Sharp said.

NOT ALL BANKS are aware of Rover's pull in the area of family finances. An unidentified spokeswoman for Citizens Bank, Park Ridge, giggled loudly for 20 seconds before she was able to catch her breath and retort, "we only give them to the dogs that drive up!"

"That's got to be the funniest thing I ever heard of," a woman laughed at the First National Bank of Mount Prospect. But not so funny to her bosses — the bank has been dishing out biscuits ever since a German shepherd stole the tellers' hearts four years ago.

Isn't a pound of dog biscuits a week a little extravagant for a financial institution in the midst of a recession?

"Well, I've thought of that myself," Buffalo Grove's Sharp admitted. "But it's the small things that give people a good impression."

And at least one bank, the pooches are faring better than the kids. Ms. Wright at Des Plaines National said her bank has discontinued suckers for children because "they drool all over their clean clothes." But what about crumbs from the dog biscuits?

"Oh they usually eat them in one bite, don't they?" she giggled.

Controlers rap security at Palwaukee Airport

Air traffic controllers at Palwaukee Airport have joined in the criticism of the airport's lack of security, which allows pedestrian and vehicle traffic in aircraft movement areas.

Robert Mark, president of Local 363 of the Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization, said air traffic controllers at Palwaukee maintain records of incidents in which cars and pedestrians stray onto runways or taxiways. From April through July, 551 such incidents were recorded, Mark said.

"It's only a matter of time before we have an accident," Mark said Thursday. "We have been promised action, but we are still waiting for it to come."

PATCO's criticism of safety measures at the airport came in response to a report issued last month by the Aviation Safety Institute (ASI) which cited the same security problems.

"Palwaukee has very poor airport security procedures," the ASI report said. "Aircraft have had close calls on numerous occasions."

THE OHIO-BASED Institute, an independent safety research organization, cited examples of trucks, motorcycles, cars and small children crossing the airplane movement areas at Palwaukee. One example said a small girl was walking across an active runway with a bicycle which had a flat tire.

Mark said the ASI report was prompted by complaints from air traffic controllers at Palwaukee, who send in regular situation reports to the institute on discrepancies regarding equipment, procedures or facilities.

Mark, who represents the airport's 10 air traffic controllers, said he has met with Charles Priester, airport manager, and Federal Aviation Administration officials to discuss the problem. PATCO also has sent Priester and the FAA documentation of the group's charges of lack of security.

PATCO has suggested the airport at least install warning signs to stop persons from entering areas where planes land, take-off or taxi, Mark said. He added fencing the area is a good idea, but if the cost is prohibitive, as Priester contends, sign placement is the minimum that should be done.

Mark said PATCO's suggestions seem to have fallen on deaf ears. "All we hear are replies that something will be done, but we've been hearing that for the past five months," he said.

MARK SAID PRIESTER and the FAA have denied receiving PATCO reports on the incidents of non-aircraft traffic at the airport.

Priester could not be reached for comment Thursday, but at the time the ASI report was issued, Priester challenged the data as giving a distorted picture.

"The safety institute is not aware of Palwaukee and the problems here," he said. "They make it appear like nothing is being done."

Trailer destroyed by fire at track

A trailer used for selling horse equipment and medication was destroyed by fire Thursday night about 7:15 in the backstretch area of Arlington Park Race Track.

Fire officials estimated damage to contents and the trailer may rise to $40,000. The trailer is owned by a private enterprise. The cause of the blaze is under investigation.

Dist. 59 to get outside advice on management

by JUDY JOBBITT

Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 will be analyzed by an outside firm to get suggestions for improving its management structure.

The board of education approved hiring Peter Warner Associates to conduct a study of the district's management which will cost $2,300 to $2,500. The firm conducted the recent management study of the Northwest Education Cooperative and Northwest Suburban Special Education Organization.

"I think it will make us a lot more efficient," Supt. Roger Bardwell said. "A new administration means new relationships need to be developed."

Bardwell, appointed superintendent in June, said the study was discussed when he was being considered for the position last spring.

He said it is difficult for "those inside to see all the problems" and that he wants to develop the proper "linkages between the board, the superintendent and the principals." He said the study should save the district money over time because of improvements that should result from the study.

PETER WARNER AND Fredric Genck, who will conduct the study, will first meet with the district's personnel and board members and outline the current management structure. Nine management areas will be detailed and recommendations made for improving these areas.

A seminar for the school board will be held Sept. 13 to outline the proposed management methods for the district. A final report will be presented to the district after the seminar.

Bardwell has said he favors a decentralized management approach which would give individual schools more autonomy.

Former Supt. James Erviti, who was ousted last year from the superintendent's position, held tight rein over the individual schools. Bardwell has said he thinks schools should reflect the principal and community rather than the central administration.

Dow slides 1.57 as stocks suffer fourth straight loss

NEW YORK (UPI) — Government reports indicating high inflation is accompanying the economic recovery drove prices lower Thursday for the fourth consecutive day in see-saw trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow Jones Industrial average, up and down all day, lost 1.57 points to 791.69, bringing its four-day loss to 33.05 points. The Dow has lost 90.12 points since reaching its 1975 high of 881.81 July 15.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index lost 0.15 to 83.07. The average price of an NYSE common share decreased by 5 cents. Declines walloped advances 887 to 461, among the 1,774 issues crossing the tape.

Volume totaled 16,610,000 shares, down from the 18,630,000 traded Wednesday.

The government reports showed the "real" Gross National Product — taking inflation into consideration — rose 4.6 per cent in the second quarter; durable goods orders rose 5.3 per cent in July, and second-quarter corporate profits rose 8.2 per cent. This was the strongest evidence yet the worst recession in the post-World War II period was over.

But the Commerce Dept. reported the July Consumer Price Index rose 1.2 per cent, or at a 14.4 per cent annual rate, and real earnings declined 0.5 per cent.

American Telephone & Telegraph, the Big Board volume leader, finished unchanged at 46 on 353,000 shares, including a block of 150,000 shares at 45 3/8. AT&T announced late Wednesday it would offer 12 million new shares to the public in October.

Sony Corp. was the second most active Big Board issue, unchanged at 10 1/4 on 235,900 shares. Texaco followed, off 3/8 to 23 1/4 on 208,100 shares.

Prices closed lower in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange. The average price of an Amex share lost six cents. Volume totaled 1,810,000 shares, compared with 1,940,000 Wednesday.

No profiteering in price hikes: FTC

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Federal Trade Commission economists said Thursday they could find no evidence of profiteering in the meat, milk, bread or beer industries despite ballooning consumer prices for those products.

Prices have gone up during the past three years, the report said, because the cost of raw materials has jumped. Dr. Frederic M. Scherer, head of the FTC's Bureau of Economics, said the consumer as a result was caught in a "natural disaster" over which neither he nor the government had any control.

"In none of the four industry samples . . . has the after-tax return on equity been palpably excessive in the last 11 quarters by the standard of either long-term industry patterns or the average performance of all manufacturing industries," the report said.

"IN CONCLUSION, for none of the four processing industries is there clear evidence of profit levels or trends which suggest abusive profiteering during a period of unusual economic turbulence," it added.

Scherer cautioned that the findings for the milk and bread industries were far from comprehensive because the study covered only 30 per cent of the bread makers and only 15 per cent of the milk business.

Missing from the bread study, for instance, was the nation's largest baker, ITT-Continental. It is a conglomerate and the FTC does not have profit figures for each product line of conglomerates.

In that sense, Scherer told a briefing, the report is "very strongly qualified." But he added, "if there were any profiteering it must account for a very small percentage of the price increases."

SCHERER SAID there were possible some "antitrust implications" in the report, noting that the FTC already has an antitrust case going against ITT-Continental.

"Changes in retail prices for each of the four food product groups are explained primarily by input cost increases rather than by profit changes," the study said. "In all four industries, profits comprise a sufficiently small proportion of sales that an increase in profits could not explain much of the price increase."

The period involved in the study ran from late 1972 until early this year—a time when food prices rose about 37 per cent compared to a jump of about 22 per cent for all prices in general.

"Multi-billion-dollar interest-free bonanza" for banks

By Donald F. Morton, President
Arlington Heights Federal Savings & Loan Assn.

An end to the "multi-billion-dollar interest-free bonanza" enjoyed by the nation's commercial banks through the use of Government funds has been urged by a leading spokesman of the savings and loan industry.

Gilbert G. Roessner, president of New Jersey's largest S&L and immediate past president of the National Savings and Loan League, has called upon the Treasury to halt this interest-free deposit of so-called tax and loan accounts into commercial banks.

"It is a monopoly which ought to be eliminated," Roessner states, noting that "not one penny goes to thrift institutions, which place the bulk of their funds into the housing market."

Tax and loan accounts are deposits made up of Federal income tax withholding funds taken out of employees' pay checks. Employers must deposit these funds each month — in a commercial bank.

Roessner notes that "on any given day the balance of these tax and loan accounts totals in the billions of dollars. Some of these funds should be deposited in thrift institutions, where they could indirectly aid the hard-pressed home mortgage market."

"Moreover," Roessner emphasizes, "interest should be paid on these accounts, just as with any other account."

"Why should a construction worker have to have his withholding taxes deposited in a commercial bank, when his own job may depend on the ability of thrift institutions to secure funds for housing?"

"Why should employees of a savings and loan association or building tradesmen, architects, or anyone else connected with the housing industry be forced to deposit their tax payments in a bank, as opposed to an institution that is going to use their funds to help their industry?"

Roessner points out that as of the end of 1974, in the New York Federal Reserve Bank District alone, tax and loan accounts totaled nearly $215 million. "Some of these deposits are made in foreign banks based in New York," Roessner says.

He estimates that nationally the earnings on these funds by commercial banks are as much as $550 million each year.

"It is time that the Treasury ended this monopoly," Roessner asserts. "Savings and loans are certainly as well equipped as are commercial banks to service these accounts."

"If some of these funds move into the thrift institutions, they are going to be used primarily to help families meet their financial needs — and not be shipped into investments abroad, where many commercial banks now earn their greatest return."

Herald opinion

Tax action requires unity

The Mount Prospect Village Board is going to have to learn to function as an effective unit, rather than as a collection of feuding politicians, if it is to move the village out of its present fiscal quagmire.

Last week the board resolved an immediate problem of finding $371,000 to pay village employees 8 and 9 per cent raises. Now, however, the board must set the village's 1976 tax levy, and because of the salary increases, Trustee Edward B. Rhea Jr. is predicting the board may have to hike village taxes as much as 15 per cent.

In resolving the first crisis, the board — after weeks of arguing about a solution — agreed to take advantage of a quirk in tax collection which gave the village almost $300,000. However, Mount Prospect cannot again tap this source of revenue, so it's going to be forced to either trim its budget sharply or come up with additional revenue to offset the increased budget.

The budget problem began shortly after the April board elections, when salary increases were approved. Village officials knew at the time that the income available simply did not exist to cover the $371,000 increase.

From that point, trustees haggled about how to make up the deficit. Trustees Leo Floros and Richard N. Hendricks, in partitular, were able to propose nothing more than vague and indiscriminate cuts. They were the primary contributors to the confusion and rhetoric that delayed the temporary solution to the problem.

As the board prepares for its Aug. 28 initial discussion of the upcoming tax levy, there is one "bright" spot to ease the village's problems. Officials are considering a water rate increase which will eliminate a drain on the village's general fund and help close the water department's deficit. This is the only indication of positive action from the board.

But more is required, and Mount Prospect residents will have to pay, in one way or another, for the increased municipal salaries in the coming year. It may come in the form of higher taxes — an anathema to most of the board members — or in decreased village services, an option equally offensive to most officials.

In short, the trustees will be forced to bite a very hard bullet. What they need, as they seek to bail out the village from its budgetary problems, is the good sense to work together for the common good.

The political name-calling which has characterized the debate in the past few months will do little in helping find a creative solution to this community's budget problems.

Village should buy Citizens Utilities

The Mount Prospect Village Board should get moving on the proposed purchase of the Citizens Utilities Co. water and sewer system which serves the northeast part of the village.

Residents in the area have called for the purchase, complaining that Citizens Utilities charges exorbitant rates for poor quality water and service. Village board members have spoken out in favor of it, saying they would like to obtain the system if possible.

The move would be financed through extra charges tacked onto the water bills of residents who are now Citizens customers.

The board appears most concerned about making sure the village doesn't get stuck with any hidden problems in the system.

The matter is currently in committee, and recommendations are not expected to be before the board until at least October.

Although the proposed purchase is a complicated matter, the cost of the purchase can only go up as the board delays making a decision on the matter. Since Citizens Utilities officials have indicated they are not interested in selling, the village might have to go to condemnation to obtain the property. This would further delay the purchase and raise the cost.

With this in mind, the board should complete its study of the matter with all due speed. If the purchase is to take place, delays can only cost the village money.

'Is bus usage questionable?'

I am happy to see that our Palatine Township senior citizens are finally going to have a means of transportation in the form of the new bus the township purchased recently. However, I have heard that this bus, purchased by Palatine Township for the not-for-profit senior citizen Council on the Aged, is going to be maintained and garaged by School Dist. 15 at the Palatine Hills Junior High bus depot.

Although Palatine Township's intentions are no doubt honorable, I believe that this practice of allowing a school district to maintain and garage another organization's vehicle is illegal. Is School Dist. 15 prepared to repair and park the vehicles of other not-for-profit organizations? If not, I'd like to know why? What's fair for one should be equal for all!

I have some affiliations with local church groups in Rolling Meadows that operate a fleet of church buses for Sunday school classes. Is School Dist. 15 willing to take charge of our buses?

Did the school board approve of this practice? If they did, this precedent is obviously going to cost the taxpayers a lot of money since school district mechanics will be using taxpayers' money to repair nonschool district vehicles. I think these school district mechanics have more than enough work to keep them busy with the large fleet of school buses that Dist. 15 owns. Why doesn't the Palatine Township Highway Department maintain and house the Palatine Township bus?

There also seems to be some controversy about the type of bus purchased for the senior citizens. From a picture of the bus I saw recently, it's actually a school bus painted white without the stop sign arm and the flashing lights plated over. This bus I understand is a type similar to what School Dist. 15 purchases regularly and it was purchased from the same dealer in Chicago where School Dist. 15 buys its buses.

Did the school district purchase the bus for Palatine Township or act as its agent? Were bids taken from other companies? Would Dist. 15 be willing to help other not-for-profit organizations get a "good deal" on buses? Also, why is Palatine Township the only township having difficulty obtaining insurance on the bus?

These are questions which the taxpayers are entitled to have some answers.

'More women seek jobs'

Sex 'stereotypes' hit

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is another in a series of once-a-month interviews of topics of significance with experts from Harper College, Oakton Community College and the community at large.

by TOM WELLMAN
Chief Editorial Writer

Ten years ago, the work of Dr. Marguerite Ewald at Harper College would perhaps have been viewed as revolutionary, if not controversial.

Today, however, Dr. Ewald's efforts to encourage women and men that, yes, one can change jobs in the middle of life are an increasingly accepted part of society.

Dr. Ewald, an associate professor and counselor at the college's counseling center, reports that the growing interest in changing jobs, or starting a career, is at least a partial outgrowth of the women's movement which started to flourish in the late 1960s and early 1970s.

Dr. Ewald counsels a growing number of women who want to get away from the confines of the home and children in order to start a career. That's where she finds her challenges beginning.

"They deserve emotional support," Dr. Ewald says, because changing lifestyles requires some sharp psychological adjustments.

As she explains it, women have been taught for many years that they may strive for success, but they must not be too achievement-oriented or too successful. The family and the husband, they have been taught, must always come first.

So, for many years women's job and educational patterns have not been oriented towards "different" careers, she says. Women have acquired degrees in such fields as education or English; society has suggested to them that this education is worth little; what's more important, they're told, is to find a husband and raise a family.

There's always been some room for women to work, but usually the emphasis has been on a volunteer or part-time job. It's always been tacitly assumed, Dr. Ewald says, that marriage has priority over a career for a woman.

What Dr. Ewald must deal with, in part as a consequence of these attitudes, is a great deal of guilt from women who think of themselves as only in a "helping" role with their husbands. The result has been that women too frequently view their work as "worthless," in comparison to the "important" work of their husbands, she says.

So, Dr. Ewald conducts small classes and individual sessions with women to help them examine their attitudes towards themselves. Much of her work deals with younger women, and she reports they "do better" in making the adjustment to new or changed careers because they've grown up in an era in which rigid attitudes about such changes have been breaking down.

But when a married woman takes a job, in "99 out of 100 cases" there's some friction at home with her husband. Men are not anxious to take on household duties or new roles, and the transition to an outside job for the former housewife is not always an easy one.

But older women seek out careers, too, Dr. Ewald counsels them, too, and they "seek reassurance" that others in their own age bracket will also be seeking similar mid-life changes.

But women aren't the only persons seeking new careers. "More and more men are switching to entirely new fields," says Dr. Ewald. Increasingly such job changes are not regarded as symptoms of personal failures or instability. Instead, they are coming to be seen as personal growth and development.

In today's educational world, there's also a better opportunity for a second education to make the career change a reality. Employers, too, according to Dr. Ewald, are increasingly sympathetic to persons who want to make such a change.

At the core of Dr. Ewald's counseling philosophy is the belief that men and women should not allow themselves to be locked into stereotypes that deny them personal development.

Regardless of the age or sex of any person, there's an opportunity to enjoy new experiences. It's been helped along by the women's movement, although some persons believe that changes haven't occurred as quickly as they should have within our society, she says.

The present recession has trimmed some job opportunities for those seeking changes, Dr. Ewald reports, but more and more persons are today seeking her help to change jobs — and quite frequently, to change themselves in the process. In terms of individual freedom and achievement, Dr. Ewald finds this to be an important development.

The almanac

Today is Friday, Aug. 22, the 234th day of 1975 with 131 to follow.

The moon is between its full phase and last quarter.

The morning stars are Mars, Jupiter and Saturn.

The evening stars are Mercury and Venus.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Leo. French composer Claude Debussy was born Aug. 22, 1862.

On this day in history:

• In 1851, the U.S. yacht America beat the British craft Aurora off the coast of England to win the silver trophy known as the "America Cup."

• In 1911, the Mona Lisa was stolen from the Louvre Museum in Paris. It was recovered four months later.

• In 1941, Nazi troops advanced to the outskirts of Leningrad, Russia, during World War II.

• In 1973, U.S. Secretary of State William Rogers resigned and presidential aide Henry Kissinger was named to replace him. Also that day, President Nixon assailed his Watergate critics and pledged to stay in office.

A thought for the day: American writer Bret Harte said: "One big vice in a man is apt to keep out a great many smaller ones."

The article by Wandalyne Rice in your Wednesday, Aug. 13 issue where in several local pastors in this area were interviewed was, in our opinion a slanted article. Due to the comments from the pastors interviewed the article gave the impression that very few conservatives reside in the Northwest suburban area.

In order to give balance to this important issue we strongly urge you to interview other pastors in this area, particularly Pastor Norbert Kleidon, Prince of Peace Lutheran Church in Palatine. Pastor Kleidon was the Pastoral Delegate for our area to the Lutheran Church — Missouri Synod Convention in Anaheim, Calif.

We would very much appreciate news coverage other than on the editorial page.

Trustee lauds Harper stories

This past week Paddock has run a series of articles by Wandalyne Rice concerning the first ten years of Harper College. I found the coverage explicit, direct and introspective.

The first 10 years of Harper's existence have shown how a community can respond to a service. Before Harper, the Northwest suburbs were a higher education "wasteland." The college has filled a tremendous void. While many traditional four-year colleges are having a decrease in enrollment, Harper College is finding a reverse situation, great demand for its services. With 27 years being the average age of a Harper student, it is clear that participation in the programs and services of the college is not limited to one particular age group.

With economic trends tending to be negative, the college has found itself positively affected. We have truly become a "community college" responding to the needs of its citizens.

Environment unit rips malathion

'Mosquito spray hurts health'

A Chicago environmental group has challenged the widespread use of malathion spray to kill adult mosquitoes in the suburbs, charging it is a health hazard.

Citizens for a Better Environment filed a complaint this week charging the North Shore Mosquito Abatement District is violating the Environmental Protection Act by spraying malathion.

The Northwest Mosquito Abatement District, which serves the Northwest suburbs, uses the same chemical, but director Wilbur Mitchell said malathion has been approved by the federal Environmental Protection Agency. The complaint probably will have no effect this summer, even if it is upheld, because hearings are not expected to start until fall.

A SPOKESMAN FOR CBE said a complaint was filed against the North Shore district because residents there have complained and will testify about the hazards.

CBE officials said they are aware of "numerous persons whose health is adversely affected by spraying, and suffer toxic reactions." The spokesmen also question the effectiveness of spraying for adult mosquitoes, recommending larva prevention methods instead.

Mitchell said all mosquito abatement districts use larvacides, but he said spraying also offers relief to suburban residents.

"Everyone admits it's a temporary measure," Mitchell said. "When we spray for adults, it is to cut down the annoyance. It is effective, or it wouldn't be used."

CBE RESEARCH Director Barry Greener said, "Mosquito control as a legitimate use for malathion is questionable in urban areas where mosquitoes have little chance to breed. The original land characteristics favorable to mosquito growth when abatement districts were formed over 30 years ago have long since disappeared."

The CBE said malathion is a toxic organophosphate compound related to nerve gas, and it affects people in varying degrees.

Mitchell said his district won a similar challenge a few years ago when the villages of Schaumburg and Palatine attempted to ban mosquito spraying.

Calcium deposits caused by fungi

Would you give us some information on histoplasmosis?

My husband had a routine chest X-ray, and it revealed a spot on the right lung, and we were referred to a specialist. The test and X-rays he ordered showed a calcium deposit on the lung, and he reacted to histoplasmosis tests.

Neither the specialist nor our family doctor gave us any cause for this. If any treatment is effective none has been prescribed. They say that they do not think it is malignant, but he must have X-rays each three months to check on it.

Histoplasmosis resembles tuberculosis in many ways, but it is not. It is caused by fungi. The spores are inhaled into the lungs, and they set up housekeeping there. The lungs immediately react to stop the growth of the spores just as the body sets up mechanisms to wall off TB germs.

The process leads to formation of spots of calcium where the spores are walled off and usually die. This may lead to many small areas of calcifications in the lungs or large spots of calcium. Then when an X-ray is taken, the spots of calcium are apparent even if the patient has effectively already recovered from the infection.

In some cases the problem is to be sure it is just the old fungus infection and to be certain, if it is just one spot, that it is not a tumor or cancer. The concern is not whether or not the histoplasmosis will turn into cancer, but to be sure the spot is histoplasmosis and not a spot caused by a cancer. That is why old chest X-rays are often so helpful. If the doctor can document by the old X-rays that a spot has been there a long time he won't need to worry about the possibility of cancer.

Histoplasmosis infections usually cause no symptoms at all. When symptoms do occur initially, they are similar to a respiratory infection and may be passed off as that. Then as the spores of the fungus are walled off the symptoms disappear.

The fungi are found commonly in caves where there are droppings from bats and birds or in chicken roosts. Cleaning out a hen house is one way to get the disease. The spores are in the dust that is inhaled.

Rarely the spores will spread throughout the body and set up a generalized infection. In other cases they can cause cavities in the lungs. This again is similar to the way tuberculosis can affect the body.

In most cases the infection is localized and walled off. This is surely the case with your husband. No treatment is necessary for such cases and that is why neither doctor prescribed any medicine for him. In cases with complications, medicines are available to control the infection.

Histoplasmosis is not contagious in the same way tuberculosis is. It is not spread from one person to another. The spread is mostly by dust containing the fungi. The old fungi in your husband's lungs are walled off and dead, so you needn't worry about that.

UAW asks jobless pay speedup

A United Auto Workers spokesman Thursday called on Gov. Daniel Walker to assume personal responsibility for ending "intolerable delay" in getting out state unemployment checks.

Region 4 Director Robert Johnson said officials of the UAW have shown patience in waiting for an end to the delays, but late checks are forcing financial blinds on unemployed union members. Johnson said the unemployment compensation office has low morale "and has been a mess for over a year."

He said most unemployment offices "resemble a skid row employment office."

Final deadline tonight to enter 15th Paddock tennis tournament

SERVING UP notice that tonight is the final deadline to file entries in the Paddock Publications tennis tournament is tourney director Mel Timmons. "Right on schedule" is the way Timmons describes preparations for the 15th annual event that gets under way Aug. 30.

The deadline is here.

Entries for the 15th annual Paddock Publications Tennis Tournament close tonight, just one week before competition in 20 divisions begins Aug. 30-31 and Sept. 1.

"We're just about right on schedule," tournament director Mel Timmons nodded while surveying the hundreds of application blanks that have already been received.

"We're very happy with the response and progress so far, but we're also anticipating the usual rush of entries on the last day."

Those who still wish to register may complete the appropriate coupon elsewhere in this section, enclose $1.50 entry fee for competition in each adult division or $1 per person for competition in two children's divisions and either drop off the blank at Paddock Publications, 217 W. Campbell St. in Arlington Heights or mail your entry to Paddock Tennis, P.O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006 with a proper postmark of Friday, Aug. 22.

The addition of two new divisions makes the tournament, co-sponsored by Paddock Publications and the Arlington Tennis Club, perhaps not only the largest competition in the state, but also the most diversified.

Eliminations will be staged for youngsters 15 years and under at one extreme as well as for men 50 years and older and for women 45 years and older in doubles play.

The intermediate age-group competition could bring the total number of entrants near the 1,000 mark, especially if last year's record 1,100 participants is any indication of what to expect this time around.

"This year we may have to make a cut-off," Timmons explained of the plan to post a ceiling, where necessary, to provide a workable number of entries in some divisions.

"We don't want to create a monster that makes it impossible for us to run the tournament smoothly and correctly. That's why it is imperative for the entries to be in early, should we have to revert to a first come, first-served basis."

Every participant will receive an emblematic Paddock Tennis patch in addition to being eligible for 62 trophies for men, women, boys and girls of all ages.

Depending on the number of entries, the tournament may adopt the 10-game pro set format in the first round. Sites of the competition vary among divisions with action slated on the high school courts at Wheeling, Rolling Meadows, Forest View, Arlington and Prospect and the facility at Harper College.

In the event of rain, arrangements have been made to conduct the tournament at various indoor tennis sites in the area.

The tournament is assured of at least one new divisional champion, according to Timmons. "Jon Paczkowski called me from Barcelona, Spain to inform us that he will be unable to participate in the event this year."

"Jon has been playing in Europe all summer and just recently tore ligaments in his ankle that will keep him in a cast from 6-8 weeks."

Irving-Lake bows out of tourney

Special to The Herald

SEATTLE, Wash. — Irving-Lake of Illinois bowed out of the Babe Ruth National Tournament late Wednesday night, losing to defending national champion Sugar Creek (Mo.) on a no-hitter, 3-0.

Irving-Lake — a team of all-stars from Schaumburg, Hoffman Estates, Streamwood and Hanover Park — came into the day's play with one win and no losses, having defeated Brooklyn (N.Y.) in the opener, 7-1.

However, Seattle just got by the players of Manager Lou Bocci Wednesday afternoon, 3-2, in the double elimination tourney.

Irving-Lake then faced possibly the toughest pitcher in state, sectional or national play and couldn't come up with a hit.

The Illinois state champs received some good pitching of their own from starter and loser Jim Dastlee. He blanked Sugar Creek in the early going, giving up the first run in the fifth. But the outstanding Irving-Lake hitting attack couldn't solve the offerings of the Missouri moundman.

Irving-Lake had several runners as far as second base, but the experienced 1974 national champs stopped them in their tracks with their defense and tough pitching.

Big Ten program battles the pros in Chicago area

Name that team.

Over the past seven years only one school has been able to crack into the one-two domination of Michigan and Ohio State in Big Ten football.

Only one school has been able to squeeze into second place in a league that many observers call the Big Two and Little Eight.

That team is...

Would you believe Northwestern University?

Northwestern tied Michigan for second in 1970 and stood by itself in that runner-up spot in 1971 as Ohio State skidded to a 5-3 record.

Over the past six years Northwestern has won more Big Ten football games than Minnesota, Wisconsin, Illinois, Iowa and Indiana. In that same period they have won just three less than Michigan State and one less than Purdue. Forget Ohio State and Michigan because they're in another world.

Why, then, does a football program that has demonstrated positive results continue to have so many problems

Bob Frisk
Sports Editor

cult time associating with Northwestern," Ashby said, "but they show tremendous loyalty to the Chicago Bears, for example, even though they haven't been winning."

"We like to think college football is one of the best attractions today and that we have something special to offer the people in Big Ten competition — in all sports."

It's rough enough to fight the pros, but Northwestern also battles the preps. High school football is a popular show on Saturday afternoons in the area around Northwestern, including Evanston High School itself which has an impressive tradition and following.

Northwestern also is trying to sell a product with just a limited number of students to help boost attendance, a serious problem in these days of staggering expenses. Actually, if you compare Northwestern's crowds and consider comparative enrollments with other Big Ten schools, the Wildcats don't look that bad.

The problems are there, the headaches, but Ashby enjoys his work, an expanding position that reports on all aspects of Northwestern athletics, and enables him to work closely with coaches, athletes and the media. He represents the university sports program in media relations.

"It's the daily association with sports, meeting so many different personalities that make it so fascinating," he said. "You get an inside view of what people are really like. We can read about them, but not really know them."

A graduate of Mount Carroll (Ill.) High School and Southern Illinois University, Ashby is a three-year veteran of the United States Marine Corps with a 18-month tour in Vietnam.

"When I got out of school I went to work briefly in advertising as a copywriter," he said, "but I soon found that wasn't for me. I wrote a few letters to people in sports asking how I could get started and I remember Pat Williams of the Chicago Bulls writing back and frankly stating, 'You have to be damn lucky or just be in the right place at the right time.'"

"I just decided to call Northwestern one day in 1970. They were in the process of hiring an assistant in sports information. I was third in line but one turned down the job and the other got a promotion where he was working. I just fell into it and then got the main job in 1973."

Although Ashby is a man on the go constantly during the sports year, particularly in the fall, the big day always is Saturday, game day.

That's when every sports information director wonders if something big, something dramatic will happen, something he can help develop in the press box, something like that one Saturday afternoon in 1924.

Under the gun of a deadline in a chilled press box, in 1924, after Notre Dame had beaten Army, sportswriter Grantland Rice wrote, "Outlined against a blue-gray October sky, the Four Horsemen rode again..."

Rice is remembered for the prose, but the source really was Notre Dame's sports information director, George Strickler.

He had attended a movie, "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse," the night before. At halftime against Army, after the Irish backfield performed so well, Strickler moved through the press box, stopped at Rice's chair, and excitedly told the veteran writer:

"Our backfield reminds me of that movie I saw last night, Mr. Rice, 'The Four Horsemen.'" Armed with this fragment, Rice's mind raced to the task after the game ended, and the most memorable lead in sportswriting history sprang from his typewriter.

Young George Strickler could only smile as he read the story. It just had to be the finest hour for any sports information director.

"Outlined against a blue-gray October sky, the Four Horsemen rode again. In dramatic lore they are known as Famine, Pestilence, Destruction, and Death. These are only aliases. Their real names are Stuhldreher, Miller, Crowley, and Layden. They formed the crest of the South Bend cyclone before which another fighting Army team was swept over the precipice..."

putting people in the stands? Why do only 23,000 fans show up in the heavily-populated Chicago area to watch Northwestern play Purdue? Or just 23,000 last fall for games with Indiana and Wisconsin?

It's a very special problem at Northwestern, a private school with only 6,500 students, and people close to the scene acknowledge the difficulties attached to selling this particular product.

"We're trying to sell a college product in a pro-oriented territory," says Jerry Ashby, Northwestern's Sports Information Director, who lives in Rolling Meadows but will soon move to Mount Prospect with his wife and two children.

College people know what the atmosphere is like on a football afternoon, but the best way they can sell that atmosphere, the excitement, is to get people into the stadium. It's not easy.

"Chicago area people have a diffi-

Reuschel brothers shutout Dodgers

Rick Reuschel and his big brother combined to pitch a six-hit shutout Thursday to lead the Chicago Cubs to a 7-0 triumph over the Los Angeles Dodgers at Wrigley Field, only the third defeat for the Dodgers in the last 12 games.

Rick Reuschel started and gave up the five hits before giving way with one out in the seventh due to a blister on the fore-finger of his pitching hand. Only four Dodgers reached as far as second base, out of them Davey Lopes when he stole his 34th consecutive base in the sixth inning, and none got to third.

The Cubs collected eight hits off Andy Messersmith in handing him his 12th loss against 14 wins with Rick Monday's two-run home run in the second the highlight of the attack. The Cubs scored twice in the first when Don Kessinger walked, reached third on Monday's single and scored on Bill Madlock's single. Monday reached third on Willie Crawford's error after Madlock's single and scored on Jerry Morales infield out.

Manny Trillo opened the Cub second with a double and scored on Kessinger's single before Monday's 16th home run. In the seventh, Chicago also scored twice on singles by Kessinger and Madlock and Jose Cardenal's double for two runs.

Paul Reuschel, who has been with the Cubs only part of the season, did not get a save as the Cubs had a 5-0 lead when he entered the game.

Madlock had two hits in three at bats to boost his league leading batting average to .363.

Kaat wins 18th

Jerry Hairston's two-out run-scoring single in the ninth inning broke a 1-1 deadlock Thursday night and gave Jim Kaat his 18th victory in a 2-1 triumph by the Chicago White Sox over the New York Yankees in New York.

The winning rally began when with one out, Deron Johnson singled to center. After Ken Henderson flied to left, Bill Melton reached on a roller to third and Hairston then delivered a line single to center, scoring Johnson with the winning run.

The victory for Kaat was his 18th against 9 losses. He allowed eight hits, all singles, walked only one and struck out one. Rich Gossage earned his 19th save with a 1-3 inning of relief.

The Yankees opened the scoring in the second inning when Thurman Munson led off with a single and went to third on Graig Nettles' single. After Lou Piniella was hit by a pitch, Chris Chambliss drove in Munson on a force play.

Chicago tied things in the third when Pat Kelly's sacrifice fly scored Carlos May, who had reached on a single.

Haas upset in Illinois Amateur

Mick Soli, a relatively unknown as far as nationally known amateur golfers are concerned, defeated budding superstar amateur Jay Haas in the first hole of sudden death at the Illinois State Amateur Golf Championship Thursday. Soli, a senior at Northern Illinois University, parred the first hole after the two had tied at 281 for 72 holes at the Bloomington Country Club hosted tourney. No one from the Herald area made the cut for the final 36 holes...

Sackett clarifies Legion misunderstanding

Dear Herald:

It is with great interest that I read Mike Klein's account (July 30) of the apparent SNAFU that took place with the Cook County American Legion baseball tournament this year. I would like to clarify several points and attempt to show what was behind the motives of Ernie Jenkins, the present Chairman of the First Division.

On the Sunday in question (July 27) my son-in-law, Doug Viska, left Paducah, Ky., around 10 a.m. on his way back to Wheeling. Prior to that time we had a very comprehensive discussion of the upcoming County Tournament and all facets were completely covered.

I felt, with my previous experience in handling county and state tournaments, that I could be classified as having some experience in these matters and tried to pass it on, in order to simplify matters for Doug. At 9:15 p.m. the same date he called me to let us know they had arrived home, with no troubles. This would apparently refute Mr. Jenkins' weak excuse that he was unable to get Doug by phone on Sunday evening.

Last year, the (Wheeling) Blanchfield Post 1968 requested that we be permitted to host the State tournament, of which Jenkins was aware, as was Charles Surina, his assistant from Cleora. At no time was the Wheeling Post notified of the meeting in Bloomington at which time the tournament was awarded to the district of which Surina is chairman. Does this not sound a bit peculiar?

We then notified the county that we would like to host the county tournament and were so notified that this would be done. From checking the official records of our Post, I find no form of communication from Jenkins to our baseball chairman, and no mention from my successor that county meetings were being held at City Hall in Chicago.

In a way I feel somewhat responsible for the lack of leadership in the District as Mr. Al Flores was my recommendation for Commissioner. I did not know he would be unavailable at these crucial times. This again should have been checked by the County chairman when this person (Flores) did not attend county meetings during the preliminary stages.

I feel very sorry for (Wheeling coach) Robert Grybash and the players of the Wheeling team. This was something they were looking forward to. It is sincerely hoped they will be able to rise above this pretty action and field a representative team next year.

I am attending the Great Lakes Regional Tournament this week at Murray, Ky., and I assure all in the Ninth District that the state chairman, Russell Beltritz, will be made aware of all the facts and if necessary, I will request a hearing before the entire commission, to include the State Commander.

The good name of my son-in-law, his post, the district and indirectly my own name have been questioned and that will not be allowed to die.

Gene Sackett
Paducah, Ky.
Editor's Note: Gene Sackett resided in Wheeling for many years and served as Commissioner of the American Legion Ninth District baseball teams. He left the area last winter. Sackett's Wheeling Post duties were assumed by Viska.

READER PRO-BEARS

Dear Sirs:
I'm getting sick and tired of the letters printed elsewhere in your paper that are anti-Bears. I know plenty of people on my block who would like to see our village gain the prestige that the Bears would bring.

Those who say they came to the suburbs to escape the so-called "bad element" associated with the city are simply hiding their heads in the sand. There are obviously good and bad things that will come with the stadium, but I think most of them will be good.

For starters, Bear fans as well as potential Bear fans won't have to make the long drive downtown to antiquated Soldier Field to see them play. The drive back is even worse.

Secondly, the stadium may possibly be used by local residents for important functions. In the past, only prep football stadiums that hold 3,000 or so were the only things available.

Thirdly, the prestige of having such a complex in town may attract new business, leading to more jobs and more opportunities for everyone.

Finally, maybe the addition will help Arlington Heights become a more realistic community — one with many ethnic groups instead of just one main one. When kids grow up knowing only the white culture, how are they going to cope as adults in the melting pot culture of life?

Jack Trifitz
Arlington Heights
CONGRATS, IRVING-LAKE

Fan's Forum:
I've enjoyed your stories on the Irving-Lake team. Although I don't have a youngster on this state championship team, I still feel proud of what the team has accomplished. And I'm not alone in that regard. Several friends of mine told me they read about this Babe Ruth team, too, and they also felt a little community pride inside.

I hope they've won the national title by the time you've used this letter. That way I'll be the first to write them a congratulatory note. Great job, guys!

READER LOSES BET

Dear Sirs:

We had a helluva argument at the office Saturday. We even called your paper to try and settle it, but your offices were closed. (We also tried the three Chicago papers, but nobody wanted to take the time to find out the answer for us.)

Here it is: How is the gale divided in both the American and National Leagues between the home and visiting teams? It may sound like a silly thing to have an argument about, but aren't most arguments caused by something stupid and insignificant? Anyway, a $20 bet hinges on the answer. I say the visiting teams in the major leagues get 20 per cent of the admissions.

Tom Livengood
Des Plaines

In the American League, visiting teams get 20 per cent of the gross admissions, as you said. But in the National League, they simply collect 40 cents on each admission. It works out that the American teams collect 10 to 15 per cent more than the National teams. Sorry, Tom.

ENJOYED GOLF TOURNEY

Dear Sirs:

I played in the Paddock golf tourney last Sunday for the first time ever. Being a high handicap golfer, this was probably the only time I'll ever have the chance to play in such a big tournament as you had at Buffalo Grove. I thoroughly enjoyed it even though our team didn't finish among the top three. When a guy's big thrill is having two or three pars in 18 holes, you can understand that playing in any tournament is a little ego trip.

So thanks for putting on such an affair. I had the chance to meet some swell fellows in my foursome and we plan to get together next week at my home course for 18 holes. In each of the following weeks, we'll be getting together to play at each others courses. You may not know it, but your tournament appears to have made some lasting friendships.

Frames must flex

by RICHARD BALLANTINE

The frame is the heart and soul of a bicycle. It is the chief determinant of bicycle weight, and the more you pay the lighter the weight for the same strength.

Frames are not meant to be rigid or unyielding, but rather to absorb irregularities from the road surface.

Called resiliency or (twang or flex), this is a function of quality of materials and manufacturing methods, and gives better bikes more springiness and vitality.

There is no way to work around a cheap frame. Other components can be modified or changed but the frame endures, and it should be the first focus of your attention when considering a prospective bike.

Inexpensive coaster - brake, 3-speed and cheap 10-speed bikes use seamed tubing, made by wrapping a long, flat strip of steel into a tube and then welding it together (electrically) at high temperature.

Better bikes use a seamless tubing which is even in bore throughout. The best bikes use apical, cold-drawn alloy steel seamless double-butted tubing.

The method by which the frame parts are attached to each other is important. Bikes with seamed tubing are usually just stuck together and welded, leaving a smooth joint. This is the commonest and weakest type of assembly.

In better bikes, the frame is lugged and brazed, rather than welded. Make sure that the job has been done cleanly and neatly on any prospective bike you examine.

Chances are you will not be getting double-butted tubing unless you have elected to spend upwards of $300. However, you should at least get seamless lugged tubing, which is even used on low-cost quality bikes.

Bicycle frames come in different designs. The commonest for touring use is 72 degree parallel. This means that the angle to the top tube formed by the seat and head tubes is 72 degrees. This is the standard design and gives an excellent combination of road holding, shock absorption and power transmission. It is best for bumpy urban streets.

THERE'S AN AIR of antiquity about these ceramic busts, achieved by building up translucent stain in shades of grey, blue and purple over a base coat of opaque. Louise Behrendt gave the soldier and gypsy a matte finish, but the glossy pirate is her favorite. About 14 inches high, set on a marble shelf in her living room, they are always admired by visitors.

PORCELAIN, THOUGH somewhat harder to work with than ceramics, is also taught in Mrs. Behrendt's park district classes. It requires the highest firing. These 6-inch Hummel-type figures were cleaned and fired in her kiln, then stained with a light, delicate touch. They look like the real thing.

Ceramics and pottery appeal to all ages

by ELEANOR RIVES

Don't tell Louise Behrendt you possess no artistic talent.

Don't tell her you are all thumbs and a real klutz when it comes to anything artsy or craftsy.

She won't believe you.

Don't tell her you can't even draw a straight line. She will fire back, "Who wants a straight line? There's nothing interesting about a straight line."

Mrs. Frank Behrendt of Mount Prospect has been teaching ceramics and pottery classes for the Mount Prospect and Des Plaines Park Districts for the past three years. Her students include children, beginning and advanced adults, and senior citizens.

"If you can so much as hold a brush, I guarantee you can paint a dish or an ashtray," she tells selfdoubters. "Everyone has some artistic ability. You need know only how to handle the right tool, then follow instructions."

LOUISE TOOK UP ceramics as a hobby some 25 years ago. Over the years her family increased — and so did her ceramics. Her husband and all five children have added to the total. Louise protests that it wasn't really the overwhelming collection that forced them to move into a larger home recently — that's only part of it. Now she has a ceramics workroom and space for her two kilns.

For the Behrendts, every room of the house is a display room, tastefully accented with ceramics, pottery and porcelain. "Everything must be out, where I can lay my hands on it," said Louise. "So many are used as samples for my classes."

Five ceramic cats lounge by the fireplace; ducks and rabbits peek from behind chairs. Throughout the three levels of the house, Louise's artistry is evident in candy dishes, ginger jars, lamps, figurines, busts, plates, ashtrays, pitchers, cups, water goblets, mugs and planters. Oodles of ceramic Christmas trees and four nativity sets await the Christmas season.

GREATLY ADMIRER by men are her unusual mallard ducks, a chess set and three ceramic busts so deftly stained one would swear they were antiques of great value.

Mrs. Behrendt tries to come up with ideas for unusual gifts for her students to make — for graduation, Christmas, birthday, anniversary. "Where else can you find a hand-painted Christmas present for a dollar!" she exclaimed. For $3.50, Louise can create a centerpiece that costs $17 in a gift shop.

Students in Louise's classes may work with ceramics, pottery (with or without a potter's wheel) and porcelain. Her ceramics instruction includes crystal glazes, plain glaze, hand painting before or sometimes after firing, and staining.

Her eldest student is 67. Her youngest is 3 and stands on a stool as he works his pottery. "He got into the class of 8 to 12 year olds clearly by accident," she explained. "But he works out well, so I let him stay."

Louise enjoys children and finds them particularly adept at pottery which allows them free expression and the chance to let their imaginations run wild. And pottery is good for them, for it improves their coordination, especially boys around the awkward age of 10 to 12.

"Children are very generous," she smiled. "They never make things for themselves."

MEN, TOO, ARE apt to excel in pottery, whereas women are more apt to take to ceramics. Often someone who fails at one will excel at the other.

"My favorite people are senior citizens," said Mrs. Behrendt. "They do beautiful work. They are the most relaxed people I know and they have all the time in the world. People are selling themselves short when they exclude these delightful, appreciative people from their lives."

Louise Behrendt will be teaching new classes in ceramics and pottery in both park districts in September.

"I do things that all ordinary people can do," she shrugs. "They just don't know they can do it."

TAKING HIS design from a real maple leaf, Eddie Buc, 10, fashions a maple leaf candy dish with Louise Behrendt's help. Because they are relaxed and unhurried, senior citizens like Rita Moore, at right, make fine ceramic students, according to Mrs. Behrendt who teaches ceramics for two park districts in the area.

Moody Blues' composer records his own album

The second individual project to come from the Moody Blues is "From Mighty Oaks" (Threshold records) by flautist-composer Ray Thomas.

This often stunningly beautiful album is a worthy follow-up to Justin Hayward's and John Lodge's "Blue Jays" album (also Threshold), which has been the only album from the Moodies in the past two years.

Thomas, writer of such hits as "Dear Diary" and "The Tide Rushes In," shares the composing chores on his own album with Nicky James, percussionist for the non-Moodies backup band.

A SUPERB BLEND of classical and rock elements, the instrumental title song opens the album. The crisp, excellent production sound throughout the album is immediately noticed.

Thomas' familiar voice falls equally well on love ballads such as "You

Ray Thomas

Make Me Feel Alright" and the good change-of-pace, country-style "Rock-A-Bye Baby Blues." The album's two highlights, though, are the soaring sounds of "I Wish We Could Fly" (which is the closest to the Moodies' sound) and the classy rocker "High Above My Head," which seems a sure bet for a hit single. "High Above" has a bit of Elton John sound to it.

The cover, as usual, features an excellent illustration by Phil Travers.

OTHER NEW releases include: "Return to Fantasy" by Uriah Heep (Warner Bros.). The group delivers its usual heavy metal onslaught, laced with the throbbing, soaring keyboards of Ken Hensley. The lyrics, as in the past, are sure bets to win no awards, with those on "Devil's Daughter" being particularly ludicrous.

However, the album is the group's best since joining Warner Bros. due to the willingness to expand musically, which is evidenced by the horns on "Prima Donna" and the taste of soul on the bluesy "Your Turn to Remember." Of the more familiar sounding numbers, "Beautiful Dream," "Showdown" and the title track are certain to find instant acceptance with the Heep's fans.

URIAH HEEP will appear at 3 p.m. today at the House of Lewis store in the Randhurst Shopping Center, Mount Prospect, and tonight at the International Amphitheatre, Chicago. Ten Years After, featuring guitarist Alvin Lee, will be at the Amphitheatre Sunday.

Lee's new album, "Pump Iron" (Columbia), is a generally fine set of blues-dominated songs, all but one written by Lee and most with extended solos. Lee adds variety, though, with reggae on "Try To Be Righteous" and gospel on "Have Mercy." The softer "Time and Space" is the highlight, but a couple of the solos are blistering and Box of Bad Company plays bass throughout. There's a clever body art cover, too.

"Sha Na Na" by Sha Na Na (Kama Sutra). The group that hit fame reworking rock oldies goes heavier on new material this time and the results are mixed. The disco instrumental "Sha-Bumpin'" is fine and the ballad "The Only Light on My Horizon" is passable, but too often a flat voice mars the others.

THE ALBUM is not without oldies and two of them — "Runaway" and "Just Like Romeo and Juliet" — are among the album's best material. The group will be at Washington Park, Homewood, Saturday with the Guess Who.

Two more albums featuring the wacky British Monty Python comedy group have surfaced. "The Album of the Soundtrack of the Trailer of the Film of Monty Python and the Holy Grail" (Arista) is just that plus more, skillfully edited in to produce added laughs. The movie opens today at the Arlington Theatre.

The other album, "Monty Python's Flying Circus" (Pye), is taken from the group's television show, seen at 10:30 p.m. Sundays on Channel 11. The album contains some of the show's best sketches, including the singing lumberjack, men posing as mice, returning a dead parrot to the pet shop and learning self defense against a man armed with a banana. Both albums are highly recommended for laughs.

Man who directed Eichmann capture tells true story

"THE HOUSE ON GARIBOLDI STREET" BY ISSER HAREL The Viking Press, $5.95

It was in 1945 that Adolf Eichmann boasted he would leap into his grave laughing from the extraordinary satisfaction of knowing he had six million Jews on his conscience.

Yet, only months later when World War II was over, there was no grave ahead, not even prison, for the Nazi officer who had spearheaded the "Final Solution" — the extermination of six million Jews. After the war he vanished so completely, many presumed he was dead.

Not in Israel. As other countries went about enjoying the prosperity after the war, the new Jewish state vowed to leave no stone unturned in rooting out German war criminals and bringing them to justice. There were those who could never forget the Nazi atrocities and were determined to avenge their families and friends.

It was no surprise, then, in late 1957 when the telephone rang in the office of Isser Harel then chief of Israel's Secret Service, with a call from a man who had some new information: Adolf Eichmann was alive and living in Argentina.

HAREL WAS interested but not excited by the news. Throughout the years after the war the Secret Service had been getting tips on where Eichmann was hiding and all had led to disappointment. There was not even concrete evidence that the man was alive.

"Anyone holding the sort of office entrusted to me at that time soon learns from experience not to build too many hopes on startling news of this kind" was his reaction to the news.

But this time, as Harel would later discover, there would be no disappointments. Three years later the mass murderer would be tried and convicted by an Israeli court and people throughout the world would watch the Jews relive the blackest years.

The real account of how Eichmann was found and how he was brought to Israel right from under Argentina's unsuspecting nose has never been told until now. The official silence has been broken. "The House on Garibaldi Street" is the first full account of Operation Eichmann, told by the man who directed its every step — from that day in 1957 until May 23, 1960, when Israeli Prime Minister David

The book stall

Ben-Gurion made the announcement to the world.

GIVING DETAILS of how Harel and his task force captured Eichmann, alias Ricardo Klement, would ruin the story for prospective readers. Suffice it to say that Harel keeps the reader and never lets him go. He does not preach about the atrocities; his story is purely a factual account and he tells it as a reporter. No book of fiction could create more suspense.

Each man in the task force had a personal stake in making the operation a success. It was a difficult time for them, and Harel describes them as heroes. For nine days they had to feed, clothe and even shave Eichmann, the man they detested. As Harel writes, "They had to forget their fathers and mothers, their little brothers and sisters who had been turned into heaps of bones and piles of ash by the prisoner's extermination machine."

SURPRISINGLY, Eichmann went with his captors with little struggle, tired of living a life of hiding and suspicion. They could barely believe that once the goal of this pale, bent, frightened little man was the extermination of an entire people.

Eichmann is dead, hanged for his crimes in 1962. But few will forget him or the Nazi atrocities which continue to serve as a reminder to the rest of the world of what can happen. Books like this one entertain but they do even more: they help keep that reminder alive.

'Fun' night with Joffrey

by LYNN ASINOF
(A review)

The City Center Joffrey Ballet has a major following of avid fans in Chicago, and Tuesday night's performance at Ravinia illustrated the reason for this love affair. It was fun.

Granted, the dancers' performance was only good instead of inspired. Their technique was only adequate instead of dazzling. But the three short ballets presented at the opening of this six-day visit were full of movement, life and humor.

"Offenbach in the Underworld," new to the company, is an earthy character piece based on the flirtations of patrons of a fashionable cafe. Choreographed by Anthony Tudor, the piece is a light-hearted remake of the more stylized "Gaiete Parisienne," which is best known for its cancan section.

Character pieces tend to be one-dimensional, complete with the stereotyped soldier, debutante, woman of the streets and local dignitary. This production, however, featured more fully developed characters so that the humor of the flirtations was natural rather than stilted.

THE RAUCOUS, drunken local ladies dance a slightly off-color cancan, which is the highlight of the number. They lift their skirts with an earthy bluntness rather than the sophisticated coquetry of the girls in "Gaiete Parisienne." And the music includes the same foot-tapping refrain heard in dance halls in every American western movie.

"Confetti," choreographed by Gerald Arpino, is a spirited frolic with the Tarantella. With tambourines in hand, the three pairs of dancers take to the more classical ballet style which usually wins one place in a Joffrey program.

Although the Joffrey is short on the technique needed most in the more classical pieces, "Confetti" moves and never gives the audience a chance to see the sometimes shaky poses. The women, Rebecca Wright, Francesca Corkle and Denise Jackson, are animated and enchanting.

"DEUCE COUPE II," a ballet set to Beach Boys music, is a trip back through the 1960s. Gyrate hips contrast with the classical ballet form which is used to create islands of calm in a frenzied world.

The Joffrey dancers reportedly hated the ballet when it was first choreographed for them by Twyla Tharp. Now it is one of the big drawing cards in their repertory. It moves, it is humorous and it is fun to watch.

The Joffrey will be at Ravinia through Sunday. However most performances are already sold out. Curtain is 8:30 every night, with a matinee at 2 p.m. Saturday.

Second City's new 'Fooling' show

SECOND CITY is... well, just Second City. And you can always count on a good show. Nothing has changed with its newest review, the 51st, "ONCE MORE WITH FOOLING" that opened earlier this month, except some of the faces.

It's the same kind of fresh humor, wit and fun interlaced with pokes at everybody and anything, particularly that keynotes Chicago itself.

The CIA naturally receives more than its share of digs highlighted by a short, catchy jingle introduced by the entire company. Closer to home, the Chicago cops and the CTA, in turn, are out on the spot.

Then there are the scenes... "I'm O.K., I'm not so sure about you," and a group of Russian dancers touring the U.S. in the Defectors Ballet which can't even compare, however, to the "Dance of the Flaming Turkey."

Former Arlington Heights resident DON DE POLLO, along with ANN RYERSON, new to the cast, do exceptional impersonations of ventriloquists' dummies who meet through Computer Dating. And De Pollo really breaks up the audience when he plays Edgar Allen Poe's raven.

Even on week nights Second City is playing to packed houses. People without reservations are being turned away at the door which indeed is something to brag about when most Chicago area theaters are even pleased with half houses during the week.

The menu, too, has been extended to include some very tempting ice cream desserts and drinks nice for the summer months.

About the only drawback to Second City is the run of the shows. They are so successful they continue for

CHARLIE BROWN and his friends never had it so good. Elk Grove resident Kevin Claas, 13, incorporated the whole Peanuts gang into a 4x5 foot rug he designed and hooked himself. It is on exhibit through this month at

DuPage Symphony rehearsals open

DuPage Symphony Orchestra is starting rehearsals Tuesday, Sept. 2, for its 23rd concert season which begins in October. Volunteer musicians are needed and if interested are asked to simply come to rehearsals and try out. No auditions are held.

Under direction of Dr. Russel Harvey of Hinsdale, the orchestra will assemble in the band room of Glenbard West High School, Glen Ellyn. Musicians interested may call Arlene Perry, 469-8762, for details.

This season's programs will feature American music in celebration of the Bicentennial, but both American and European composers will be represented. The opener of the first subscription concert, to be held Sunday, Oct. 12, at Downers Grove North High School Auditorium, is Wagner's "Christoph Columbus Overture." Other concerts follow in Glen Ellyn, Elmhurst and Wheaton.

'Where's Charley?' first play for DPTG season

"Where's Charley?", the musical comedy based on the farce "Charley's Aunt," will open Des Plaines Theatre Guild's 30th consecutive season Friday, Sept. 5.

Other performances are scheduled Sept. 6 and the following three Friday and Saturday nights, closing Saturday Sept. 27.

Larry Peterson, Arlington Heights, is producer; Dennis Zacek, Evanston, director; Fran Pitchford, choral director and Lynn Jessen, orchestra director, both of Arlington Heights; Marianne Lubershan, Wilmette, choreographer.

The cast for "Charley" stars Larry McAuley, Chicago, as Charley Wykeham, the Oxford student of the highly proper 1890s who masquerades as his own aunt in order to chaperone himself, his pal and their dates to a party.

JEANNE HAIGHT, Hawthorne Woods, is his date; James Buckley, Chicago, is his pal; and Barbara Gatto, Lincolnshire, the pal's sweetheart. Others in the cast are Jim Beddia, Buffalo Grove; Paula Unell, Glenview; Marshall Kievit, Des Plaines; and Michael Fijolek, Chicago.

The chorus includes Martin Goss, Scott Dermut, Paul Surek and Jean V. Scott, all of Chicago; Vince Bonanata and Myrna Klee, Des Plaines; Lin Gorski, Mount Prospect; Bill Gjerde, Lake Zurich; Irene Noparsak, Evanston; and Lori Lubershan, Wilmette.

TICKETS FOR THIS third Frank Loesser musical at Guild Playhouse, 620 Lee St., Des Plaines, may be ordered by calling the box office, 296-1211, noon to 8 p.m. daily except Sunday.

Season subscriptions for "Where's Charley?" and four other productions in the series may be ordered by writing the Des Plaines Theatre Guild, P.O. Box 84, Des Plaines, 60017.

Cost of the Friday series is $11 and the Saturday series $13.50, if paid before Sept. 1. After that date the price is $13 for Fridays and $15 for Saturdays. Season subscribers should indicate which weekend of the series they prefer.

After Sept. 1, single ticket door sales increase from $3 to $3.50 for Fridays and from $3.50 to $4 for Saturdays.

Ask Andy

Agoutis — toothy cousins to rats

Andy sends a complete 20-volume set of the Merit Students Encyclopedia to Andrew Forestall, 11, of Fredericton, N.B., Canada, for his question:

WHAT IS AN AGOUTI?

Various agoutis belong to the forested regions of Central and South America. They range from Mexico southward to Peru, and at least one species is at home in the West Indies. They are large members of the toothy rodents clan, though quite unlike their pesty cousins, the rats and mice.

As he squats there daintily munching a fallen fruit, you might mistake the average agouti for an oversize guinea pig. But when he takes off, you notice that he has long, slender legs with slim toes that have hard claws, somewhat like miniature hooves. He has no tail, and his 20-inch body is as patchy as a Pinto pony.

The basic color of his coarse hair is dark or tawny brown, depending on his species. His underside is paler, and there is a large patch of golden yellow or bright orange, white or black on his rump, where the hair is longer. His nose is long and pointed and his little leafy ears are tinted with pink.

The agouti is at home on the forest floor, where some experts suspect that he used to hunt by day. He may have become suspicious of humans, who hunt him for meat. In any case, he now dozes through the day in a hollow tree or a shallow burrow. Sometimes he shares his burrow with a friend and covers the top with a clever lattice of leaves and twigs.

He comes forth to forage at dusk and early dawn and sometimes hunts through the night. He gathers leaves and tender greenery, digs up roots and pounces on fallen fruit. From time to time he squats down on his fat haunches to dine, holding the food and peeling the fruit with his dainty hands.

His native woods are patrolled by ocelots and jaguars, hungry for agouti meat. When trouble approaches, he freezes with feet flat for a giant leap and a fast getaway. He takes off at top speed, twisting around obstacles and shrieking at the top of his voice. When he reaches a stream, he may leap 20 feet across it, or he may swim to safety.

The female agouti bears a litter of two to six in May and perhaps another brood in October. The gestation period is about three months, so the baby agoutis are well developed and ready to go. For a few days, the mother keeps the father away from the nest.

In just a few weeks the youngsters are ready to leave home and make their own way in the world.

Andy sends a 7-volume set of the Chronicles of Narnia to Alison Williams, 11, of West Vancouver, B.C., Canada, for her question:

IS IT TRUE THAT A SNAKE EATS ONLY ONCE A YEAR?

As a general rule, snakes and other coldblooded animals need less food than warmblooded birds and animals, who need extra energy to run their thermostats. All snakes are meat eaters and tend to consume enormous meals when they can. The average snake can consume enough calories at one meal to supply his needs for several days and longer in the cool weather.

One would expect the average snake to gorge a huge meal and fast for several days. This sometimes happens, but not always. A small snake may swallow a huge frog and look around for another. Other snakes often fast after a big meal for days or weeks. A giant snake may gulp down a giant-size meal and continue hunting. Or he may fast for a year to more than two years. During the fast he is digesting, but he also may be hibernating or estivating from unfriendly weather conditions. In any case, there are no set rules.

East is typecast as dull but steady

The oldest expert was holding forth. He remarked, "I always shudder when a really bad player is defending against me. His plays are so random that I can't draw real inferences. Give me the predictable man with a little knowledge and he will belong to me."

Today's hand illustrates this. East was a good, steady, unimaginative player.

South won the first trick with dummy's ace of diamonds and led a trump to his 10. West took the ace and

Win at bridge
by Oswald and Jim Jacoby played a second diamond. South ruffed and led a trump to dummy. East discarded a small heart. At this point South knew that predictable East must have started with five hearts. This left just one for West. South was sure to make his contract provided West's singleton heart wasn't the king.

South led a heart, finessed his queen successfully and promptly played out three rounds of clubs.

It didn't matter who won the trick. If West won he would have to give a ruff and discard. If East won he would have to lead from his king of hearts up to dummy's jack or give that same ruff and discard.

Of course, South might have worked this play out anyway. Knowing East's type made it easy.

Big debut of 'Big Eddie' big flop

NEW YORK (UPI) — The cleverest thing about "Big Eddie," who makes his debut Saturday night smoking a cigar in a bubble bath, is the name of the company that packages it — Deez-demanzado Productions.

The show is long on Damon Runyon style Noo Yawk accents and short on funny lines. The first two episodes will appear on CBS-TV on the Saturday 7:30 - 8 p.m. slot; then Sept. 19, "Big Eddie" switches to Fridays, 7 - 7:30 p.m.

Sheldon Leonard stars as Eddie Smith, a tough guy with heart of gold who owns and operates a sports arena.

Sheree North can mangle the language with the best of them and she's a delight to watch — even to listen to, so long as you ignore the dreary dialogue.

Then there are Eddie's two employees, Allan Oppenheimer as Eddie's nervous brother who worries about everything from money to whether whip-lash is catching, and Ralph Wilcox as Raymond McKay, a college-educated black youth who is the only one in the cast who speaks the King's English. Unfortunately, he does it mostly in living rhyme.

The first episode gives Leonard and Miss North a chance to bat the language back and forth as they trade insults in stage New Yorkese. The insults, unfortunately, just aren't that funny — she finds a speech he made boring, he is embarrassed that his wife is still in high school, she is ashamed her husband is a fourth-grade dropout, he says her beam is broadening, and so on.

In addition to performing in this review are MICHAEL GELLMAN, MERT RICH, MIRIAM FLYNN and GEORGE WENDT.

Second City is located at 1816 N. Wells. Parking is available next door.

DAVID LONN, producer and managing director of ARLINGTON PARK THEATRE, had his hands full. Not only did he have to find on short notice a show all ready to go, but also one noteworthy enough to set off the reopening of Arlington Park Theatre. He came up with two.

TAMMY GRIMES and MICHAEL ALLINSON with Sam Gray and Gary Tomlin open Tuesday in "IN PRAISE OF LOVE" by TERENCE RATTIGAN, a love story representing the playwright's first major play in 12 years.

LYNN REDGRAVE will then make her Midwestern debut at Arlington in "THE TWO OF US," previewing Tuesday, Sept. 2. The production is already slated for Broadway this fall.

Directed by her husband, JOHN CLARK, "The Two of Us" consists of four one-acts in which the actress plays a variety of female roles. Each of the four individual playlets also incorporates a different style of theater; comedy, drama, mystery and farce.

Miss Redgrave's most recent film (soon-to-be-released) is "The Happy Hooker," in which she plays the controversial Xaviera Hollander.

Theater patrons having to make up their minds between the two will be hard pressed to decide. Since the the-successfully turn Holiday Inn banquet rooms into legitimate dinner/theater, will be trying out a new location this fall.

The group is moving to AL- LAUER'S FIRESIDE in Northbrook to stage productions in the restaurant's show lounge each Sunday for two performances, 2:30 and 7:30, and Monday at 8:30 p.m. The first play, "STEAMBATH," is slated to open Sept. 21.

It's a great idea. Hosting Pub Playhouse, which has already built a reputation for fine Theater, will add to Allgauer's growing list of entertainment attractions.

And the show lounge, usually dark on Sundays and Mondays, will be put to good use. It is one of the few lounges in the area built to accommodate more than just small combos.

Due to popular demand, "THE MOUSETRAP" at the CHATEAU MYSTERIE THEATRE in Dundee has again been extended, this time for 12 more weeks through Nov. 16. Originally the play was scheduled to close Sunday after its 322nd performance, already a record in the Chicago area.

ater has been closed the past four months, why not splurge and see both? Each show is here for only a week. Ticket prices range from $7 on week nights to $8.50 on Friday and Saturday.

Acting Company comes to Ravinia

The Ravinia Festival will present the City Center Acting Company in a three-week engagement in the Murray Theatre, Aug. 26 through Sept. 14, featuring the Midwest premieres of three full-scale productions in the company's repertory of classical and modern plays.

Scheduled for Ravinia are a new country-folk musical, "The Robber Bridegroom," Aug. 26-31; a new production of "Christopher Marlowe's 'Edward II,'" Sept. 2-7; and George Bernard Shaw's "Arms and The Man," Sept. 9-14.

City Center Acting Company's engagement at Ravinia follows nine weeks of music and ballet in a 12-week season celebrating the 40th annual Ravinia Festival. Each play will be given eight performances Tuesday through Sunday.

John Houseman is founder and artistic director of the Company, the only permanent professional company in the U.S. which tours classic and modern plays in repertory coast to coast.

Judge faces state charge in drunken driving case

by TONI GINETTI
and AL MESSERSCHMIDT

The Illinois Judicial Inquiry Board has filed a complaint against an associate Circuit Court judge charged last year by Schaumburg police with drunken driving and resisting arrest.

Associate Judge Robert A. Sweeney of Barrington was charged by the board Thursday with misconduct in connection with an incident in March 1974 when he allegedly resisted and scuffled with Schaumburg police who stopped him for drunken driving.

The incident was disclosed July 29 by The Herald as part of a six-part series documenting the failure by local courts to enforce drunken driving laws.

The series "Justice and the Drunken Driver," told how Sweeney was acquitted of four charges in connection with the traffic stop incident following a two-car collision on Algonquin Road.

SWEENEY, assigned to the probate division of Circuit Court, was freed on a "technical plea of not guilty" Jan. 6, 1975 and was given a one-year supervision term by Associate Judge Marvin J. Peters.

The ruling by Peters came despite a 1973 order issued by Chief Judge

John S. Boyle that supervision not be used in the disposition of drunken driving cases.

Sweeney also was ordered to take part in Lutheran General Hospital's alcoholic rehabilitation program.

Sweeney's attorneys were State Rep. Eugene Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, and his law partner, John Clarke.

The complaint by the Judicial Inquiry Board was filed Thursday with the Illinois Courts Commission. The commission can hold a hearing on the charge and has the power to suspend or remove Sweeney from the bench if he is convicted.

RICHARD T. DUNN, a Bloomington attorney and chairman of the judicial inquiry board, Thursday said that Sweeney will be served with the complaint and will then have 21 days to respond before a commission hearing is set.

Dunn said Sweeney could be relieved of his duties by Boyle while the matter is pending.

The judicial inquiry board's complaint charged Sweeney resisted arrest and interfered with police investigations of the incident.

Sweeney scuffled with arresting officers during the incident, The Herald disclosed, and refused to take breathalyzer tests in connection with the drunken driving charge.

He also was charged with resisting arrest, disobeying a police officer and driving in the wrong lane.

THE SUPERVISION sentence imposed by Peters came after 10 months of courtroom maneuvering by Sweeney and Schlickman, including efforts to move the case out of suburban court Dist. 3 and into Sweeney's own Dist. 1 in Chicago.

Sweeney also attempted to have suppressed statements he made to Schaumburg police that "he (Sweeney) is a lawyer and a judge and that he could affect the jobs and positions of the Schaumburg police," according to defense motions filed in the case.

The supervision finding enabled Sweeney to keep his driver's license, avoiding the mandatory one-year driving revocation required by Illinois law of those convicted of drunken driving.

The state judicial inquiry board was established by the 1970 state constitution to investigate misconduct by judges.

U.S. to repair 3 rail crossings

Des Plaines officials have been told by the state that three local railroad crossings will be repaired with federal funds in the next year.

Mayor Herbert H. Behrel Thursday said another crossing might be added to the state improvement schedule during late 1976 or early 1977.

Despite the fact that 3 of the 11 crossings slated for improvement in the next year are in the city, Behrel said that timetable may not be fast enough for the city.

"We will never get caught up with the needed improvements at that rate," Behrel said.

Full day of classes to open Dist. 26 year

Students in River Trails Dist. 26 will be in school a full day their first day back Sept. 2.

Regular bus transportation will be provided for all students except kindergartners.

Hot lunches will be served for 45 cents. Milk will be sold for 5 cents a carton. The menu will include hot dogs on buns, pork and beans, catsup, peach halves, cinnamon crisp, cookie and milk.

Parents with questions should call their school principal.

He said the city might be faced with paying for some of the improvements instead of waiting for state or federal funds.

UNDER AN appropriation for railroad crossing repair under the Federal Highway Safety Act, the Chicago area will receive only $350,000 next year. Behrel said local communities might have to ask congressmen to increase the amount of money available for improvements.

The state's priority list includes crossings on the Soo Line track at Golf Road west of Rand Road, the Chicago and North Western Ry. outer belt tracks at River Road and at Rand Road.

Behrel also announced repairs will be made at the Chicago and North Western Ry. crossing at River Road and Miner Street beginning Monday. The mayor said traffic will be reduced to one lane in each direction for about three days while railroad crews repair the crossing.

THE IMPROVEMENT was scheduled for last summer, but a derailment forced the delay.

Behrel also said the railroad plans to repair in October the North Western crossing on Wolf Road north of Thacker Street.

Residents have protested the conditions there for some time. One group picketed the crossing recently in an effort to focus attention on the poor conditions.

UNFURLING A 13-STAR Old Glory in preparation for the Des Plaines Jaycees' Oktoberfest are, from the left, Robert Flood, Gary Cooper, Bob Wahl and Randy O'Dwyer. The three-day fest will be at Lee and Oakton streets, starting at noon today.

Good weather, road conditions during weekend

Traveling through the Midwest should be relatively easy this weekend.

The Chicago Motor Club advises motorists to find alternate routes for the Stevenson Expressway, because of road repairs, and to watch for periodic tie-ups on the Tri-State Tollway while work continues between Dempster Street and Willow Road and south of the city to the Indiana state line.

Otherwise, most Illinois roads will be clear, with the exception of I-55 where roadwork is continuing near Pontiac, Lincoln and Vandalia near St. Louis.

In Indiana, motorists should look for slight bottlenecks on I-65 around Indianapolis due to road work, and state police there advise that U. S. 30 in Dyer, on the Illinois-Indiana line, will be closed until sometime Saturday.

IN WISCONSIN, on I-94 between Portage and the Wisconsin Dells, traffic has been restricted to one lane in each direction, and motorists should watch out for bottlenecks late tonight and Sunday afternoon.

Michigan highways are clear with the possible exception of I-94 west of Jackson and Ann Arbor, where roadwork was reported.

The Iowa Highway Patrol has said highways in that state would be clear sailing all weekend.

The extended outlook for the five-state region through Sunday calls for temperatures in the 90s in Illinois and Indiana, while readings in Wisconsin and Michigan should be in the high 80s.

Showers are possible, however, in northern Wisconsin and Michigan Saturday and Sunday, with temperatures turning cooler in that area toward the end of the weekend.

Government reports Thursday pictured a befuddled U.S. economy recovering from the worst recession since the 1930s but showing signs of a renewal of the runaway inflation that caused the slump in the first place.

There were indications of higher prices, the Agriculture Dept. raised its estimate of the 1975 increase in food prices to 9 per cent from 6 to 8 per cent; the president of Gulf Oil said domestic oil prices would rise

MSD may condemn site for plant

The Metropolitan Sanitary District will condemn a 4.5-acre site adjacent to the O'Hare Water Reclamation Plant property in Des Plaines if negotiations with the owner to purchase the property fail.

The sanitary district board of trustees voted Thursday to authorize its attorneys to begin condemnation proceedings if an agreement cannot be reached.

Sanitary District Atty. Allen S. Lavin said the district has tried unsuccessfully to obtain the land adjacent to Wille Road to make room for the plant.

THE ROAD DIVIDES the plant site in half, and condemnation of the 4.5 acres "would also facilitate the vacating of Wille Road," Lavin said. The plant is planned for the southeast corner of Oakton Street and Elmhurst Road.

Lavin said negotiations to buy the land began in 1971, but the district did not condemn the land then because a proposal to build a hotel on the site would have increased the condemnation price.

Lavin said representatives of a trust that owns the land recently approached the district again to negotiate a sale but so far, there has been no agreement.

In other action at Thursday's sanitary district meeting, the board approved:

- Spending $30,000 for a paging and radio system at the new John E. Egan plant in Schaumburg Township.
- Accepted a permit from the state for a portion of the tunnel system under Weller Creek, west of Mount Prospect Road, and permits for three other sewers under the creek in Mount Prospect.
- Paid $200 to the William L. Kunkei Co. for an easement to build an observation well at River Road and Thacker Street in Des Plaines as part of the tunnel system.
- Paid $25 to the Chicago District Campground Assn. for an easement to build an observation well at Algonquin Road and the Des Plaines River in Des Plaines.
- Paid $300 to the Chicago and North Western Transportation Co. for an easement to construct a drop shaft on the railroad right-of-way near the intersection of Golf Road and Northwest Highway in Maine Township.
- Decided to pay $2,243 annually to Northern Illinois Gas Co. to lease access from Rand Road to a shaft near Rand Road and Gregory Street extended.
- Accepted a state highway permit to allow construction of a 60-inch tunnel west of the intersection of Wolf Road and Rand Road.
- Approved spending $29,000 for repairs of local sewer lines in Mount Prospect owned by the sanitary district.

1974 inflation level that was a major factor in brining about the recession.

- In the Chicago area, the cost of living jumped 1.2 per cent in July, the largest monthly increase in 11 months. The increase helped boost July prices to a level of 8.3 per cent higher than July 1974, the Bureau of Labor statistics announced.
- Prices last month were significantly higher for food — up 2.5 per cent over June — and for transportation, which increased 2.2 per cent.

The cost of medical care in the Chicago area also increased sharply, rising 1.5 per cent. Housing was up two-tenths of 1 per cent and health and recreation costs here rose nine-tenths of 1 per cent.

Prices of clothing dropped seven-tenths of 1 per cent.

Americans still are being squeezed by rising prices and shrinking take-home pay. Labor said real (spendable) income declined 0.5 per cent.

Van Buren Avenue complaints aired

Residents urge traffic changes

Residents of Van Buren Avenue in Des Plaines have made several suggestions for alleviating traffic problems in their neighborhoods.

The residents, living in the 1600 and 1700 blocks of Van Buren, made the suggestions at a public hearing Wednesday night attended by Ald. George Olen, 2nd, and Robert Sullivan, 2nd.

The primary reason for the meeting was to discuss complaints that motorists are using Van Buren between River Road and White Street to bypass traffic congestion on Algonquin Road. The residents said the nonlocal traffic using the street constitutes a hazard and a nuisance to residents in the area.

The residents discussed several possible solutions to the traffic problems before making their recommendations.

MOST OF THE residents agreed the most effective solution to the problem would be to prohibit eastbound traffic on Van Buren Avenue from turning right onto River Road between 7 to 9 a.m. and 4 to 6 p.m.

The sign would discourage rush-hour motorists from using Van Buren, because they would be unable to turn onto southbound River Road. Olen said he thinks the suggestion is an "excellent idea" and will recommend it to the city council.

Some residents also favor prohibiting northbound traffic on River Road from turning left onto Van Buren. Olen said, however, the state may not allow the city to erect the sign. He added prohibiting the left turn onto Van Buren would prompt drivers to turn on Whitcomb Avenue, creating a similar problem on that street.

As a way of eliminating congestion on Algonquin Road, the residents recommended left-turn arrows in all directions at River Road and Algonquin Road. Most also favor widening of Algonquin Road so it can accommodate more traffic.

The residents rejected 20- to 6 a suggestion that Van Buren Avenue be made a one-way street eastbound. Residents said while the move would reduce traffic, it also would encourage motorists to drive faster.

SOME RESIDENTS also called for reduced speed limits in the area, while others asked for better enforcement of existing traffic laws.

Another suggestion is to prohibit westbound traffic on Algonquin Road from making a right turn on the red light at River Road. Most of the recommendations made by the residents will have to be approved by the state as well as the city.

Finally, the residents overwhelmingly rejected a suggestion that overnight parking be prohibited on Van Buren Avenue. A city ordinance prohibits overnight parking on city streets, but it is seldom enforced.

New complaint ordered in Rand Park lights suit

A Circuit Court Judge has ordered attorneys, representing Des Plaines residents who seek to block the use of a new set of lights for a softball field at Rand Park to file an amended complaint.

Judge Walter Dahl ordered the new complaint after Charles Hug, attorney for the Des Plaines Park District, argued that the lawsuit was filed prematurely.

The residents had filed suit, complaining the lights would be a nuisance, before the lights were installed fully.

CRAIG ANDERSON of the law firm of Jacobson and Brandvik Thursday said he has 28 days to file the amended complaint, and the park district has another 28 days after that time to answer the new complaint.

Anderson said the original suit was written in the future tense, suggesting the lights would be a nuisance.

"We will amend the complaint, but nevertheless, all of the things we said about the noise, illegally parked cars, litter and broken bottles have all occurred," Anderson said.

Hug said Judge Dahl ordered the complaint be more specific and list occasions when the lights were a nuisance.

He added the city noise ordinance does pertain to the park district. The Herald had reported incorrectly the park district's original motion to dismiss the suit charged the district did not have to comply with the noise ordinance.

No new court date has been set to review the amended complaint or to hear arguments on other points in the suit.

Dist. 59 to get outside advice on management

by JUDY JOBBITT

Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 will be analyzed by an outside firm to get suggestions for improving its management structure.

The board of education approved hiring Peter Warner Associates to conduct a study of the district's management which will cost $2,300 to $2,500. The firm conducted the recent management study of the Northwest Education Cooperative and Northwest Suburban Special Education Organization.

"I think it will make us a lot more efficient," Supt. Roger Bardwell said. "A new administration means new relationships need to be developed."

Bardwell, appointed superintendent in June, said the study was discussed when he was being considered for the position last spring.

He said it is difficult for "those inside to see all the problems" and that he wants to develop the proper "linkages between the board, the superintendent and the principals." He said the study should save the district money over time because of improvements that should result from the study.

PETER WARNER AND Fredric Genek, who will conduct the study, will first meet with the district's personnel and board members and outline the current management structure. Nine management areas will be detailed and recommendations made for improving these areas.

A seminar for the school board will be held Sept. 13 to outline the proposed management methods for the district. A final report will be presented to the district after the seminar.

Bardwell has said he favors a decentralized management approach which would give individual schools more autonomy.

Former Supt. James Ervill, who was ousted last year from the superintendent's position, held tight reins over the individual schools. Bardwell has said he thinks schools should reflect the principal and community rather than the central administration.

Parks to control noise at pavilion rock concerts

The Des Plaines Park District has taken steps to head off further complaints that might result from rock concerts at the Lake Park Memorial Band Pavilion.

David Markworth, superintendent of recreation, Thursday said park district officials met with Mayor Herbert Behrel and Police Chief Arthur Hintz after the city received complaints from several residents about noise levels at an Aug. 9 concert.

He said officials have decided to end future concerts by 9 p.m. and to control the level of sound so residents are not disturbed.

"We feel because we are in a residential neighborhood, we should be out of there by 9 p.m.," Markworth said. "From now on, we also will control the volume instead of allowing the group to set it."

He said the Aug. 9 concert was the only concert which resulted in complaints from residents. "I think we caught the situation before we had any real problems," he said.

Two events are scheduled this weekend at the pavilion, Lee and Howard streets. A rock-jazz band will play at 7:30 p.m. Sunday, and at 3 p.m. Sunday, Ella Jenkins, a folk singer will perform.

No concert tonight; Saturday's still on

Des Plaines Park District officials Thursday announced there will be no concert tonight at the Lake Park Memorial Pavilion.

A theater group from Bloomington was scheduled to perform, but park officials indicated the group disbanded.

The concert scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Saturday featuring the rock band "Forest" will be held. The concert will end at 9:30 p.m.

TIMES MAY BE ROUGH but it's still a dog's world at several Northwest suburban banks. Many drive-up windows already offer suckers for children, but now they're catering to the canines too — by handing out dog biscuits as well as lollipops.

Rover cashes in on premiums

Family dogs banking on business

by LAURA SCHIMLBACH

Three-year-old Buffy knows a nice bank when she sees one. As the car pulls up, Buffy's nose is pressed against the window — eagerly awaiting the teller's friendly smile and the treat that comes back with it. Buffy is the family poodle, and several local banks are catering to her (and her mistress' money) by handing out dog biscuits for the canines as well as lollipops for the kids.

A dog biscuit survey was met with uncontrollable laughter from some banks and dead seriousness from others, but almost all agreed that if they saw a need for the service, they would cheerfully comply.

THOSE BANKS THAT have started the service did so for various reasons — some noticed other drive-up windows catering to the canines and decided to get into the act, and others took the advice of dog-loving tellers who knew a selling point when they saw one. The Arlington Heights Bank and Trust has been passing out dog biscuits for five years. The move came after a guard realized that "those dogs really came to depend on him for their treats," said Jeanne McGeehan, public relations officer.

"The dogs are just like the kids," she continued. "They expect their treat and they don't stop barking until the envelope comes back to the car with it inside."

Ms. McGeehan estimated the bank goes through a pound of biscuits a week at each window, and said the only raised eyebrows have come from check out lines at local supermarkets.

DOLING OUT DOG biscuits with $10's and $20's can be "really weird," said Kendra Wright, Des Plaines National Bank's officer in charge of drive-ups. Customer reactions have ranged from surprise at the start of the service five years ago to complete acceptance now, she said.

"Let's face it, most people out here treat their dogs like members of the family," she snickered. "The only problems we've had have been some real high-class dogs that won't eat the biscuits. But it's a lot of fun — many of the tellers know the dogs and make them speak before they'll send out the biscuits."

Although the Buffalo Grove National Bank hasn't gone to the dogs yet, the move to Milk Bones is imminent, said president Jack Sharp.

"It's great because it keeps those kids and dogs quiet when the housewife is trying to think," Sharp said.

NOT ALL BANKS are aware of Rover's pull in the area of "family finances. An unidentified spokeswoman for Citizens Bank, Park Ridge, giggled loudly for 20 seconds before she was able to catch her breath and retort, "we only give them to the dogs that drive up!"

"That's got to be the funniest thing I ever heard of," a woman laughed at the First National Bank of Mount Prospect. But not so funny to her bosses — the bank has been dishing out biscuits ever since a German shepherd stole the tellers' hearts four years ago.

Isn't a pound of dog biscuits a week a little extravagant for a financial institution in the midst of a recession?

"Well, I've thought of that myself," Buffalo Grove's Sharp admitted. "But it's the small things that give people a good impression."

And at least one bank, the pooches are faring better than the kids. Ms. Wright at Des Plaines National said her bank has discontinued suckers for children because "they drool all over their clean clothes." But what about crumbs from the dog biscuits? "Oh they usually eat them in one bite, don't they?" she giggled.

Schools project $567,137 deficit in education fund

East Maine Dist. 63 is projecting a deficit of $567,137 in the education and building funds by the 1977-78 school year.

The deficit was included in a five-year long range financial report presented to the board of education Tuesday. The board plans to review the report and hold public hearings this fall.

The administration used the latest figures available for revenue and expenditure projections, said James Bowen, business manager. "If any of these assumptions are incorrect for any number of reasons, then those figures will be off," he said.

THE DISTRICT anticipates a deficit of $81,315 in the building fund this year with revenue estimated at $664,944 and expenditures at $746,259. The district also had a cash balance of $40,115 at the end of last year.

The district projects that the building fund will continue to be in a deficit spending situation for the next five years with the fund reaching a deficit of more than $1 million by the 1979-80 school year.

The education fund is not expected to have a deficit until the 1977-78 school year when a deficit of $123,054 is projected. That deficit is expected to increase to $1.7 million in the 1978-79 school year and to $4 million by the 1979-80 school year.

The combined deficit of these two funds is expected to reach more than $5 million within the next five years.

THE FIGURING revenue, the administration added $2 million to the district's assessed valuation each year except for the 1977-78 school year when it is increased by $5 million because of the quadrennial reassessment.

A 10 per cent inflation factor also was used for each year after 1975-76 for non-salary expenses. The expenditure figures also include a 5 per cent annual salary increase and a reduction in staff by 31 teachers by the 1979-80 school year.

The administration used enrollment projections figured earlier this year which shows continued declining enrollment over the next five years. Enrollment is estimated at 5,652 students this year and is expected to drop to 4,798 students by the 1979-80 school year.

Declining enrollment is one reason for the projected decrease in state aid over the next five years with state aid expected to drop from this year's $2.7 million to $1.77 million by the 1979-80 school year.

The figures do not reflect the cuts in education funding approved by Gov. Daniel Walker. If the cuts stand as Walker signed them, projected revenues would drop by $102,957.

Applications sought for schools caucus

The East Maine Township General Caucus is accepting applications from organizations that want to be represented in this year's caucus.

The caucus looks for and endorses candidates to the East Maine Dist. 63 and High School Dist. 207 school boards in the April election. It also selects delegates to the Oakton Community College convention which serves candidates for the board of trustees.

Organizations can have two delegates and two alternates in the caucus. For an organization to be represented this year, at least one delegate must attend the Oct. 14 meeting at 7:30 p.m. at Gemini Junior High School, 8555 N. Greenwood, Niles.

More information can be obtained by contacting Barbara Deckowitz, 9000 Terrace Pl., Des Plaines, 296-6999.

Special events scheduled in fall for handicapped

A number of new programs and special events have been planned for this fall by the Maine-Niles Assn. of Recreation for the Handicapped.

The group will form Girl Scout, Boy Scout and Cub Scout troops.

The association will offer a special hayride in September; a tour of the Beltone Corp.; another field trip to Springfield and a shopping trip to Chicago.

A mini-day camp also is scheduled for Dec. 22-31. Football games, a family skate night and Halloween and Christmas parties also are on the fall schedule.

Registration for the 10-week fall session will be from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sept. 8-12 at the association's office at the Devonshire Center, 4400 Grove St., Skokie.

Additional information about the association and its fall program can be obtained by calling 674-5512.

Le Titi De Paris burns with arson suspected

by STIRLING MORITA

Le Titi De Paris in Palatine Township, the second fashionable, French restaurant in the area gutted by fire in a month, was the apparent victim of arson early Thursday, fire officials said.

State fire marshals were called in to join the Long Grove Fire Protection District and Sheriff's police in an arson probe after a five-gallon gasoline can was found in front of the burning building, 2275 Rand Rd.

Another popular French restaurant, Le Francois, Wheeling, was destroyed July 18 after an electrical short circuit touched off a fire.

Long Grove fire officials said damage to Le Titi De Paris was estimated to be about $100,000. The fire was discovered about 4 a.m. by Sheriff's police, responding to an activated burglar alarm at the restaurant.

MEL TOWNSEN, chief engineer for the fire district, said when police arrived at the scene, the front of the one-story building was engulfed in flames. Long Grove fire units were dispatched, and firefighters could see the fire from their station, Townner said.

Townner said someone broke the window to the front dining area and apparently tossed gasoline into the building and set fire to it. Three Long Grove units were dispatched, and the fire was quickly extinguished. A Palatine unit assisted, and a Buffalo Grove fire crew stood by at the Long Grove station.

Paul Christian, Palatine, the restaurant owner, said he did not know who would want to set fire to his restaurant and that he had not received any threats.

Christian had established a high-quality reputation for his restaurant, which opened about three years ago.

As he swept wet debris from the kitchen area, Christian said he would rebuild the structure and continue to serve French cuisine.

Judge faces state charge in drunken driving case

by TONI GINETTI
and AL MESSERSCHMIDT

The Illinois Judicial Inquiry Board has filed a complaint against an associate Circuit Court judge charged last year by Schaumburg police with drunken driving and resisting arrest.

Associate Judge Robert A. Sweeney of Barrington was charged by the board Thursday with misconduct in connection with an incident in March 1974 when he allegedly resisted and scuffled with Schaumburg police who stopped him for drunken driving.

The incident was disclosed July 29 by The Herald as part of a six-part series documenting the failure by local courts to enforce drunken driving laws.

The series "Justice and the Drunken Driver," told how Sweeney was acquitted of four charges in connection with the traffic stop incident following a two-car collision on Algonquin Road.

SWEENEY, assigned to the probate division of Circuit Court, was freed on a "technical plea of not guilty" Jan. 6, 1975 and was given a one-year supervision term by Associate Judge Marvin J. Peters.

The ruling by Peters came despite a 1973 order issued by Chief Judge

John S. Boyle that supervision not be used in the disposition of drunken driving cases.

Sweeney also was ordered to take part in Lutheran General Hospital's alcoholic rehabilitation program.

Sweeney's attorneys were State Rep. Eugene Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, and his law partner, John Clarke.

The complaint by the Judicial Inquiry Board was filed Thursday with the Illinois Courts Commission. The commission can hold a hearing on the charge and has the power to suspend or remove Sweeney from the bench if he is convicted.

RICHARD T. DUNN, a Bloomington attorney and chairman of the Judicial Inquiry board, Thursday said that Sweeney will be served with the complaint and will then have 21 days to respond before a commission hearing is set.

Dunn said Sweeney could be relieved of his duties by Boyle while the matter is pending.

The Judicial Inquiry board's complaint charged Sweeney resisted arrest and interfered with police investigations of the incident.

Sweeney scuffled with arresting officers during the incident, The Herald disclosed, and refused to take breathalyzer tests in connection with the drunken driving charge.

He also was charged with resisting arrest, disobeying a police officer and driving in the wrong lane.

THE SUPERVISION sentence imposed by Peters came after 10 months of courtroom maneuvering by Sweeney and Schlickman, including efforts to move the case out of suburban court Dist. 3 and into Sweeney's own Dist. 1 in Chicago.

Sweeney also attempted to have suppressed statements he made to Schaumburg police that "he (Sweeney) is a lawyer and a judge and that he could affect the jobs and positions of the Schaumburg police," according to defense motions filed in the case.

The supervision finding enabled Sweeney to keep his driver's license, avoiding the mandatory one-year driving revocation required by Illinois law of those convicted of drunken driving.

The state judicial inquiry board was established by the 1970 state constitution to investigate misconduct by judges.

Township weighs police tax unit

Wheeling Township officials will consider establishing a special police protection taxing district for unincorporated areas, including Prospect Heights, at a special meeting Sept. 2.

Residents of the Prospect Heights area, through the Prospect Heights Improvement Assn. (PHIA), have requested formation of the special district because of increased vandalism, malicious mischief and burglaries.

The PHIA has said Sheriff's Police patrols in the area are "inadequate," and police officials have responded they lack sufficient funds to assign more than two squad cars to the area.

Richard Wolf, PHIA president, said it will cost an estimated $122,000 annually to hire two off-duty Sheriff's policemen to patrol the area on a 24-hour daily basis. Wolf said the annual cost to homeowners in the special tax district would be about $24 per $10,000 assessed valuation.

A SURVEY, requesting unincorporated area residents' opinions about a special taxing district to pay for added police protection, was published recently in local newspapers and the Prospect Heights Town Bulletin.

"We have received more than 200 replies to our special survey so far, with the returns running three to one in favor of the special taxing district," Wolf said.

Township Auditor William Reid said the special 7:30 p.m. Sept. 2 meeting will be before the regularly scheduled township board meeting.

"We have a Sept. 9 deadline for filing our budget ordinance," he said.

Reid stressed the special taxing district, if created, would apply to all unincorporated areas in the township, not just Prospect Heights. "The opinion of our attorney is it would have to be all of the unincorporated area," Reid said.

"ALL CITIZENS of the township will have an opportunity to present information at the special meeting," Reid said. He added the most the township could levy would be $100 per $10,000 assessed valuation.

Reid said about 13,000 residents of the total estimated 21,000 unincorporated township residents live in the area designated as Prospect Heights.

The special meeting will be at the township hall, 1818 E. Northwest Hwy., Arlington Heights.

Good weather, road conditions during weekend

Traveling through the Midwest should be relatively easy this weekend.

The Chicago Motor Club advises motorists to find alternate routes for the Stevenson Expressway, because of road repairs, and to watch for periodic tie-ups on the Tri-State Tollway while work continues between Dempster Street and Willow Road and south of the city to the Indiana state line.

Otherwise, most Illinois roads will be clear, with the exception of I-55 where roadwork is continuing near Pontiac, Lincoln and Vandalia near St. Louis.

In Indiana, motorists should look for slight bottlenecks on I-65 around Indianapolis due to road work, and state police there advise that U. S. 30 in Dyer, on the Illinois-Indiana line, will be closed until sometime Saturday.

IN WISCONSIN, on I-94 between Portage and the Wisconsin Dells, traffic has been restricted to one lane in each direction, and motorists should watch out for bottlenecks late tonight and Sunday afternoon.

Michigan highways are clear with the possible exception of I-94 west of Jackson and Ann Arbor, where roadwork was reported.

The Iowa Highway Patrol has said highways in that state would be clear sailing all weekend.

The extended outlook for the five-state region through Sunday calls for temperatures in the 90s in Illinois and Indiana, while readings in Wisconsin and Michigan should be in the high 80s.

Showers are possible, however, in northern Wisconsin and Michigan Saturday and Sunday, with temperatures turning cooler in that area toward the end of the weekend.

SHEPENE AZARBARZIN, 5, looks a little apprehensive as she maintains a floating position in a learn-to-swim class sponsored by the Wheeling Park District. The preschool class ends today. The park district is preparing its fall activities schedule.

Controllers rap Palwaukee security

Air traffic controllers at Palwaukee Airport have joined in the criticism of the airport's lack of security, which allows pedestrian and vehicle traffic in aircraft movement areas.

Robert Mark, president of Local 363 of the Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization, said air traffic controllers at Palwaukee maintain records of incidents in which cars and pedestrians stray onto runways or taxiways. From April through July, 551 such incidents were recorded, Mark said.

"It's only a matter of time before we have an accident," Mark said Thursday. "We have been promised action, but we are still waiting for it to come."

PATCO's criticism of safety measures at the airport came in response to a report issued last month by the Aviation Safety Institute (ASI) which cited the same security problems.

"Palwaukee has very poor airport security procedures," the ASI report said. "Aircraft have had close calls on numerous occasions."

THE OHIO-BASED institute, an independent safety research organization, cited examples of trucks, motorcycles, cars and small children crossing the airplane movement areas at Palwaukee. One example said a small girl was walking across an active runway with a bicycle which had a flat tire.

Mark said the ASI report was prompted by complaints from air traffic controllers at Palwaukee, who send in regular situation reports to the institute on discrepancies regarding equipment, procedures or facilities.

Mark, who represents the airport's 10 air traffic controllers, said he has met with Charles Priester, airport manager, and Federal Aviation Administration officials to discuss the problem. PATCO also has sent Priester and the FAA documentation of the group's charges of lack of security.

PATCO has suggested the airport at least install warning signs to stop persons from entering areas where planes land, take-off or taxi, Mark said. He added fencing the area is a good idea, but if the cost is prohibitive, as Priester contends, sign placement is the minimum that should be done.

Mark said PATCO's suggestions seem to have fallen on deaf ears. "All we hear are replies that something will be done, but we've been hearing that for the past five months," he said.

MARK SAID PRIESTER and the FAA have denied receiving PATCO reports on the incidents of non-aircraft traffic at the airport.

Priester could not be reached for comment Thursday, but at the time the ASI report was issued, Priester challenged the data as giving a distorted picture.

"The safety institute is not aware of Palwaukee and the problems here," he said. "They make it appear like nothing is being done."

Priester added keeping unauthorized persons off the airport grounds is a problem. "There's nothing you can do. That's the problem," he said.

PATCO, HOWEVER, is not satisfied with Priester's statements. In a letter to the airport manager, one air traffic controller said, "I must admit that your replies probably look good in print to the general public, but from the tower they do not. What we in the control tower are saying is that if you are working on the problem, your efforts are not visible to the people that have to work here."

Mark said the problem has caused the morale of tower workers to be affected. He said the public does not realize the accident potential at the airport, which handles an average of 1,000 to 1,100 take-offs and landings per day.

"Complexity-wise, Palwaukee is not as easy an airport to run as people may think," he said.

Mark said PATCO is waiting for Priester to come through on his commitment to install more warning signs at the airport. He said PATCO intends to keep meeting with Priester and FAA officials until safety conditions at the airport are improved.

Inflation refuses to go away

by United Press International

Government reports Thursday pictured a befuddled U.S. economy recovering from the worst recession since the 1930s but showing signs of a renewal of the runaway inflation that caused the slump in the first place.

There were indications of higher prices, the Agriculture Dept. raised its estimate of the 1975 increase in food prices to 9 per cent from 6 to 8 per cent; the president of Gulf Oil said domestic oil prices would rise

"rather quickly" if price controls were removed; and Jones & Laughlin said it planned to match price hikes of other steelmakers.

For the economy in general, these conclusions were apparent:

- Double-digit inflation returned in July, if only temporarily, after dropping to a low of 5 per cent in April, May and June. The Labor Dept.'s Consumer Price Index soared 1.2 per cent or 14.4 per cent on an adjusted annual basis, matching the 1973 and 1974 inflation level that was a major factor in brining about the recession.

- In the Chicago area, the cost of living jumped 1.2 per cent in July, the largest monthly increase in 11 months. The increase helped boost July prices to a level of 8.3 per cent higher than July 1974, the Bureau of Labor statistics announced.
- Prices last month were significantly higher for food — up 2.5 per cent over June — and for transportation, which increased 2.2 per cent.

The cost of medical care in the Chicago area also increased sharply, rising 1.5 per cent. Housing was up two-tenths of 1 per cent and health and recreation costs here rose nine-tenths of 1 per cent.

Prices of clothing dropped seven-tenths of 1 per cent.

Americans still are being squeezed by rising prices and shrinking take-home pay. Labor said real (spendable) income declined 0.5 per cent.

"WHY DID IT HAPPEN?" That is what George Fernandez, busboy for Le Titi De Paris, seems to be thinking while studying the remains of a fire at the Palatine Township restaurant Thursday.

Teachers, board hopeful agreement to come soon

by MARILYN McDONALD
Teachers and board members in Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 hope to negotiate a new contract before school starts Aug. 29, but the possibility of a strike remains.

Negotiators held their 11th meeting Wednesday and planned a marathon bargaining session for Monday. All district teachers are scheduled to meet next Wednesday to vote on a tentative contract. If one has been prepared, or to decide their next step if one has not.

"We've had a settlement (before school starts) as our goal all along," Hugh Brady, a teacher negotiator, said. "I suspect we'll know by the meeting on the 25th. We're scheduled to go into the night at that session," he added. "We hope to come out with a settlement."

Although both sides have met steadily through the summer with no signs of talks breaking down, Brady said the possibility of a teachers' strike remains.

"That's one of the options we might consider. It's conceivable. The general membership could say 'no contract, no work,'" Brady said.

BOTH SIDES HAVE reported little about the negotiations thus far because of a mutually observed gag rule.

ROADBLOCK OF DIRT still bars passage to Brian Lane in Wheeling for residents of five houses on the street. Legal action is being sought by the homeowners to force Lambert Domas, owner of the property, to remove the debris. The roadblock prohibits access to Dundee Road from Brian.

Brian exit to Dundee still blocked by debris

A pile of dirt and debris still blocks the Brian Lane exit to Dundee Road in Wheeling, and an attorney representing homeowners in the area said legal action to remove the blockade may come next week.

Robert Landsman, an attorney representing residents who live in the five houses on Brian Lane affected by the roadblock, said filing of the lawsuit is imminent.

"I can't give you a definite date, because I'm still reviewing the matter," Landsman said Thursday. "I'm working on it as fast as I can, and I may know something more definite early next week," he said.

THE BLOCKADE was put up by Lambert Domas, owner of the property. The road leading to the Dundee Road exit is a private drive, but residents of the area have used the road regularly for the last 25 years.

Domas could not be reached for comment Thursday, and residents said he has not explained to them why he erected the blockade. Mona Olson, 71 Brian Ln., said Domas has refused to talk to the neighbors or Landsman about the matter.

The roadblock has been up for about five weeks, and Mrs. Olson said during that time, residents have been using Wolf Road as an access route to get to and from their homes.

The site has been proposed for development as a Ponderosa Steak House.

LANDSMAN is trying to determine if easement rights were written into the deed to the land, in which case Domas would be prohibited from blocking the road even though he owns the land. The village is powerless to act against Domas, because the road is a private drive; Village Mgr. George Passolt said.

Mrs. Olson said the fact residents have used the road regularly also may serve as a legal precedent to force Domas to remove the debris.

Landsman said he believes the homeowners have a good chance to win legal approval to get the roadblock removed.

TIMES MAY BE ROUGH but it's still a dog's world at several Northwest suburban banks.

Many drive-up windows already offer suckers for children, but now they're catering to the canines too — by handing out dog biscuits as well as lollipops.

Rover cashes in on premiums

Banks offer dog biscuits to attract (Fi) dough

by LAURA SCHMALBACH

Three-year-old Buffy knows a nice bank when she sees one.

As the car pulls up, Buffy's nose is pressed against the window — eagerly awaiting the teller's friendly smile and the treat that comes back with it.

Buffy is the family poodle, and several local banks are catering to her (and her mistress' money) by handing out dog biscuits for the canines as well as lollipops for the kids.

A dog biscuit survey was met with uncontrollable laughter from some banks and dead seriousness from others, but almost all agreed that if they saw a need for the service, they would cheerfully comply.

THOSE BANKS THAT have started the service did so for various reasons — some noticed other drive-up windows catering to the canines and decided to get into the act, and others took the advice of dog-loving tellers who knew a selling point when they saw one.

The Arlington Heights Bank and Trust has been passing out dog biscuits for five years. The move came after a guard realized that "those dogs really came to depend on him for their treats," said Joanne McGeehan, public relations officer.

"The dogs are just like the kids," she continued. "They expect their treat and they don't stop barking until the envelope comes back to the car with it inside."

Ms. McGeehan estimated the bank goes through a pound of biscuits a week at each window, and said the only raised eyebrows have come from check out lines at local supermarkets.

"Naturally the dogs aren't going to deposit with us," she added, "but the people just love it!"

DOLING OUT DOG biscuits with $10's and $20's can be "really weird," said Kendra Wright, Des Plaines National Bank's officer in charge of drive-ups. Customer reactions have ranged from surprise at the start of the service five years ago to complete acceptance now, she said.

"Let's face it, most people out here treat their dogs like members of the family," she snickered. "The only problems we've had have been some real high-class dogs that won't eat the biscuits. But it's a lot of fun — many of the tellers know the dogs and make them speak before they'll send out the biscuits."

Although the Buffalo Grove National Bank hasn't gone to the dogs yet, the move to Milk Bones is imminent, said president Jack Sharp.

"It's great because it keeps those kids and dogs quiet when the housewife is trying to think," Sharp said.

NOT ALL BANKS are aware of Rover's pull in the area of family finances. An unidentified spokeswoman for Citizens Bank, Park Ridge, giggled loudly for 20 seconds before she was able to catch her breath and retort, "we only give them to the dogs that drive up!"

"That's got to be the funniest thing I ever heard of," a woman laughed at the First National Bank of Mount Prospect. But not so funny to her boss

— the bank has been dishing out biscuits ever since a German shepherd stole the tellers' hearts four years ago.

Isn't a pound of dog biscuits a week a little extravagant for a financial institution in the midst of a recession? "Well, I've thought of that myself," Buffalo Grove's Sharp admitted. "But it's the small things that give people a good impression."

And at least one bank, the pooches are faring better than the kids. Ms. Wright at Des Plaines National said her bank has discontinued suckers for children because "they drool all over their clean clothes." But what about crumbs from the dog biscuits? "Oh they usually eat them in one bite, don't they?" she giggled.

Le Titi De Paris burns with arson suspected

by STIRLING MORITA

Le Titi De Paris in Palatine Township, the second fashionable, French restaurant in the area gutted by fire in a month, was the apparent victim of arson early Thursday, fire officials said.

State fire marshals were called in to join the Long Grove Fire Protection District and Sheriff's police in an arson probe after a five-gallon gasoline can was found in front of the burning building, 2275 Rand Rd.

Another popular French restaurant, Le Francals, Wheeling, was destroyed

July 18 after an electrical short circuit touched off a fire.

Long Grove fire officials said damage to Le Titi De Paris was estimated to be about $100,000. The fire was discovered about 4 a.m. by Sheriff's police, responding to an activated burglar alarm at the restaurant.

MEL TOWNER, chief engineer for the fire district, said when police arrived at the scene, the front of the one-story building was engulfed in flames. Long Grove fire units were dispatched, and firefighters could see the fire from their station, Towner said.

Towner said someone broke the window to the front dining area and apparently tossed gasoline into the building and set fire to it. Three Long Grove units were dispatched, and the fire was quickly extinguished. A Palatine unit assisted, and a Buffalo Grove fire crew stood by at the Long Grove station.

Paul Christian, Palatine, the restaurant owner, said he did not know who would want to set fire to his restaurant and that he had not received any threats.

Christian had established a high-quality reputation for his restaurant, which opened about three years ago.

As he swept wet debris from the kitchen area, Christian said he would rebuild the structure and continue to serve French cuisine.

"I've got a feeling something can be done," Fitzgerald said, mentioning the possibilities of grazing them on farmland or other property.

BANGHART said the forest preserve would be a "fabulous spot for the buffalo," adding they would need about five acres in which to roam.

Fitzgerald said he will bring the idea before village officials at the next meeting of the president's roundtable Sept. 22, and he asked Banghart to return and discuss the project then.

Township weighs police tax unit

Wheeling Township officials will consider establishing a special police protection taxing district for unincorporated areas, including Prospect Heights, at a special meeting Sept. 2.

Residents of the Prospect Heights area, through the Prospect Heights Improvement Assn. (PHIA), have requested formation of the special district because of increased vandalism, malicious mischief and burglaries.

The PHIA has said Sheriff's Police patrols in the area are "inadequate," and police officials have responded they lack sufficient funds to assign more than two squad cars to the area.

Richard Wolf, PHIA president, said it will cost an estimated $122,000 annually to hire two off-duty Sheriff's policemen to patrol the area on a 24-hour daily basis. Wolf said the annual cost to homeowners in the special tax district would be about $24 per $10,000 assessed valuation.

A SURVEY, requesting unincorporated area residents' opinions about a special taxing district to pay for added police protection, was published recently in local newspapers and the Prospect Heights Town Bulletin.

"We have received more than 200 replies to our special survey so far, with the returns running three to one in favor of the special taxing district," Wolf said.

Township Auditor William Reid said the special 7:30 p.m. Sept. 2 meeting will be before the regularly scheduled township board meeting.

"We have a Sept. 8 deadline for filing our budget ordinance," he said.

Reid stressed the special taxing district, if created, would apply to all unincorporated areas in the township, not just Prospect Heights. "The opinion of our attorney is it would have to be all of the unincorporated area," Reid said.

"ALL CITIZENS of the township will have an opportunity to present information at the special meeting," Reid said. He added the most the township could levy would be $100 per $10,000 assessed valuation.

Reid said about 13,000 residents of the total estimated 21,000 unincorporated township residents live in the area designated as Prospect Heights.

The special meeting will be at the township hall, 1818 E. Northwest Hwy., Arlington Heights.

Teachers, board hopeful agreement to come soon

by MARILYN McDONALD

Teachers and board members in Wheeling-Prospect Heights Dist. 21 hope to negotiate a new contract before school starts Aug. 25, but the possibility of a strike remains.

Negotiators held their 11th meeting Wednesday and planned a marathon bargaining session for Monday. All district teachers are scheduled to meet next Wednesday to vote on a tentative contract. If one has been prepared, or to decide their next step if one has not.

"We've had a settlement (before school starts) as our goal all along," Hugh Brady, a teacher negotiator, said. "I suspect we'll know by the meeting on the 25th. We're scheduled to go into the night at that session," he added. "We hope to come out with a settlement."

Although both sides have met steadily through the summer with no signs of talks breaking down, Brady said the possibility of a teachers' strike remains.

"That's one of the options we might consider. It's conceivable. The general membership could say 'no contract, no work,'" Brady said.

BOTH SIDES HAVE reported little about the negotiations thus far because of a mutually observed gag rule.

Judge faces state charge in drunken driving case

by TONI GINNETTI
and AL MESSERSCHMIDT

The Illinois Judicial Inquiry Board has filed a complaint against an associate Circuit Court judge charged last year by Schaumburg police with drunken driving and resisting arrest.

Associate Judge Robert A. Sweeney of Barrington was charged by the board Thursday with misconduct in connection with an incident in March 1974 when he allegedly resisted and scuffled with Schaumburg police who stopped him for drunken driving.

The incident was disclosed July 29 by The Herald as part of a six-part series documenting the failure by local courts to enforce drunken driving laws.

The series "Justice and the Drunken Driver," told how Sweeney was acquitted of four charges in connection with the traffic stop incident following a two-car collision on Algonquin Road.

SWEENEY, assigned to the probate division of Circuit Court, was freed on a "technical plea of not guilty" Jan. 6, 1975 and was given a one-year supervision term by Associate Judge Marvin J. Peters.

The ruling by Peters came despite a 1973 order issued by Chief Judge

John S. Boyle that supervision not be used in the disposition of drunken driving cases.

Sweeney also was ordered to take part in Lutheran General Hospital's alcoholic rehabilitation program.

Sweeney's attorneys were State Rep. Eugene Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, and his law partner, John Clarke.

The complaint by the Judicial Inquiry Board was filed Thursday with the Illinois Courts Commission. The commission can hold a hearing on the charge and has the power to suspend or remove Sweeney from the bench if he is convicted.

RICHARD T. DUNN, a Bloomington attorney and chairman of the judicial inquiry board, Thursday said that Sweeney will be served with the complaint and will then have 21 days to respond before a commission hearing is set.

Dunn said Sweeney could be relieved of his duties by Boyle while the matter is pending.

The judicial inquiry board's complaint charged Sweeney resisted arrest and interfered with police investigations of the incident.

Sweeney scuffled with arresting officers during the incident, The Herald disclosed, and refused to take breathalyzer tests in connection with the drunken driving charge.

He also was charged with resisting arrest, disobeying a police officer and driving in the wrong lane.

THE SUPERVISION sentence imposed by Peters came after 10 months of courtroom maneuvering by Sweeney and Schlickman, including efforts to move the case out of suburban court Dist. 3 and into Sweeney's own Dist. 1 in Chicago.

Sweeney also attempted to have suppressed statements he made to Schaumburg police that "he (Sweeney) is a lawyer and a judge and that he could affect the jobs and positions of the Schaumburg police," according to defense motions filed in the case.

The supervision finding enabled Sweeney to keep his driver's license, avoiding the mandatory one-year driving revocation required by Illinois law of those convicted of drunken driving.

The state judicial inquiry board was established by the 1970 state constitution to investigate misconduct by judges.

State may probe furnace failures

A representative of the governor's Consumer Advocate Office Thursday said he has contacted other state agencies and asked them to investigate reports of premature furnace failure in Elk Grove Village houses.

Michael Smith of the Governor's office said the inquiry into the furnace problem has produced information which may warrant further investigation.

Smith declined to reveal which agencies have been contacted. He said more information may be released if the agencies decide to enter the investigation.

THE CONSUMER Advocate's office has been investigating the furnace problem in Elk Grove Village for several months.

Elk Grove Village officials have been attempting to determine the reason for the premature failure of furnaces in some houses in the village. They are conducting a new furnace test program.

The inspections also are aimed at determining whether there are building code violations in some village houses and whether the violations are contributing to the furnace problems.

A continuing test of furnaces in the village has revealed that only a small percentage have defects which could be considered safety hazards. The village is testing furnaces in about 3,000 houses.

IN ADDITION to asking for further investigations, Smith said he has been suggesting homeowners obtain copies of the blueprints and specifications for their houses.

Smith said there has been some indications some houses in the village were not built to specifications. He also noted appliances were purchased in volume, and in some cases, manufacturers have gone out of business. Replacement parts cannot be obtained for some models.

"Instead of being able to purchase a part for a dishwasher, for example, the homeowner would have to obtain an entirely new unit," Smith explained.

Smith said he did not know when the state agencies he has contacted will determine whether they plan to investigate the furnace failures in the village.

Jayceettes golf event outing Tuesday

The Elk Grove Jayceettes will hold their annual golf outing Tuesday at the Salt Creek Country Club in Itasca.

The outing will begin at 9:15 a.m. at the club at 18 W. 700 Thorndale Rd. Nine holes of golf will be played for a fee of $3 each. Lunch will be served at noon.

The group invites all Jayceettes and nonmembers to take part in the outing.

Good weather, road conditions during weekend

Traveling through the Midwest should be relatively easy this weekend.

The Chicago Motor Club advises motorists to find alternate routes for the Stevenson Expressway, because of road repairs, and to watch for periodic tie-ups on the Tri-State Tollway while work continues between Dempster Street and Willow Road and south of the city to the Indiana state line.

Otherwise, most Illinois roads will be clear, with the exception of areas on I-55 where roadwork is continuing near Pontiac, Lincoln and Vandalla near St. Louis.

In Indiana, motorists should look for slight bottlenecks on I-65 around Indianapolis due to road work, and state police there advise that U. S. 30 in Dyer, on the Illinois-Indiana line, will be closed until sometime Saturday.

IN WISCONSIN, on I-94 between Portage and the Wisconsin Dells, traffic has been restricted to one lane in each direction, and motorists should watch out for bottlenecks late tonight and Sunday afternoon.

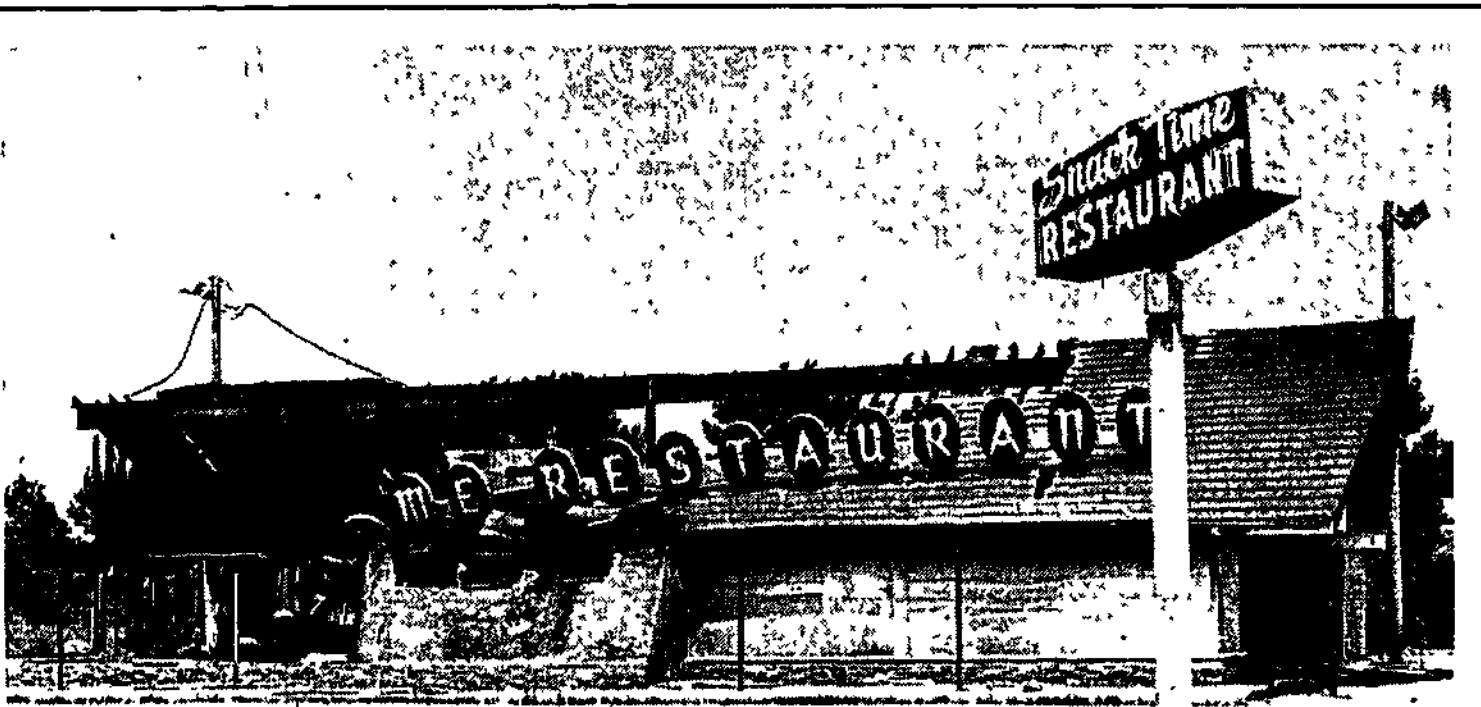

Michigan highways are clear with the possible exception of I-94 west of Jackson and Ann Arbor, where roadwork was reported.

The Iowa Highway Patrol has said highways in that state would be clear sailing all weekend.

The extended outlook for the five-state region through Sunday calls for temperatures in the 90s in Illinois and Indiana, while readings in Wisconsin and Michigan should be in the high 80s.

Showers are possible, however, in northern Wisconsin and Michigan Saturday and Sunday, with temperatures turning cooler in that area toward the end of the weekend.

TO RAZE OR NOT to raze. The owner of the firegutted Snack Time Restaurant, 1880 E. Higgins Rd., Elk Grove

Township, is to report to Circuit Court on whether he will rebuild the structure. The court ruled last month the owner is in violation of the county building ordinance.

Status report to court on Snack Time due Sept. 7

The owner of the Snack Time Restaurant, 1880 E. Higgins Rd., Elk Grove Township, will give a status report Sept. 7 to the Circuit Court on progress on razing or rebuilding the structure.

The building was destroyed by fire 20 months ago. Elk Grove Village officials asked the County Board in May to take action to remove the ruins of the building. They called it a dangerous eyesore.

The court last month upheld the county's charges that the owners of the property are in violation of the building ordinance. The date then given for the court report was July 16.

County Comr. Carl Hansen said he was not aware the building was still standing, but said he would investigate the matter. He added, however, there was still time before the new court date and "a lot could happen" before that time.

5.65 million gallons daily in 1980

Village applies for lake water

Elk Grove Village officials have applied to the Illinois Division of Waterways for 5.65 million gallons of Lake Michigan water a day, beginning in 1980.

Village Mgr. Charles Willis said he testified the village is doing everything in its power to continue developing shallow wells and maintaining its own deep well systems, but it needs assurance that by 1980 it can depend on lake water.

"We are just one of the many Northwest suburban municipalities asking for lake water allocations and appearing in hearings that require we prove that need," he added.

WILLIS SAID IT is too early to predict the outcome of the village's request. Hearings are scheduled until the end of this year, and final date gathering and application reviews will continue for several months after that, he said.

Willis said the village presented results of a recent engineering study to substantiate its need.

When the committee asked us when we thought we would reach an impossible pumping level in our deep wells, we answered that we believed we were now pumping from impossible levels," he added.

At present, the deep well pumps are set at 940 feet, and the reliability of the deep well network is not good, said Willis. "This is not a fact unique to Elk Grove Village, since all the municipalities pumping from the Galeburg strata face the same dropping water table," he said.

"THE DEEPER WE have to go to pump up water, the more expensive the operation becomes and the less productive the well is," he added.

Willis stressed the present water supply is more than adequate.

"We are attempting to secure guarantees that when it is needed, an alternate water supply is available," he said.

Officials recently voted to form an alliance with the neighboring communities of Arlington Heights, Rolling Meadows, Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg, also seeking lake water allocations, to share in the estimated $7 million cost of piping the water to the towns.

Inflation refuses to go away

by United Press International

Government reports Thursday pictured a befuddled U.S. economy recovering from the worst recession since the 1930s but showing signs of a renewal of the runaway inflation that caused the slump in the first place.

There were indications of higher prices, the Agriculture Dept. raised its estimate of the 1975 increase in food prices to 9 per cent from 6 to 8 per cent; the president of Gulf Oil said domestic oil prices would rise

"rather quickly" if price controls were removed; and Jones & Laughlin said it planned to match price hikes of other steelmakers.

For the economy in general, these conclusions were apparent:

• Double-digit inflation returned in July, if only temporarily, after dropping to a low of 5 per cent in April, May and June. The Labor Dept.'s Consumer Price Index soared 1.2 per cent or 14.4 per cent on an adjusted annual basis, matching the 1973 and 1974 inflation level that was a major factor in bringing about the recession.

• In the Chicago area, the cost of living jumped 1.2 per cent in July, the largest monthly increase in 11 months. The increase helped boost July prices to a level of 6.3 per cent higher than July 1974, the Bureau of Labor statistics announced.

Prices last month were significantly higher for food — up 2.5 per cent over June — and for transportation, which increased 2.2 per cent.

The cost of medical care in the Chicago area also increased sharply, rising 1.5 per cent. Housing was up two-tenths of 1 per cent and health and recreation costs here rose nine-tenths of 1 per cent.

Prices of clothing dropped seven-tenths of 1 per cent.

• Americans still are being squeezed by rising prices and shrinking take-home pay. Labor said real (spendable) income declined 0.5 per cent (Continued on Page 3)

Retiring soon? Seminars set to aid plans

Elk Grove Township will sponsor a series of retirement preparation seminars in September designed to help persons approaching retirement within the next 10 years to assess their needs and to plan ahead.

The six-week series of lectures and discussions will be at the township hall, 2400 S. Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights. There is no charge for the seminar, which is being offered to township residents only.

Anyone interested in attending is asked to register by phone, because the class will be limited to 25 people. Further information can be obtained by calling 437-0300.

Township Supervisor Richard Hall said the seminar will be directed by Clarence Skinner, who has developed a retirement approach program.

Skinner said, "The retirement route can be a pursuit of poverty rather than happiness in many cases."

He said his program was developed from personal experience as well as extensive investigation among fellow retirees.

The seminar will cover such areas as financial planning, activity, work, retirement, mental and physical health and legal affairs of retired people.

Guest speakers will provide professional commentaries.

Sessions, to begin at 7:30 p.m., will be held Sept. 23, 25 and Oct. 9, 10, 14, 16, 21 and 23.

2 youths charged in car theft after police chase

Two area juveniles were arrested late Wednesday and charged with auto theft after a brief car chase by Elk Grove Village and state police, police said.

Charged were a 16-year-old Elk Grove Village girl and a 15-year-old Schaumburg boy. The two were sent to the Audy Home, pending Juvenile Court action.

The two were arrested for allegedly stealing a 1973 sports car, valued at $6,000, from Northwest Lincoln-Mercury, 1200 E. Golf Rd., Schaumburg, about 9 p.m., police said. Schaumburg police immediately put out an Illinois State Police Emergency Network radio dispatch about the vehicle.

An Elk Grove Village policeman saw the car westbound on Higgins Road about 10:45 p.m. He attempted to stop the vehicle, but it drove off. The car was stopped on Higgins Road near Ill. Rte. 53 after spinning around when a state police squad car cut it off, police said.

LE TITI DE PARIS. Busboy George Fernandez examines the damage to the popular French restaurant, 2275 Rand Rd., Palatine Township. The main dining room and service bar were gutted by fire early Thursday, believed to be caused by arsonists.

Le Titi De Paris burns with arson suspected

by STIRLING MORITA

Le Titi De Paris in Palatine Township, the second fashionable, French restaurant in the area gutted by fire in a month, was the apparent victim of arson early Thursday, fire officials said.

State fire marshals were called in to join the Long Grove Fire Protection District and Sheriff's police in an arson probe after a five-gallon gasoline can was found in front of the burning building, 2275 Rand Rd.

Another popular French restaurant, Le Francals, Wheeling, was destroyed July 18 after an electrical short circuit touched off a fire.

Long Grove fire officials said damage to Le Titi De Paris was estimated to be about $100,000. The fire was discovered about 4 a.m. by Sheriff's police, responding to an activated burglar alarm at the restaurant.

MEL TOWNER, chief engineer for the fire district, said when police arrived at the scene, the front of the one-story building was engulfed in flames. Long Grove fire units were dispatched, and firefighters could see the fire from their station, Towner said.

Towner said someone broke the window to the front dining area and apparently tossed gasoline into the building and set fire to it. Three Long Grove units were dispatched, and the fire was quickly extinguished. A Palatine unit assisted, and a Buffalo Grove fire crew stood by at the Long Grove station.

Paul Christian, Palatine, the restaurant owner, said he did not know who would want to set fire to his restaurant and that he had not received any threats.

Christian had established a high-quality reputation for his restaurant, which opened about three years ago.

As he swept wet debris from the kitchen area, Christian said he would rebuild the structure and continue to serve French cuisine.

Man shot at track out of hospital

A 37-year-old man, who was seriously wounded Aug. 9 at the barn area of Arlington Park Race Track, was released Thursday from Northwest Community Hospital.

Curtis M. Bradshaw, Lexington, Ky., was shot three times during a quarrel with a woman friend, who lived in the dormitory area of the racetrack, police said.

The friend, Wanda Lee Randall, 28, of Fort Worth, Tex., has been charged with attempted murder and is being held in County Jail in lieu of $100,000 bond.

Program for young people

SPECTRUM Youth Service of Schaumburg Township has added a group program for young people ages 12 to 21.

The program will include groups for rap sessions, problem solving, self-awareness, and activity. Anyone interested in joining the groups should contact Fred McKenzie at 893-2570 or at The Buttery, 105 S. Roselle Rd., Schaumburg.

TIMES MAY BE ROUGH but it's still a dog's world at several Northwest suburban banks. Many drive-up windows already offer suckers for children, but now they're catering to the canines too — by handing out dog biscuits as well as lollipops.

Rover cashes in on premiums

Family dogs banking on business

by LAURA SCHMALBACH

Three-year-old Buffy knows a nice bank when she sees one. As the car pulls up, Buffy's nose is pressed against the window — eagerly awaiting the teller's friendly smile and the treat that comes back with it. Buffy is the family poodle, and several local banks are catering to her (and her mistress' money) by handing out dog biscuits for the canines as well as lollipops for the kids.

A dog biscuit survey was met with uncontrollable laughter from some banks and dead seriousness from others, but almost all agreed that if they saw a need for the service, they would cheerfully comply.

THOSE BANKS THAT have started the service did so for various reasons — some noticed other drive-up windows catering to the canines and decided to get into the act, and others took the advice of dog-loving tellers who knew a selling point when they saw one.

The Arlington Heights Bank and Trust has been passing out dog biscuits for five years. The move came after a guard realized that "those dogs really came to depend on him for their treats," said Joanne McGeehan, public relations officer.

"The dogs are just like the kids," she continued. "They expect their treat and they don't stop barking until the envelope comes back to the car with it inside."

Ms. McGeehan estimated the bank goes through a pound of biscuits a week at each window, and said the only raised eyebrows have come from check out lines at local supermarkets. "Naturally the dogs aren't going to deposit with us," she added, "but the people just love it!"

DOLING OUT DOG biscuits with $10's and $20's can be "really weird," said Kendra Wright, Des Plaines National Bank's officer in charge of drive-ups. Customer reactions have ranged from surprise at the start of the service five years ago to complete acceptance now, she said.

"Let's face it, most people out here treat their dogs like members of the family," she snickered. "The only problems we've had have been some real high-class dogs that won't eat the biscuits. But it's a lot of fun — many of the tellers know the dogs and make them speak before they'll send out the biscuits."

Although the Buffalo Grove National Bank hasn't gone to the dogs yet, the move to Milk Bones is imminent, said president Jack Sharp. "It's great because it keeps those kids and dogs quiet when the housewife is trying to think," Sharp said.

NOT ALL BANKS are aware of Rover's pull in the area of family finances. An unidentified spokeswoman for Citizens Bank, Park Ridge, giggled loudly for 20 seconds before she was able to catch her breath and re-tor, "we only give them to the dogs that drive up!"

"That's got to be the funniest thing I ever heard of," a woman laughed at the First National Bank of Mount Prospect. But not so funny to her bosses — the bank has been dishing out biscuits ever since a German shepherd stole the teller's hearts four years ago.

Isn't a pound of dog biscuits a week a little extravagant for a financial institution in the midst of a recession?

"Well, I've thought of that myself," Buffalo Grove's Sharp admitted. "But it's the small things that give people a good impression."

And at least one bank, the pooches are faring better than the kids. Ms. Wright at Des Plaines National said her bank has discontinued suckers for children because "they drool all over their clean clothes." But what about crumbs from the dog biscuits?

"Oh they usually eat them in one bite, don't they?" she giggled.

Dist. 59 to get outside advice on management

by JUDY JOBBITT

Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 will be analyzed by an outside firm to get suggestions for improving its management structure.

The board of education approved hiring Peter Warner Associates to conduct a study of the district's management which will cost $2,300 to $2,500. The firm conducted the recent management study of the Northwest Education Cooperative and Northwest Suburban Special Education Organization.

"I think it will make us a lot more efficient," Supt. Roger Bardwell said. "A new administration means new relationships need to be developed."

Bardwell, appointed superintendent in June, said the study was discussed when he was being considered for the position last spring.

He said it is difficult for "those inside to see all the problems" and that he wants to develop the proper "linkages between the board, the superintendent and the principals." He said the study should save the district money over time because of improvements that should result from the study.

PETER WARNER AND Fredric Genck, who will conduct the study, will first meet with the district's personnel and board members and outline the current management structure. Nine management areas will be detailed and recommendations made for improving these areas.

A seminar for the school board will be held Sept. 13 to outline the proposed management methods for the district. A final report will be presented to the district after the seminar.

Bardwell has said he favors a decentralized management approach which would give individual schools more autonomy.

Former Supt. James Ervitt, who was ousted last year from the superintendent's position, held tight rein over the individual schools. Bardwell has said he thinks schools should reflect the principal and community rather than the central administration.

Township weighs police tax unit

Wheeling Township officials will consider establishing a special police protection taxing district for unincorporated areas, including Prospect Heights, at a special meeting Sept. 2.

Residents of the Prospect Heights area, through the Prospect Heights Improvement Assn. (PHIA), have requested formation of the special district because of increased vandalism, malicious mischief and burglaries. The PHIA has said Sheriff's Police patrols in the area are "inadequate," and police officials have responded they lack sufficient funds to assign more than two squad cars to the area.

Richard Wolf, PHIA president, said it will cost an estimated $122,000 annually to hire two off-duty Sheriff's policemen to patrol the area on a 24-hour daily basis. Wolf said the annual cost to homeowners in the special tax district would be about $24 per $10,000 assessed valuation.

A SURVEY, requesting unincorporated area residents' opinions about a special taxing district to pay for added police protection, was published recently in local newspapers and the Prospect Heights Town Bulletin.

"We have received more than 200 replies to our special survey so far, with the returns running three to one in favor of the special taxing district," Wolf said.

Township Auditor William Reid said the special 7:30 p.m. Sept. 2 meeting will be before the regularly scheduled township board meeting.

"We have a Sept. 9 deadline for filing our budget ordinance," he said.

Reid stressed the special taxing district, if created, would apply to all unincorporated areas in the township, not just Prospect Heights. "The opinion of our attorney is it would have to be all of the unincorporated area," Reid said.

"ALL CITIZENS of the township will have an opportunity to present information at the special meeting," Reid said. He added the most the township could levy would be $100 per $10,000 assessed valuation.

Reid said about 13,000 residents of the total estimated 21,000 unincorpo-

Arlington woman wins U.S. award for environment

by KURT BAER

An Arlington Heights woman, Gertrude Rodig, has won a national award for her individual efforts to improve the environment.

Mrs. Rodig, 737 S. Beverly Ln., will receive a 1975 Environmental Quality Award from the U. S. Environmental Protection Agency next Tuesday at a ceremony at the Midland Hotel in Chicago.

Recycling cans, bottles and paper, for which Mrs. Rodig is being cited, is "just a natural way of life," she says.

Among other things, Mrs. Rodig fills her bicycle baskets with cans and bottles that otherwise would be left littering the streets.

"WHEN WE GO square dancing, or to a party, I take along a bag for the cans and bottles," she says. "I've picked up (pop top) rings and cans at the Indiana Dunes . . . Just wherever we go."

Mrs. Rodig was nominated for the award by a friend and former neighbor, Grace Crittenden, who saw a television commercial inviting nominees for the EPA's environmental quality awards.

"I was shocked," Mrs. Rodig said when she was named a winner. Her dedication to recycling amounts to an "environmental ethic" that she has instilled in her children.

"THE WAY TO successful recycling is through education. I believe the parents will pick it up if the children nag them."

Gertrude Rodig

A 24-year resident of Arlington Heights, Mrs. Rodig relies on the Rolling Meadows recycling center, 3900 Central Rd. Her children work there.

"Arlington Heights vacillates with its recycling program. Sometimes they take cans, other times they don't. Sometimes the whole thing is shut down."

"At Rolling Meadows we've never had a problem," she said.

Others to receive EPA awards in Chicago next Tuesday include state representatives, mayors, business leaders, educators and journalists. No less important is Gertrude Rodig, who believes that improving the environment is just another part of living.

Harvest fest set at Nike base

The Arlington Heights Park District will host a farmers' market and harvest festival Saturday at the Army's Nike base in conjunction with its garden plot program.

The festivities, which will last from noon to 5 p.m., will be highlighted by a farmers' market, where residents can sell the fruits or vegetables they have grown in home gardens or garden plots provided on park district grounds.

Residents also will be able to enter their prize homegrown produce in a garden show. The entries will be on display throughout the day and will be judged by members of the Arlington Heights Women's Garden Club. Awards will be announced that afternoon.

RESIDENTS interested in participating in the garden show contest should register from 8 to 10 a.m. Saturday at the Nike base, Central and Wilko roads.

The festival will be held primarily on park district property adjacent to the military base and on several acres of the Army's property. The Army also has agreed to make the base's water and electric sources available for the event.

Recreational activities, such as badminton, horseshoes, concessions and picnic spaces are planned.

The park district will conduct a golf ball driving contest, a "500" tricycle race, and catch-a-greased pig contest, a moon walk and hot-air balloon rides.

ANGELO CAPULLI, superintendent of parks, said the park district expects to "break even" on the festival. The festival will cost an estimated $700 which will be financed by sales on concessions, the hot-air balloon, the moon walk and the catch-a-greased pig contest, he said.

"It's the first time the park district has done this kind of thing because of our garden program. We found that we had so many people participating in the garden program, that we figured this might be a good idea," Capulli said.

There are about 500 residents participating in the program, growing flowers and produce on plots provided by the park district at the Nike Base, Prairie Farm and Frontier Park.

Judge faces state charge in drunken driving case

by TONI GINETTI
and AL MESSERSCHMIDT

The Illinois Judicial Inquiry Board has filed a complaint against an associate Circuit Court judge charged last year by Schaumburg police with drunken driving and resisting arrest.

Associate Judge Robert A. Sweeney of Barrington was charged by the board Thursday with misconduct in connection with an incident in March 1974 when he allegedly resisted and scuffled with Schaumburg police who stopped him for drunken driving.

The incident was disclosed July 29 by The Herald as part of a six-part series documenting the failure by local courts to enforce drunken driving laws.

The series "Justice and the Drunk on Driver," told how Sweeney was acquitted of four charges in connection with the traffic stop incident following a two-car collision on Algonquin Road.

SWEENEY, assigned to the probate division of Circuit Court, was freed on a "technical plea of not guilty" Jan. 6, 1975 and was given a one-year supervision term by Associate Judge Marvin J. Peters.

The ruling by Peters came despite a 1973 order issued by Chief Judge

John S. Boyle that supervision not be used in the disposition of drunken driving cases.

Sweeney also was ordered to take part in Lutheran General Hospital's alcoholic rehabilitation program.

Sweeney's attorneys were State Rep. Eugene Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, and his law partner, John Clarke.

The complaint by the Judicial Inquiry Board was filed Thursday with the Illinois Courts Commission. The commission can hold a hearing on the charge and has the power to suspend or remove Sweeney from the bench if he is convicted.

RICHARD T. DUNN, a Bloomington attorney and chairman of the judicial inquiry board, Thursday said that Sweeney will be served with the complaint and will then have 21 days to respond before a commission hearing is set.

Dunn said Sweeney could be relieved of his duties by Boyle while the matter is pending.

The judicial inquiry board's complaint charged Sweeney resisted arrest and interfered with police investigations of the incident.

Sweeney scuffled with arresting officers during the incident, The Herald disclosed, and refused to take breathalyzer tests in connection with the drunken driving charge.

He also was charged with resisting arrest, disobeying a police officer and driving in the wrong lane.

THE SUPERVISION sentence imposed by Peters came after 10 months of courtroom maneuvering by Sweeney and Schlickman, including efforts to move the case out of suburban court Dist. 3 and into Sweeney's own Dist. 1 in Chicago.

Sweeney also attempted to have suppressed statements he made to Schaumburg police that "he (Sweeney) is a lawyer and a judge and that he could affect the jobs and positions of the Schaumburg police," according to defense motions filed in the case.

The supervision finding enabled Sweeney to keep his driver's license, avoiding the mandatory one-year driving revocation required by Illinois law of those convicted of drunken driving.

The state judicial inquiry board was established by the 1970 state constitution to investigate misconduct by judges.

Reports call deal economically feasible

SCOPP urges vote on purchase of airport

Schaumburg Citizens for Planned Progress has taken a stand against village ownership of Schaumburg Airport, calling for a citizens' referendum on the proposal there before final village board action.

"SCOPP believes the village should direct its time, energy and money towards mass transportation which will be more beneficial to the majority of Schaumburg residents," said Larry Thielen, chairman of the political party's airport study subcommittee. Thielen was a candidate for village trustee when SCOPP unsuccessfully challenged the incumbent Schaumburg United Party in the April village election.

Consultants' preliminary reports on a $36,000 state and federally funded airport feasibility study indicate a village owned airport would be economically beneficial provided the total package is limited to $8.4 million; federal and state financing is available; and the proposal is found environmentally acceptable.

REPRESENTATIVES of consultants Howard, Needles, Tammen and Bergendoff recommended the village repay its local cost share, estimated at $2.4 million, through a 30-year revenue bond issue.

Schaumburg trustees voted last week to proceed with the final phase of the study, which consists of preparing an environmental impact statement and scheduling of public hearings as required by the Federal Aviation Administration.

The FAA is expected to approve the second phase of the study in mid-September, and the Illinois Dept. of Aeronautics last month endorsed completion of the examination.

Approval of both agencies is required, because federal and state planning grants have paid a major portion of the cost of the study.

THIELEN SAID SCOPP members believe the airport "has many beneficial qualities," emphasizing the party does not oppose "the airport itself."

"However, we believe it should be maintained by private enterprise, not by the Village of Schaumburg," he said.

Thielen said his subcommittee "will continue to investigate all aspects" of the airport proposal, insisting on "full disclosure of the airport land trust ownership and an independent financial investigation" of the private airport.

"SCOPP will also insist on a referendum by the public prior to a final decision by the village," he added, noting he believes the airport "has been losing money for years because of poor management and ridiculously low tie-down fees."

CURRENTLY, the airport receives $80 to $100 per month for 18 hangar spaces, with outside tie-down pads ranging from $30 to $45 a month. It is reported similar rates are charged at Elgin, DuPage and Pal-Waukee airports.

Stressing the need for a referendum, Thielen said he "can't see seven men making a decision" on the airport, adding he does not "think the airport will make money for the village."

Signatures of at least 25 per cent of the registered voters living in Schaumburg are required to call a special election, village Atty. Jack M. Siegel said Thursday.

"But the results of a referendum of this type would be advisory rather than binding on the village board," Siegel added.

TRUSTEE Edward G. Olsen said Thursday he considers "SCOPP's action" a little premature.

"We are a long way off, at least a year from making a decision, and they must know that," said Olsen,

Good weather, road conditions during weekend

Traveling through the Midwest should be relatively easy this weekend.

The Chicago Motor Club advises motorists to find alternate routes for the Stevenson Expressway, because of road repairs, and to watch for periodic tie-ups on the Tri-State Tollway while work continues between Dempster Street and Willow Road and south of the city to the Indiana state line.

Otherwise, most Illinois roads will be clear, with the exception of areas on I-55 where roadwork is continuing near Pontiac, Lincoln and Vandalia near St. Louis.

In Indiana, motorists should look for slight bottlenecks on I-65 around Indianapolis due to road work, and state police there advise that U. S. 30 in Dyer, on the Illinois-Indiana line, will be closed until sometime Saturday.

temperatures in the 90s in Illinois and Indiana, while readings in Wisconsin and Michigan should be in the high 80s.

Showers are possible, however, in northern Wisconsin and Michigan Saturday and Sunday, with temperatures turning cooler in that area toward the end of the weekend.

Hoffman parks plan vote within 45 days

The Hoffman Estates Park Board will present a park development referendum package to the public within 45 days, Board Pres. George Rush said Thursday.

Members of the park board met with representatives of several community organizations to discuss plans for the proposed referendum. Rush told the group he would "like to go for the referendum by Nov. 1 and certainly before Nov. 30."

"I know several other taxing districts are going to the people asking for money. I don't know what the traffic will bear, and if we drag it on too long, people will lose interest."

Rush said cost estimates indicate a $1 million bond issue would increase residents' tax bills $6.13 a year for 15 years. A $2 million bond issue would

Schaumburg parks '76 budget up 30%

The Schaumburg Park District board of directors has approved a $712,427 budget for 1975-76, a 30 per cent increase from last year.

Jerry Baer, park district business manager, said the increase would not affect the tax rate of 10 cents per $100 assessed valuation for maintenance and 7.5 cents per $100 for recreation. He said the district will receive an additional $71,000 in tax revenue because of a 9 per cent increase in assessed valuation.

The budget allocates $387,035 for recreation, an approximate $80,000 increase from last year, Baer said the increase was attributable to the opening of the Melneke Pool and the formation of the new park patrol.

The budget also includes $146,417 for grounds maintenance and $92,950 for the general fund, an approximate $45,000 increase. Baer said the increase was due to the addition of more personnel and an 8 per cent cost of living salary increase for employees.

Inflation refuses to go away

by United Press International

Government reports Thursday pictured a befuddled U.S. economy recovering from the worst recession since the 1930s but showing signs of a renewal of the runaway inflation that caused the slump in the first place.

There were indications of higher prices, the Agriculture Dept. raised its estimate of the 1975 increase in food prices to 9 per cent from 6 to 8 per cent; the president of Gulf Oil said domestic oil prices would rise

"rather quickly" if price controls were removed; and Jones & Laughlin said it planned to match price hikes of other steelmakers.

For the economy in general, these conclusions were apparent:

- Double-digit inflation returned in July, if only temporarily, after dropping to a low of 5 per cent in April, May and June. The Labor Dept.'s Consumer Price Index soared 1.2 per cent or 14.4 per cent on an adjusted annual basis, matching the 1973 and 1974 inflation level that was a major factor in brining about the recession.

- In the Chicago area, the cost of living jumped 1.2 per cent in July, the largest monthly increase in 11 months. The increase helped boost July prices to a level of 8.3 per cent higher than July 1974, the Bureau of Labor statistics announced.

Prices last month were significantly higher for food — up 2.5 per cent over June — and for transportation, which increased 2.2 per cent.

The cost of medical care in the Chicago area also increased sharply, rising 1.5 per cent. Housing was up two-tenths of 1 per cent and health and recreation costs here rose nine-tenths of 1 per cent.

Prices of clothing dropped seven-tenths of 1 per cent.

- Americans still are being squeezed by rising prices and shrinking take-home pay. Labor said real (spendable) income declined 0.5 per cent

Old farmhouse represents getaway to normal life

by DAVE GALANTI

An old farmhouse at 309 Landmeyer Rd., in Elk Grove Village may look insignificant compared with most of the surrounding community, but for 15 people from Elk Grove, Schaumburg, Palatine and Wheeling townships, it represents the gateway to a normal life.

The farmhouse is the home of the Elk Grove-Schaumburg Townships Mental Health Day Treatment Center, which serves people 14 and older who have either been discharged from full-time psychiatric hospitals and need support during their period of transition to the outside world or those who can use the center as an alternative to full-time hospitalization.

Operating the center are staff members Doris Lefley and Glen Hartshorn, both advocates of the Milieu system of therapy. Milieu therapy advocates placing individuals in a realistic environment to observe their reactions. Members of the group cook their own lunch, keep house, do repair chores, work in the garden and plan their own recreational activities.

HARTSHORN SAID he views the center as a place where clients can learn to live together "so that they might not make the same mistakes again." He said the staff tries to help the clients break out of old patterns that brought on their problems in the first place.

"I see it as a living organism," he continued. "It changes from day to day, depending on how we are feeling."

"The center gives people a chance to form their own relationships instead of just going to a therapist and listening to his views about the outside," Mrs. Lefley added.

The center, which opened in June, operates six hours a day Monday through Friday. Even though patients must provide their own transportation, Mrs. Lefley said it does not prohibit the majority from attending every day. There is no strict attendance requirement, but the clients are asked to notify the center if they cannot be there.

"IT'S NOT VERY useful for them to drop in without notifying us," Mrs. Lefley said. "We try to keep things like a job situation. And if you have an employer, you notify him if you have to go to the doctor or somewhere else."

An important role of the center, Hartshorn said, is helping clients to make their own decisions and to finish projects they have started. Hartshorn said one of the problems faced by clients right out of hospitals is they often find it difficult to remain on a job.

"It is important that the clients form a concept of what they want to be," he said. "I have to work hard to not get forced into making decisions. I am not in the business of providing advice."

Mrs. Lefley said the staff tries to keep the clients looking towards full participation in the outside world at all times. She said leaving the center and employment were topics which came up often in group sessions.

THE DECISION TO leave the group is made by agreement of both the staff and the client. Work is considered a "positive value" by the group, and two of the center's clients already have left to work full-time.

"People are constantly coming and going," Hartshorn said. "There are a lot of hellos and goodbys. But this happens outside, and it is something the clients have to deal with."

Families of clients are included in the program through weekly combined sessions. It is this way, Hartshorn said, the group can "dispel any fantasies" about the group and its problems. He added the family is a basic unit of society, and it is important they understand each other if the clients are to make it on the outside.

Patients pay for the program according to a sliding scale. The rest of the bill is paid for by the Elk Grove-Schaumburg Townships Mental Health Center, Elk Grove and Schaumburg Townships and the state. Referrals are made through the local mental health center and Northwest Mental Health Center.

Street, sidewalk work to cost village $200,000

Hoffman Estates officials have announced plans for major street and sidewalk improvement work involving 50 street sections and more than 20,000 feet of pavement.

The street and sidewalk program will cost an estimated $200,000 and will be the village's major capital improvement program this year. Federal revenue-sharing money and motor fuel tax funds will be used to pay for the work.

The project will include the resurfacing of sections of 29 village streets and curb and sidewalk reconstruction on another 21 streets.

THE PROJECT will be let for bidding next month, but village estimates indicate the street resurfacing will cost some $131,100 and the sidewalk and curb reconstruction another $68,500.

Included in the total sidewalk program involving 5,455 feet of pavement will be 3,645 feet of new sidewalk. Sec-cost taxpayers an additional $13.75 a year for 15 years, he said.

"I don't know where the costs become prohibitive to the average wage earners. Maybe we're there already," Rush said.

Park district officials have said development of existing parks could cost up to $1,349,725, but Rush said the proposal "is not cast in bronze."

"We want some feedback from the community. We don't want to be accused of a backroom power play," he said.

KEN CONWAY, president of the Hoffman Estates Boys' Club, said the park district should concentrate on developing two or three major sports areas.

"We had some feelings that the proposal we're looking at here is pretty much what we looked at in the past.

We had a choice of spending some money here and there or building the Aquarius project (a major sports complex). My group would like to see a happy medium," Conway said.

Conway suggested the development of three major facilities, which would include night lighting, Little League athletic fields and adequate parking. He said the parks should be located at both ends of the district.

"For one thing, I think you would satisfy the major athletic groups. Secondly, it takes the sports out of the neighborhood parks and frees them for community use," he said.

CONWAY SAID the board should present voters with one major referendum instead of a series of small ones. "Don't nickel and dime them to death. Give them the whole bullet to bite now," he said.

The park board will discuss the proposed referendum at 8:30 a.m. Saturday at the Village Administration Center, 650 W. Higgins Rd., Hoffman Estates.

Park board members will meet with community groups interested in the referendum at 8:30 p.m. Sept. 11.

who is village finance chairman and one of two trustees who voted against completing the feasibility study.

"I can't even really speak to a referendum at this time," commented Trustee Alan Larson, adding "it appears SCOPP is putting the cart before the horse."

Larson, who voted to proceed with the study, said he has reached no decision about village acquisition of the airport. "I think we should wait until the study is completed, and I'm certainly interested in the public hearings, as well as the full disclosure they're calling for," he said.

Village Pres. Raymond Kessell, who is on vacation, could not be reached for comment Thursday.

Banks toss dog biscuit to attract (Fi) dough

by LAURA SCHMALBACH

Three-year-old Buffy knows a nice bank when she sees one.

As the car pulls up, Buffy's nose is pressed against the window — eagerly awaiting the teller's friendly smile and the treat that comes back with it.

Buffy is the family poodle, and several local banks are catering to her (and her mistress' money) by handing out dog biscuits for the canines as well as lollipops for the kids.

A dog biscuit survey was met with uncontrollable laughter from some banks and dead seriousness from others, but almost all agreed that if they saw a need for the service, they would cheerfully comply.

THOSE BANKS THAT have started the service did so for various reasons — some noticed other drive-up windows catering to the canines and decided to get into the act, and others took the advice of dog-loving tellers who knew a selling point when they saw one.

The Arlington Heights Bank and Trust has been passing out dog biscuits for five years. The move came, after a guard realized that "those dogs really came to depend on him for their treats," said Jeanne McGeehan, public relations officer.

"The dogs are just like the kids," she continued. "They expect their treat and they don't stop barking until the envelope comes back to the car with it inside."

Ms. McGeehan estimated the bank goes through a pound of biscuits a week at each window, and said the only raised eyebrows have come from check out lines at local supermarkets. "Naturally the dogs aren't going to deposit with us," she added, "but the people just love it!"

TIMES MAY BE ROUGH but it's still a dog's world at several Northwest suburban banks.

DOLING OUT DOG biscuits with $10's and $20's can be "really weird," said Kendra Wright, Des Plaines National Bank's officer in charge of drive-ups. Customer reactions have ranged from surprise at the start of the service five years ago to complete acceptance now, she said.

"Let's face it, most people out here treat their dogs like members of the family," she snickered. "The only problems we've had have been some real high-class dogs that won't eat the biscuits. But it's a lot of fun — many of the tellers know the dogs and make them speak before they'll send out the biscuits."

Although the Buffalo Grove National Bank hasn't gone to the dogs yet, the move to Milk Bones is imminent, said president Jack Sharp.

"It's great because it keeps those kids and dogs quiet when the housewife is trying to think," Sharp said.

NOT ALL BANKS are aware of Rover's pull in the area of family finances. An unidentified spokeswoman for Citizens Bank, Park Ridge, giggled loudly for 20 seconds before she was able to catch her breath and retort, "we only give them to the dogs that drive up!"

"That's got to be the funniest thing I ever heard of," a woman laughed at the First National Bank of Mount Prospect. But not so funny to her bosses — the bank has been dishing out biscuits ever since a German shepherd stole the tellers' hearts four years ago.

Grandfather clock among items stolen

About $2,750 worth of items including an antique grandfather clock was reported stolen Thursday in a burglary at the Donald Arganbright home, 101 Arbor Ct., Hoffman Estates.

Also taken were a pocket calculator, a necklace, six pairs of women's shoes and a gallon of liquor, police were told. A neighbor discovered the break-in Monday, but did not know what was missing from the home because the Arganbrights were on vacation, police said.

Entry was gained by taking off a doorknob with a pipe wrench, police said.

Judge faces state charge in drunken driving case

by TONI GINETTI
and AL MESSERSCHMIDT

The Illinois Judicial Inquiry Board has filed a complaint against an associate circuit judge charged last year by Schaumburg police with drunken driving and resisting arrest.

Associate Judge Robert A. Sweeney of Barrington was charged by the board Thursday with misconduct in connection with an incident in March 1974 when he allegedly resisted and scuffled with Schaumburg police who stopped him for drunken driving.

The incident was disclosed July 20 by The Herald as part of a six-part series documenting the failure by local courts to enforce drunken driving laws.

The series "Justice and the Drunken Driver," told how Sweeney was acquitted of four charges in connection with the traffic stop incident following a two-car collision on Algonquin Road.

SWEENEY, assigned to the probate division of Circuit Court, was freed on a "technical plea of not guilty" Jan. 6, 1975 and was given a one-year supervision term by Associate Judge Marvin J. Peters.

The ruling by Peters came despite a 1973 order issued by Chief Judge

John S. Boyle that supervision not be used in the disposition of drunken driving cases.

Sweeney also was ordered to take part in Lutheran General Hospital's alcoholic rehabilitation program.

Sweeney's attorneys were State Rep. Eugene Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, and his law partner, John Clarke.

The complaint by the Judicial Inquiry Board was filed Thursday with the Illinois Courts Commission. The commission can hold a hearing on the charge and has the power to suspend or remove Sweeney from the bench if he is convicted.

RICHARD T. DUNN, a Bloomington attorney and chairman of the Judicial Inquiry board, Thursday said that Sweeney will be served with the complaint and will then have 21 days to respond before a commission hearing is set.

Dunn said Sweeney could be relieved of his duties by Boyle while the matter is pending.

The judicial inquiry board's complaint charged Sweeney resisted arrest and interfered with police investigations of the incident.

Sweeney scuffled with arresting officers during the incident, The Herald disclosed, and refused to take breathalyzer tests in connection with the drunken driving charge.

He also was charged with resisting arrest, disobeying a police officer and driving in the wrong lane.

THE SUPERVISION sentence imposed by Peters came after 10 months of courtroom maneuvering by Sweeney and Schlickman, including efforts to move the case out of suburban court Dist. 3 and into Sweeney's own court, Dist. 1 in Chicago.

Sweeney also attempted to have suppressed statements he made to Schaumburg police that "he (Sweeney) is a lawyer and a judge and that he could affect the jobs and positions of the Schaumburg police," according to defense motions filed in the case.

The supervision finding enabled Sweeney to keep his driver's license, avoiding the mandatory one-year driving revocation required by Illinois law of those convicted of drunken driving.

The state judicial inquiry board was established by the 1970 state constitution to investigate misconduct by judges.

City's financial status unclear

Rolling Meadows officials say belts are tightening in all city departments and spending is being watched closely, but admit they are unsure exactly what the city's financial situation is at this time.

The picture may not become clear until October, when the first property tax bills are received, City Mgr. James Watson said. Until then, he said, estimates of what the deficit in the 1975-76 municipal budget will be are merely guesses.

Some aldermen project a deficit of at least $300,000, partly because of an error in the preparation of this year's property tax ordinance and an unexpected decrease in total assessed property value.

"I DON'T KNOW exactly what the deficit will be, but we're taking steps now so we don't overextend ourselves," Watson said. "We're definitely not bankrupt, though, and we haven't pushed the panic button."

The city manager is preparing a report of anticipated incomes and expenditures through the end of the current fiscal year.

Police, fire and public works department heads meanwhile are drawing up priority lists of all proposed projects. A freeze on hiring also was ordered by Mayor Roland J. Meyer in July to help stave off a shortage of cash.

Ald. Daniel Weber, 4th, this week called for the council to move quickly in sorting out the city's money problems. He chided fellow city council member, Fredrick Jacobson, 5th, chairman of the council's finance committee, for delaying an investigation.

"WE CAN'T WAIT until December to draw up a plan of action," Weber said. "The year will be over before we get anything done on this."

Jacobson met with City Treasurer Robert Cole and Watson Thursday. Cole said the three, in an informal discussion, agreed that almost $200,000 could be shaved from the budget by eliminating or postponing projects.

Jacobson has said he plans to request that the entire council review the financial situation in the next few weeks.

Good weather, road conditions during weekend

Travelling through the Midwest should be relatively easy this weekend.

The Chicago Motor Club advises motorists to find alternate routes for the Stevenson Expressway, because of road repairs, and to watch for periodic tie-ups on the Tri-State Tollway while work continues between Dempster Street and Willow Road and south of the city to the Indiana state line.

Otherwise, most Illinois roads will be clear, with the exception of areas on I-55 where roadwork is continuing near Pontiac, Lincoln and Vandallia near St. Louis.

In Indiana, motorists should look for slight bottlenecks on I-65 around Indianapolis due to road work, and state police there advise that U. S. 30 in Dyer, on the Illinois-Indiana line, will be closed until sometime Saturday.

IN WISCONSIN, on I-94 between Portage and the Wisconsin Dells, traffic has been restricted to one lane in each direction, and motorists should watch out for bottlenecks late tonight and Sunday afternoon.

Michigan highways are clear with the possible exception of I-94 west of Jackson and Ann Arbor, where roadwork was reported.

The Iowa Highway Patrol has said highways in that state would be clear sailing all weekend.

The extended outlook for the five-state region through Sunday calls for temperatures in the 90s in Illinois and Indiana, while readings in Wisconsin and Michigan should be in the high 80s.

Showers are possible, however, in northern Wisconsin and Michigan Saturday and Sunday, with temperatures turning cooler in that area toward the end of the weekend.

Party closes reading plan

It was the pajama party of the season.

The occasion — the final session of the Rolling Meadows Library bedtime story program. Guests were asked to wear their favorite sleepwear, and children's librarian Leslie Edmonds promised an hour filled with games, movies and storytelling.

Miss Edmonds — who wore red and blue bandana-print Dr. Denton pajamas — greeted the children at the foot of the stairway. Many of the guests noticeably were nervous, peering hesitantly down the stairs before entering the room.

Storytime began with Miss Edmonds' reading of an African folktale followed by a session of the Hokey-Pokey dance. Movies, more stories and a closing song finished the hour.

Miss Edmonds said the bedtime story program has proved successful.

"We've had between 30 and 40 kids at each session. I feel like we're reaching a lot of kids," she said.

The program probably will be an annual event, Miss Edmonds said.

"Then maybe my pajamas will become an occupational item, and I can take the expense off my income tax," she said while laughing.

A trio of attentive listeners.

Inflation refuses to go away

"rather quickly" if price controls were removed; and Jones & Laughlin said it planned to match price hikes of other steelmakers.

For the economy in general, these conclusions were apparent:

- Double-digit inflation returned in July, if only temporarily, after dropping to a low of 5 per cent in April, May and June. The Labor Dept.'s Consumer Price Index soared 1.2 per cent or 14.4 per cent on an adjusted annual basis, matching the 1973 and 1974 inflation level that was a major factor in brining about the recession.

- In the Chicago area, the cost of living jumped 1.2 per cent in July, the largest monthly increase in 11 months. The increase helped boost July prices to a level of 8.3 per cent higher than July 1974. The Bureau of Labor statistics announced.
- Prices last month were significantly higher for food — up 2.5 per cent over June — and for transportation, which increased 2.2 per cent.

The cost of medical care in the Chicago area also increased sharply, rising 1.5 per cent. Housing was up two-tenths of 1 per cent and health and recreation costs here rose nine-tenths of 1 per cent.

Prices of clothing dropped seven-tenths of 1 per cent.

- Americans still are being squeezed by rising prices and shrinking take-home pay. Labor said real (spendable) income declined 0.5 per cent.

Le Titi De Paris swept by blaze; arson suspected

by STIRLING MORITA

Le Titi De Paris in Palatine Township, the second fashionable, French restaurant in the area gutted by fire in a month, was the apparent victim of arson early Thursday, fire officials said.

State fire marshals were called in to join the Long Grove Fire Protection District and Sheriff's police in an arson probe after a five-gallon gasoline can was found in front of the burning building, 2275 Rand Rd.

Another popular French restaurant, Le Francois, Wheeling, was destroyed July 18 after an electrical short circuit touched off a fire.

Long Grove fire officials said damage to Le Titi De Paris was estimated to be about $100,000. The fire was discovered about 4 a.m. by Sheriff's police, responding to an activated burglar alarm at the restaurant.

MEL TOWNER, chief engineer for the fire district, said when police arrived at the scene, the front of the one-story building was engulfed in flames. Long Grove fire units were dispatched, and firefighters could see the fire from their station, Towner said.

Towner said someone broke the window to the front dining area and apparently tossed gasoline into the building and set fire to it. Three Long Grove units were dispatched, and the fire was quickly extinguished. A Palatine unit assisted, and a Buffalo Grove fire crew stood by at the Long Grove station.

Paul Christian, Palatine, the restaurant owner, said he did not know who would want to set fire to his restaurant and that he had not received any threats.

Christian had established a high-quality reputation for his restaurant, which opened about three years ago.

As he swept wet debris from the kitchen area, Christian said he would rebuild the structure and continue to serve French cuisine.

Harvest fest set at Nike base

The Arlington Heights Park District will host a farmers' market and harvest festival Saturday at the Army's Nike base in conjunction with its garden plot program.

The festivities, which will last from noon to 5 p.m., will be highlighted by a farmers' market, where residents can sell the fruits or vegetables they have grown in home gardens or garden plots provided on park district grounds.

Residents also will be able to enter their prize homegrown produce in a garden show. The entries will be on display throughout the day and will be judged by members of the Arlington Heights Women's Garden Club. Awards will be announced that afternoon.

RESIDENTS interested in participating in the garden show contest should register from 8 to 10 a.m. Saturday at the Nike base, Central and Wilke roads.

The festival will be held primarily on park district property adjacent to the military base and on several acres of the Army's property. The Army also has agreed to make the base's water and electric sources available for the event.

Recreational activities, such as badminton, horseshoes, concessions and picnic spaces are planned.

ANGELO CAPULLI, superintendent of parks, said the park district expects to "break even" on the festival. The festival will cost an estimated $700 which will be financed by sales on concessions, the hot-air balloon, the moon walk and the catch-a-greased pig contest, he said.

"It's the first time the park district has done this kind of thing because of our garden program. We found that we had so many people participating in the garden program, that we figured this might be a good idea," Capulli said.

City warns repair bills loom in sewer line goofs

Rolling Meadows Building Dept. officials fear some local homeowners may face expensive repair bills because of improperly installed and poorly inspected sewer lines.

A department spokesman said a separation in the lateral pipe leading from a home on Peacock Lane to the city's sewer main was discovered recently and similar problems may exist in other areas of the city.

Legally, the city is responsible only for the main, which means residents must bear the cost of repairs on lateral pipes.

Many of the pipes were installed by housing contractors before the city hired a full-time plumbing inspector to oversee the work, the spokesman said, explaining his fears that there may be other malfunctioning lines.

ALTHOUGH HOMEOWNERS who may have sewer problems of this kind are victims of circumstances beyond their control, the city cannot afford to foot the repair bills, he said.

Estimating the cost of fixing the broken pipe found recently at $400, he said the city "could go broke" if it took on the responsibility for correcting problems with lateral lines.

He recommended homeowners who discover blockages in sewer lines to come into the building department at city hall and look at plumbing inspection records. The department also can provide residents with the names of contractors who installed the lines.

Arlington woman wins U.S. environment award

by KURT BAER

An Arlington Heights woman, Gertrude Rodig, has won a national award for her individual efforts to improve the environment.

Mrs. Rodig, 737 S. Beverly Ln., will receive a 1975 Environmental Quality Award from the U. S. Environmental Protection Agency next Tuesday at a ceremony at the Midland Hotel in Chicago.

Recycling cans, bottles and paper, for which Mrs. Rodig is being cited, is "just a natural way of life," she says.

Among other things, Mrs. Rodig fills her bicycle baskets with cans and bottles that otherwise would be left littering the streets.

"WHEN WE GO square dancing, or to a party, I take along a bag for the cans and bottles," she says. "I've picked up (pop top) rings and cans at the Indiana Dunes . . . Just wherever we go."

Mrs. Rodig was nominated for the award by a friend and former neighbor, Grace Crittenden, who saw a television commercial inviting nominees for the EPA's environmental quality awards.

"I was shocked," Mrs. Rodig said when she was named a winner. Her dedication to recycling amounts to an "environmental ethic" that she has instilled in her children.

"THE WAY TO successful recycling is through education. I believe the parents will pick it up if the children nag them."

A 24-year resident of Arlington Heights, Mrs. Rodig relies on the Rolling Meadows recycling center, 3900 Central Rd. Her children work there.

"Arlington Heights vacillates with its recycling program. Sometimes they take cans, other times they don't. Sometimes the whole thing is shut down."

"At Rolling Meadows we've never had a problem," she said.

Others to receive EPA awards in Chicago next Tuesday include state representatives, mayors, business leaders, educators and journalists. No less important is Gertrude Rodig, who believes that improving the environment is just another part of living.

Banks toss dog biscuit to attract (Fi) dough

by LAURA SCHMIDTACH

Three-year-old Buffy knows a nice bank when she sees one.

As the car pulls up, Buffy's nose is pressed against the window — eagerly awaiting the teller's friendly smile and the treat that comes back with it.

Buffy is the family poodle, and several local banks are catering to her (and her mistress' money) by handing out dog biscuits for the canines as well as lollipops for the kids.

A dog biscuit survey was met with uncontrollable laughter from some banks and dead seriousness from others, but almost all agreed that if they saw a need for the service, they would cheerfully comply.

THOSE BANKS THAT have started the service did so for various reasons — some noticed other drive-up windows catering to the canines and decided to get into the act, and others took the advice of dog-loving tellers who knew a selling point when they saw one.

The Arlington Heights Bank and Trust has been passing out dog biscuits for five years. The move came after a guard realized that "those dogs really came to depend on him for their treats," said Jeanne McGeehan, public relations officer.

"The dogs are just like the kids," she continued. "They expect their treat and they don't stop barking until the envelope comes back to the car with it inside."

Ms. McGeehan estimated the bank goes through a pound of biscuits a week at each window, and said the only raised eyebrows have come from check out lines at local supermarkets.

"Naturally the dogs aren't going to deposit with us," she added, "but the people just love it!"

DOLING OUT DOG biscuits with $10's and $20's can be "really weird," said Kendra Wright, Des Plaines National Bank's officer in charge of drive-ups. Customer reactions have ranged from surprise at the start of the service five years ago to complete acceptance now, she said.

"Let's face it, most people out here treat their dogs like members of the family," she snickered. "The only problems we've had have been some real high-class dogs that won't eat the biscuits. But it's a lot of fun — many of the tellers know the dogs and make them speak before they'll send out the biscuits."

Although the Buffalo Grove National Bank hasn't gone to the dogs yet, the move to Milk Bones is imminent, said president Jack Sharp.

"It's great because it keeps those kids and dogs quiet when the housewife is trying to think," Sharp said.

NOT ALL BANKS are aware of Rover's pull in the area of family finances. An unidentified spokeswoman for Citizens Bank, Park Ridge, giggled loudly for 20 seconds before she was able to catch her breath and report, "we only give them to the dogs that drive up!"

"That's got to be the funniest thing I ever heard of," a woman laughed at the First National Bank of Mount Prospect. But not so funny to her bosses — the bank has been dishing out biscuits ever since a German shepherd stole the tellers' hearts four years ago.

Judge faces state charge in drunken driving case

by TONI GINETTI
and AL MESSERSCHMIDT

The Illinois Judicial Inquiry Board has filed a complaint against an associate Circuit Court judge charged last year by Schaumburg police with drunken driving and resisting arrest.

Associate Judge Robert A. Sweeney of Barrington was charged by the board Thursday with misconduct in connection with an incident in March 1974 when he allegedly resisted and scuffled with Schaumburg police who stopped him for drunken driving.

The incident was disclosed July 29 by The Herald as part of a six-part series documenting the failure by local courts to enforce drunken driving laws.

The series "Justice and the Drunk Driver," told how Sweeney was acquitted of four charges in connection with the traffic stop incident following a two-car collision on Algonquin Road.

SWEENEY, assigned to the probate division of Circuit Court, was freed on a "technical plea of not guilty" Jan. 6, 1975 and was given a one-year supervision term by Associate Judge Marvin J. Peters.

The ruling by Peters came despite a 1973 order issued by Chief Judge

John S. Boyle that supervision not be used in the disposition of drunken driving cases.

Sweeney also was ordered to take part in Lutheran General Hospital's alcoholic rehabilitation program.

Sweeney's attorneys were State Rep. Eugene Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, and his law partner, John Clarke.

The complaint by the Judicial Inquiry Board was filed Thursday with the Illinois Courts Commission. The commission can hold a hearing on the charge and has the power to suspend or remove Sweeney from the bench if he is convicted.

RICHARD T. DUNN, a Bloomington attorney and chairman of the judicial inquiry board, Thursday said that Sweeney will be served with the complaint and will then have 21 days to respond before a commission hearing is set.

Dunn said Sweeney could be relieved of his duties by Boyle while the matter is pending.

The judicial inquiry board's complaint charged Sweeney resisted arrest and interfered with police investigations of the incident.

Sweeney scuffled with arresting officers during the incident, The Herald disclosed, and refused to take breathalyzer tests in connection with the drunken driving charge.

He also was charged with resisting arrest, disobeying a police officer and driving in the wrong lane.

THE SUPERVISION sentence imposed by Peters came after 10 months of courtroom maneuvering by Sweeney and Schlickman, including efforts to move the case out of suburban court Dist. 3 and into Sweeney's own Dist. 1 in Chicago.

Sweeney also attempted to have suppressed statements he made to Schaumburg police that "he (Sweeney) is a lawyer and a judge and that he could affect the jobs and positions of the Schaumburg police," according to defense motions filed in the case.

The supervision finding enabled Sweeney to keep his driver's license, avoiding the mandatory one-year driving revocation required by Illinois law of those convicted of drunken driving.

The state judicial inquiry board was established by the 1970 state constitution to investigate misconduct by judges.

Le Titi De Paris swept by blaze; arson suspected

by STIRLING MORITA

Le Titi De Paris in Palatine Township, the second fashionable, French restaurant in the area gutted by fire in a month, was the apparent victim of arson early Thursday, fire officials said.

State fire marshals were called in to join the Long Grove Fire Protection District and Sheriff's police in an arson probe after a five-gallon gasoline can was found in front of the burning building, 2275 Rand Rd.

Another popular French restaurant, Le Francais, Wheeling, was destroyed July 18 after an electrical short circuit touched off a fire.

Long Grove fire officials said damage to Le Titi De Paris was estimated to be about $100,000. The fire was discovered about 4 a.m. by Sheriff's police, responding to an activated burglar alarm at the restaurant.

MEL TOWNER, chief engineer for the fire district, said when police arrived at the scene, the front of the one-story building was engulfed in flames. Long Grove fire units were dispatched, and firefighters could see the fire from their station, Towner said.

Towner said someone broke the window to the front dining area and apparently tossed gasoline into the building and set fire to it. Three Long Grove units were dispatched, and the fire was quickly extinguished. A Palatine unit assisted, and a Buffalo Grove fire crew stood by at the Long Grove station.

Paul Christian, Palatine, the restaurant owner, said he did not know who would want to set fire to his restaurant and that he had not received any threats.

Christian had established a high-quality reputation for his restaurant, which opened about three years ago.

As he swept wet debris from the kitchen area, Christian said he would rebuild the structure and continue to serve French cuisine.

Good weather, road conditions during weekend

Traveling through the Midwest should be relatively easy this weekend.

The Chicago Motor Club advises motorists to find alternate routes for the Stevenson Expressway, because of road repairs, and to watch for periodic tie-ups on the Tri-State Tollway while work continues between Dempster Street and Willow Road and south of the city to the Indiana state line.

Otherwise, most Illinois roads will be clear, with the exception of areas on I-55 where roadwork is continuing near Pontiac, Lincoln and Vandalia near St. Louis.

In Indiana, motorists should look for slight bottlenecks on I-65 around Indianapolis due to road work, and state police there advise that U. S. 30 in Dyer, on the Illinois-Indiana line, will be closed until sometime Saturday.

temperatures in the 90s in Illinois and Indiana, while readings in Wisconsin and Michigan should be in the high 80s.

Showers are possible, however, in northern Wisconsin and Michigan Saturday and Sunday, with temperatures turning cooler in that area toward the end of the weekend.

IN WISCONSIN, on I-94 between Portage and the Wisconsin Dells, traffic has been restricted to one lane in each direction, and motorists should watch out for bottlenecks late tonight and Sunday afternoon.

Michigan highways are clear with the possible exception of I-94 west of Jackson and Ann Arbor, where roadwork was reported.

The Iowa Highway Patrol has said highways in that state would be clear sailing all weekend.

Inflation refuses to go away

by United Press International

Government reports Thursday pictured a befuddled U.S. economy recovering from the worst recession since the 1930s but showing signs of a renewal of the runaway inflation that caused the slump in the first place.

There were indications of higher prices, the Agriculture Dept. raised its estimate of the 1975 increase in food prices to 9 per cent from 6 to 8 per cent; the president of Gulf Oil said domestic oil prices would rise

"rather quickly" if price controls were removed; and Jones & Laughlin said it planned to match price hikes of other steelmakers.

For the economy in general, these conclusions were apparent:

- Double-digit inflation returned in July, if only temporarily, after dropping to a low of 5 per cent in April, May and June. The Labor Dept.'s Consumer Price Index soared 1.2 per cent or 14.4 per cent on an adjusted annual basis, matching the 1973 and 1974 inflation level that was a major factor in bringing about the recession.

- In the Chicago area, the cost of living jumped 1.2 per cent in July, the largest monthly increase in 11 months. The increase helped boost July prices to a level of 8.3 per cent higher than July 1974, the Bureau of Labor statistics announced.

Prices last month were significantly higher for food — up 2.5 per cent over June — and for transportation, which increased 2.2 per cent.

The cost of medical care in the Chicago area also increased sharply, rising 1.5 per cent. Housing was up two-tenths of 1 per cent and health and recreation costs here rose nine-tenths of 1 per cent.

Prices of clothing dropped seven-tenths of 1 per cent.

- Americans still are being squeezed by rising prices and shrinking take-home pay. Labor said real (spendable) income declined 0.5 per cent.

Keeps children off train tracks

Fence up to block fatal shortcut

A fence has been installed to block a hazardous shortcut across the Chicago and North Western Ry. tracks in Palatine often used by children.

The Chicago and North Western Ry. paid $400 for the chain-link fence, which connects with two other existing fences in the dead-end corner of Washington and Oak streets.

The death of a 10-year-old Palatine boy in June prompted village and railway officials to block the hilly pathway, which leads to the tracks, to prohibit children from playing in the area.

The boy, Patrick McCarty, 301 N. Fremont St., was sitting with friends at the top of the pathway when he was struck by a passing train.

The village had barricaded the unguarded tracks with a snow fence until the 40-foot fence was installed this week.

Thomas Judge, a spokesman for the Chicago and North Western Ry., said the company is doing all it can to keep children off the tracks.

Train engineers notify company security teams or local police departments "as soon as they see children near the tracks," he said.

A Barrington youth also was struck and killed by an oncoming train in Arlington Heights this summer. His death is being investigated by local police.

Group threatens to sue village in water dispute

Residents of unincorporated Palatine Park Estates are threatening to sue the village of Palatine over a proposed utility rate hike and what they call "a forced hookup" with the village water system.

Homeowners' association officials said they will meet with an attorney Saturday to determine if they have "a good case against the village," said Herman Efflandt, 763 Stephen Dr.

Residents of the area are challenging the village's cost estimates for maintaining the L and K Utility Co., which Palatine owns, and the way in which a 9 per cent cost investment return on the utility has been computed.

RESIDENTS SAID they also are questioning why the subdivision was recently hooked up to the village's water system.

One of two shallow wells serving the area broke down several weeks ago. The subdivision was immediately connected with the village's water system.

The bad well is being capped and also will be connected with the Palatine system. The estimated $10,000 in improvements being made will be offset with a proposed $85 average annual utility rate hike which is about 30 per cent more than the unincorporated residents currently pay for water and sewer service.

"The connection was made so the village could force the annexation of our area," said Shirley Marchewka, 734 Stephen Dr.

"If there was something really wrong with our water, we would have known it by just turning on our taps. The village never notified us about a problem until they sent us letters saying there would be an increase in the rates. I think it's blackmail," she said.

PALATINE VILLAGE Pres. Wendell E. Jones said the village constantly monitors its own and the subdivision's water systems, and takes care of problems right away.

"There was sand going into their system; we took care of the problem because the village owns the utility, and those improvements are going to cost some money," Jones said.

"If someone wants to take the village to court on this, they can if they want to, but their chances of winning are nil. If they did win, we would put anything in there the court tells us to," he said.

The village has hired a bond consultant at the residents' expense to recommend a plan for paying off the cost of the utility company. Jones said he doesn't expect the homeowners to consider annexation to the village until the recommendation and additional figures on the utility are available in mid-September.

"WE HAVE SUCH sketchy figures now and I think discussion about all this is premature," Jones said.

Palatine Park residents said they will not participate in a petition drive next week, that includes unincorporated subdivisions north of Palatine, on annexing to the village.

"We want to know the breakdown of the cost to hook up with the village system and make the improvements before we decide to file a lawsuit," Efflandt said.

"Chances are, if you passed petitions in this area today on annexation, the people would definitely vote it down because they are mad and confused about the water situation out here," he said.

Jerry Efflandt said the homeowners' association does not support a resolution proposed by the village board earlier this week, providing conditions for the annexation of the area.

MRS. EFFLANDT said the conditions "are not specific enough and do not ensure that we will not have rate increases even if we become part of the village."

Village trustees have recommended that no increase in rates be made if the homeowners annex to the village. The village board purchased the L and K Utility Co. for $85,000 in 1973, hoping the homeowners would annex to the village.

The village is losing $5,800 annually on the utility and trustees have indicated that the purchase should now be treated as an investment of taxpayers' money with an expected 9 per cent return.

For resurfacing in north, west portions

$118,878 street pact to be let Monday

The Palatine Village Board Monday night is expected to award a $118,878 contract for the resurfacing of streets in northern and western portions of the village.

The contract will be awarded to the Leininger Mid-States Paving Co., the low bidder on the work. The village's administration, finance and legislation committee recommended the contract award earlier this week.

The company's bid on the work is less than the $148,790 in motor fuel tax funds available to the village this year for street maintenance.

The balance of the funds will be used for other street maintenance projects next year.

Robert Miller, public works director, said street resurfacing will begin next week, after the contract is awarded by the board, and will be completed this fall.

The streets being resurfaced are:

- Kenilworth Avenue from Quentin Road to Cedar Avenue.

- Glencoe Road from Quentin Road to Cedar Avenue.

- Cedar Avenue from Kenilworth Avenue to Palatine Road.

- Pine Street from Kenilworth Avenue to Salt Creek.

- Hickory Road from Kenilworth Avenue to Palatine Road.

More information from developers

Plan unit approves zoning revisions

The Palatine Plan Commission has approved revisions in the village's zoning ordinance which will require more detailed information from developers.

Ralph Deger, commission chairman, said the revisions apply specifically to planned developments which are different from residential or commercial subdivisions.

Planned developments generally are characterized by a mixture of land use, more usable open space, more flexible building design and the preservation of more natural land features.

Revisions in the ordinance require developers of these large projects to provide detailed information to receive approval of the project from the village, Deger said.

"The developer will have to be very specific with information on surveys, soil borings, photos, dimensions and every aspect of the project. Now, they are not required to present as much to the village for consideration," he said.

THE REVISIONS also require developers to appear before the plan commission with requests for changes in projects already approved by the village. Developers presently make such change requests to the village's zoning board of appeals, Deger said.

The village board must give final approval to the zoning ordinance revisions, but the vote is not expected for about six weeks. The village's zoning board of appeals will conduct a public hearing on the proposed revisions before they are considered by the village board, Deger said.

"The revisions will help clear up the confusion that the village has had in its past dealings with planned developments," Deger said.

THE VILLAGE'S zoning board of appeals admitted during a public hearing Tuesday night it was confused over the development of a commercial project, at Northwest Highway and Benton Street, which includes the new Palatine Public Library.

The village approved general plans for the seven-acre project without requiring detailed information on the bank and retail stores also proposed for construction.

The zoning board will subpoena the developer, Winn Davidson, to appear before the board to clarify how the remainder of the project will be developed.

Play honors Bicentennial, school's 100th

The nation's Bicentennial and the Palatine High School Centennial will be celebrated next month in the operetta "Betsy" written by David Reiser, vocal director at Palatine High.

The operetta will be performed at the school, 150 E. Wood St., Palatine, Sept. 18, 19 and 20. Tickets will go on sale about two weeks before the performance.

The operetta, based on the nation's beginning, is named for Betsy Ross.

Student Joan Brown plays Betsy; Jean Linsner, Betsy's sister; and Tim McGlynn, Betsy's husband, John Ross.

Student Frank McGee plays Joseph Asbury, a friend of Ross. Jan Lindgaard and Ben Siegler are Betsy's parents. Student Greg Jannusch will portray George Washington.

The play will be directed by Larry Peterson, social science department chairman, Reiser and Thomas Trimborn, instrumental director. Faculty member Carol Bentivegna will be technical director, and Mickey Williams will be choreographer. Student director is Mary Scollay.

The music was composed by Reiser. The script was written by professional playwright Jack Sharkey, a public relations official for Allstate Insurance.

Township may help pay for Oak Street upgrade

Palatine Township Highway Comm. Robert Bergman has offered to help the Palatine Park District pay for $40,000 in improvements on a street adjacent to a township park site.

Bergman said township road and bridge tax funds could be used to pay for half the necessary improvements on Oak Street.

Bergman has been insisting since late last year that the park district be responsible for completing the west side of Oak Street before it develops a five-acre park at Home Avenue and Oak Street.

Bergman recently asked county officials what could be done to prevent the park district from obtaining a building permit for the park until it agreed to make the street improvements.

"WILLIAM HARRIS of the county building and zoning department said the park district would be able to get a building permit for the new park if county requirements were met. He said the only alternative left for me would be to file a lawsuit against the park district," Bergman said.

"I would not file a lawsuit against the park district under any circumstances. It would cost the people of this township too much money and time. The only thing left to do is to offer the park district some financial assistance in making sure the improvements are made," he said.

Bergman has received a petition signed by 11 residents of Oak Street, who live adjacent to the proposed park, requesting that the west side of the street be completed.

The park board has said it does not have enough funds to pay for the street improvements. The board has contracted the Bergen Construction Co. to develop the park for $448,000 which includes a bathhouse, swimming pool and four lighted tennis courts. The park is being financed with tax revenues from the Palatine Rural Park District which merged with the Palatine Park District in January.

Park Board Pres. Robert Dellamaria said, speaking for himself, he could not see why the township doesn't pay for the cost of the total improvements.

"HE'S (BERGMAN) more than welcome to come to our board meeting next Tuesday to talk with us about it," Dellamaria said.

The park board has spent several thousand dollars to revise its plans for the park so that the elimination of a planned county street, that would bisect the park if completed, would not be necessary.

The Palatine Village Board said it would not recommend the elimination of the street to the county unless the park board agreed to make the street improvements.

Recycling center open Saturday

Members of Boy Scout Troop 281, of St. Thomas of Villanova School in Palatine, will staff the center.

The center usually only is open on the second and fourth Saturdays of each month when the center is staffed by a volunteer organization.

Banks toss dog biscuit to attract (Fi) dough

by LAURA SCHMALBACH

Three-year-old Buffy knows a nice bank when she sees one.

As the car pulls up, Buffy's nose is pressed against the window — eagerly awaiting the teller's friendly smile and the treat that comes back with it.

Buffy is the family poodle, and several local banks are catering to her (and her mistress' money) by handing out dog biscuits for the canines as well as lollipops for the kids.

A dog biscuit survey was met with uncontrollable laughter from some banks and dead seriousness from others, but almost all agreed that if they saw a need for the service, they would cheerfully comply.

THOSE BANKS THAT have started the service did so for various reasons — some noticed other drive-up windows catering to the canines and decided to get into the act, and others took the advice of dog-loving tellers who knew a selling point when they saw one.

The Arlington Heights Bank and Trust has been passing out dog biscuits for five years. The move came after a guard realized that "those dogs really came to depend on him for their treats," said Jeanne McGeehan, public relations officer.

"The dogs are just like the kids," she continued. "They expect their treat and they don't stop barking until the envelope comes back to the car with it inside."

Ms. McGeehan estimated the bank goes through a pound of biscuits a

TIMES MAY BE ROUGH but it's still a dog's world at several Northwest suburban banks.

Many drive-up windows already offer suckers for children, but now they're catering to the canines too — by handing out dog biscuits as well as lollipops.

NOT ALL BANKS are aware of Rover's pull in the area of family finances. An unidentified spokeswoman for Citizens Bank, Park Ridge, giggled loudly for 20 seconds before she was able to catch her breath and report, "we only give them to the dogs that drive up!"

"That's got to be the funniest thing I ever heard of," a woman laughed at the First National Bank of Mount Prospect. But not so funny to her boss — the bank has been dishing out week at each window, and said the only raised eyebrows have come from check out lines at local supermarkets.

"Naturally the dogs aren't going to deposit with us," she added, "but the people just love it!"

DOLING OUT DOG biscuits with $10's and $20's can be "really weird," said Kendra Wright, Des Plaines National Bank's officer in charge of drive-ups. Customer reactions have ranged from surprise at the start of the service five years ago to complete acceptance now, she said.

Judge faces state charge in drunken driving case

by TONI GINETTI
and AL MESSERSCHMIDT

The Illinois Judicial Inquiry Board has filed a complaint against an associate Circuit Court judge charged last year by Schaumburg police with drunken driving and resisting arrest.

Associate Judge Robert A. Sweeney of Barrington was charged by the board Thursday with misconduct in connection with an incident in March 1974 when he allegedly resisted and scuffled with Schaumburg police who stopped him for drunken driving.

The incident was disclosed July 29 by The Herald as part of a six-part series documenting the failure by local courts to enforce drunken driving laws.

The series "Justice and the Drunken Driver," told how Sweeney was acquitted of four charges in connection with the traffic stop incident following a two-car collision on Algonquin Road.

SWEENEY, assigned to the probate division of Circuit Court, was freed on a "technical plea of not guilty" Jan. 6, 1975 and was given a one-year supervision term by Associate Judge Marvin J. Peters.

The ruling by Peters came despite a 1973 order issued by Chief Judge

John S. Boyle that supervision not be used in the disposition of drunken driving cases.

Sweeney also was ordered to take part in Lutheran General Hospital's alcoholic rehabilitation program.

Sweeney's attorneys were State Rep. Eugene Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, and his law partner, John Clarke.

The complaint by the Judicial Inquiry Board was filed Thursday with the Illinois Courts Commission. The commission can hold a hearing on the charge and has the power to suspend or remove Sweeney from the bench if he is convicted.

RICHARD T. DUNN, a Bloomington attorney and chairman of the judicial inquiry board, Thursday said that Sweeney will be served with the complaint and will then have 21 days to respond before a commission hearing is set.

Dunn said Sweeney could be relieved of his duties by Boyle while the matter is pending.

The judicial inquiry board's complaint charged Sweeney resisted arrest and interfered with police investigations of the incident.

Sweeney scuffled with arresting officers during the incident, The Herald disclosed, and refused to take breathalyzer tests in connection with the drunken driving charge.

He also was charged with resisting arrest, disobeying a police officer and driving in the wrong lane.

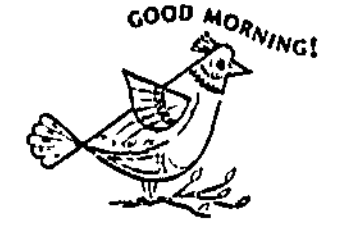

THE SUPERVISION sentence imposed by Peters came after 10 months of courtroom maneuvering by Sweeney and Schlickman, including efforts to move the case out of suburban court Dist. 3 and into Sweeney's own Dist. 1 in Chicago.

Sweeney also attempted to have suppressed statements he made to Schaumburg police that "he (Sweeney) is a lawyer and a judge and that he could affect the jobs and positions of the Schaumburg police," according to defense motions filed in the case.

The supervision finding enabled Sweeney to keep his driver's license, avoiding the mandatory one-year driving revocation required by Illinois law of those convicted of drunken driving.

The state judicial inquiry board was established by the 1970 state constitution to investigate misconduct by judges.

Trustee favors utility purchase

by LYNN ASINOF

Trustee Theodore J. Wattenberg Thursday said he favors purchase of the Citizens Utilities Co. water and sewer lines in the northeast section of Mount Prospect, despite major repairs needed to bring the system up to village standards.

"I see no reason why we should not buy it," Wattenberg said after reviewing a report on the system at a public works committee meeting. "Whether the price is right is another question. It's a matter of the dollar."

Wattenberg said, however, financial aspects of the purchase will be considered at the September meeting of the finance committee. "It's up to the finance committee as I see it," he said.

The report on the system, prepared jointly by the director of public works and the village engineer, called for an estimated $2 million in repairs to the system "to upgrade Citizens' water system to be comparable to Mount Prospect's water system."

THESE COSTS include the need for an additional 5-million gallons of water storage space, a new well and pumping station, five miles of water mains, new central controls and upgraded hydrants and valves.

In addition, the report estimates it would cost another $150,000 to televiso

WORKMEN AT the New Mount Prospect State Bank building are putting the finishing touches on landscaping projects. The parking lot also is being installed, and the bank is scheduled to open in early September.

Township mulls police tax district

Wheeling Township officials will consider establishing a special police protection taxing district for unincorporated areas, including Prospect Heights, at a special meeting Sept. 2.

Residents of the Prospect Heights area, through the Prospect Heights Improvement Assn. (PHIA), have requested formation of the special district because of increased vandalism, malicious mischief and burglaries.

The PHIA has said Sheriff's Police patrols in the area are "inadequate," and police officials have responded they lack sufficient funds to assign more than two squad cars to the area.

Richard Wolf, PHIA president, said it will cost an estimated $122,000 annually to hire two off-duty Sheriff's policemen to patrol the area on a 24-hour daily basis. Wolf said the annual cost to homeowners in the special tax district would be about $24 per $10,000 assessed valuation.

A SURVEY, requesting unincorporated area residents' opinions about a special taxing district to pay for added police protection, was published recently in local newspapers and the Prospect Heights Town Bulletin.

"We have received more than 200 replies to our special survey so far, with the returns running three to one in favor of the special taxing district," Wolf said.

Township Auditor William Reid said the special 7:30 p.m. Sept. 2 meeting will be before the regularly scheduled township board meeting.

"We have a Sept. 9 deadline for filing our budget ordinance," he said.

Reid stressed the special taxing district, if created, would apply to all unincorporated areas in the township, not just Prospect Heights. "The opinion of our attorney is it would have to be all of the unincorporated area," Reid said.

"ALL CITIZENS of the township will have an opportunity to present information at the special meeting," Reid said. He added the most the township could levy would be $100 per $10,000 assessed valuation.

Reid said about 13,000 residents of the total estimated 21,000 unincorporated township residents live in the area designated as Prospect Heights.

Good weather, road conditions during weekend

Traveling through the Midwest should be relatively easy this weekend.

The Chicago Motor Club advises motorists to find alternate routes for the Stevenson Expressway, because of road repairs, and to watch for periodic tie-ups on the Tri-State Tollway while work continues between Dempster Street and Willow Road and south of the city to the Indiana state line.

Otherwise, most Illinois roads will be clear, with the exception of areas on I-55 where roadwork is continuing near Pontiac, Lincoln and Vandalia near St. Louis.

In Indiana, motorists should look for slight bottlenecks on I-65 around Indianapolis due to road work, and state police there advise that U. S. 30 in Dyer, on the Illinois-Indiana line, will be closed until sometime Saturday.

IN WISCONSIN, on I-94 between Portage and the Wisconsin Dells, traffic has been restricted to one lane in each direction, and motorists should watch out for bottlenecks late tonight and Sunday afternoon.

Michigan highways are clear with the possible exception of I-94 west of Jackson and Ann Arbor, where roadwork was reported.

The Iowa Highway Patrol has said highways in that state would be clear sailing all weekend.

The extended outlook for the five-state region through Sunday calls for temperatures in the 90s in Illinois and Indiana, while readings in Wisconsin and Michigan should be in the high 80s.

Showers are possible, however, in northern Wisconsin and Michigan Saturday and Sunday, with temperatures turning cooler in that area toward the end of the weekend.

Teichert urges county buy golf course

Mount Prospect Mayor Robert D. Teichert said he plans to write to the County Board and the Forest Preserve District to urge the district's purchase of the 200-acre Rob Roy Golf Course.

Teichert said his letter merely will restate the board's desire to "try and save open space and particularly to save Rob Roy as a golf course." He said the village in the past has called for public purchase of the property, but could not locate a buyer with $10 million.

"Everyone, except for the payment of money, is certainly in favor of saving open space," he said. "The only question is who pays the money."

A citizens' advisory committee has expressed its disapproval of the forest preserve district purchase of Rob Roy, citing high acquisition costs and the close proximity to other golf courses.

THE 200-ACRE course is valued at $50,000 an acre, or a total of $10 million. It is only 9 miles from the Highland Woods Golf Course, which will open soon near Schaumburg and Hoffman Estates.

Inflation refuses to go away

by United Press International

Government reports Thursday pictured a befuddled U.S. economy recovering from the worst recession since the 1930s but showing signs of a renewal of the runaway inflation that caused the slump in the first place.

There were indications of higher prices, the Agriculture Dept. raised its estimate of the 1975 increase in food prices to 9 per cent from 6 to 8 per cent; the president of Gulf Oil said domestic oil prices would rise

"rather quickly" if price controls were removed; and Jones & Laughlin said it planned to match price hikes of other steelmakers.

For the economy in general, these conclusions were apparent:

- Double-digit inflation returned in July, if only temporarily, after dropping to a low of 5 per cent in April, May and June. The Labor Dept.'s Consumer Price Index soared 1.2 per cent or 14.4 per cent on an adjusted annual basis, matching the 1973 and 1974 inflation level that was a major factor in brining about the recession.

- In the Chicago area, the cost of living jumped 1.2 per cent in July, the largest monthly increase in 11 months. The increase helped boost July prices to a level of 8.3 per cent higher than July 1974, the Bureau of Labor statistics announced.
- Prices last month were significantly higher for food — up 2.5 per cent over June — and for transportation, which increased 2.2 per cent.

The cost of medical care in the Chicago area also increased sharply, rising 1.5 per cent. Housing was up two-tenths of 1 per cent and health and recreation costs here rose nine-tenths of 1 per cent.

Prices of clothing dropped seven-tenths of 1 per cent.

- Americans still are being squeezed by rising prices and shrinking take-home pay. Labor said real (spendable) income declined 0.5 per cent.

Controlers rap security at Palwaukee Airport

Air traffic controllers at Palwaukee Airport have joined in the criticism of the airport's lack of security, which allows pedestrian and vehicle traffic in aircraft movement areas.

Robert Mark, president of Local 363 of the Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization, said air traffic controllers at Palwaukee maintain records of incidents in which cars and pedestrians stray onto runways or taxiways. From April through July, 551 such incidents were recorded, Mark said.

"It's only a matter of time before we have an accident," Mark said Thursday. "We have been promised action, but we are still waiting for it to come."

PATCO's criticism of safety measures at the airport came in response to a report issued last month by the Aviation Safety Institute (ASI) which cited the same security problems.

"Palwaukee has very poor airport security procedures," the ASI report said. "Aircraft have had close calls on numerous occasions."

THE OHIO-BASED Institute, an independent safety research organization, cited examples of trucks, motorcycles, cars and small children crossing the airplane movement areas at Palwaukee. One example said a small girl was walking across an active runway with a bicycle which had a flat tire.

Mark said the ASI report was prompted by complaints from air traffic controllers at Palwaukee, who send in regular situation reports to the institute on discrepancies regarding equipment, procedures or facilities.

Mark, who represents the airport's 10 air traffic controllers, said he has met with Charles Priester, airport manager, and Federal Aviation Administration officials to discuss the problem. PATCO also has sent Priester and the FAA documentation of the group's charges of lack of security.

PATCO has suggested the airport at least install warning signs to stop persons from entering areas where planes land, take-off or taxi, Mark said. He added fencing the area is a good idea, but if the cost is prohibitive, as Priester contends, sign placement is the minimum that should be done.

Mark said PATCO's suggestions seem to have fallen on deaf ears. "All we hear are replies that something will be done, but we've been hearing that for the past five months," he said.

MARK SAID PRIESTER and the FAA have denied receiving PATCO reports on the incidents of non-aircraft traffic at the airport.

Priester could not be reached for comment Thursday, but at the time the ASI report was issued, Priester challenged the data as giving a distorted picture.

Village board wrapup

Group to study law for boats, campers

The Mount Prospect Village Board has approved a resolution establishing an ad-hoc committee to study possible local regulation of vehicles such as campers, trailers and boats.

The resolution stems from a controversy generated by residents for, and against regulations on parking of those types of vehicles in residential areas.

Lengthy hearings before the village's judiciary committee have been conducted on the subject.

At the meeting, Mayor Robert Telchert set a deadline of Jan. 1, 1976, for the panel to report back to the village board with a recommendation.

Official appointment of the committee will take place at an upcoming village board meeting, Telchert said.

2-hour parking on Elmhurst

Parking in the 200 block of south Elmhurst Road will be restricted to two hours between 7 a.m. and 6 p.m. following board approval of a police and fire commission recommendation.

Residents had complained commuters were taking up all the parking space and blocking their driveways.

Previously, there had been no parking restrictions on the block.

Annexation of 1.5 acres set

Officials voted to annex 1.5 acres to the village at the southeast corner of Lincoln Street and Busse Road. The action stems from the request of a property owner who proposed the annexation so he could receive village water and sewer services.

TIMES MAY BE ROUGH but it's still a dog's world at several Northwest suburban banks. Many drive-up windows already offer suckers for children, but now they're catering to the canines too — by handing out dog biscuits as well as lollipops.

Family dogs banking on business

by LAURA SCHMALBACH

Three-year-old Buffy knows a nice bank when she sees one.

As the car pulls up, Buffy's nose is pressed against the window — eagerly awaiting the teller's friendly smile and the treat that comes back with it.

Buffy is the family poodle, and several local banks are catering to her (and her mistress' money) by handing out dog biscuits for the canines as well as lollipops for the kids.

A dog biscuit survey was met with uncontrollable laughter from some banks and dead seriousness from others, but almost all agreed that if they saw a need for the service, they would cheerfully comply.

THOSE BANKS THAT have started the service did so for various reasons

by JUDY JOBBITT

Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 will be analyzed by an outside firm to get suggestions for improving its management structure.

The board of education approved hiring Peter Warner Associates to conduct a study of the district's management which will cost $2,300 to $2,500. The firm conducted the recent management study of the Northwest Education Cooperative and Northwest Suburban Special Education Organization.

"I think it will make us a lot more efficient," Supt. Roger Bardwell said. "A new administration means new relationships need to be developed."

Bardwell, appointed superintendent in June, said the study was discussed when he was being considered for the position last spring.

He said it is difficult for "those inside to see all the problems" and that he wants to develop the proper "linkages between the board, the superintendent and the principals."

He said the study should save the district money over time because of improvements that should result from the study.

PETER WARNER AND Fredric Genck, who will conduct the study, will first meet with the district's personnel and board members and outline the current management structure. Nine management areas will be detailed and recommendations made for improving these areas.

A seminar for the school board will be held Sept. 13 to outline the proposed management methods for the district. A final report will be presented to the district after the seminar.

Bardwell has said he favors a decentralized management approach which would give individual schools more autonomy.

Former Supt. James Ervitt, who was ousted last year from the superintendent's position, held tight reins over the individual schools. Bardwell has said he thinks schools should reflect the principal and community rather than the central administration.

Teichert asks county to buy golf course man Estates.

Trustee Michael H. Minton has asked the village board to endorse the purchase. He said such action might be an effective method of fighting development of the golf course.

Teichert, however, said he did not think a board vote on the matter was necessary. He said he would merely write a letter speaking for the village board, noting more formal action would delay communication with the county.

Kenroy Inc. has proposed a 2,350-unit apartment complex for the golf course, Euclid Avenue east of Wheeling Road. Mount Prospect turned down Kenroy's bid for zoning and annexation for the project, and the developer has discussed seeking county zoning.

The project is at a stalemate, with developers waiting for controversy to subside. Kenroy has indicated if the property is developed, half the land could be preserved if the River Trails Park District could find money to purchase the course.

Police seek suspect in attempted rape

Mount Prospect police are looking for a man wanted in the attempted rape of a 16-year-old local girl late Tuesday.

The incident occurred at about 11 p.m. in back of the Lions Park building, 411 S. Maple St., police said.

by STIRLING MORITA

Le Titi De Paris in Palatine Township, the second fashionable, French restaurant in the area gutted by fire in a month, was the apparent victim of arson early Thursday, fire officials said.

State fire marshals were called in to join the Long Grove Fire Protection District and Sheriff's police in an arson probe after a five-gallon gasoline can was found in front of the burning building, 2275 Rand Rd.

Another popular French restaurant, Le Francois, Wheeling, was destroyed July 18 after an electrical short circuit touched off a fire.

Long Grove fire officials said damage to Le Titi De Paris was estimated to be about $100,000. The fire was discovered about 4 a.m. by Sheriff's police, responding to an activated burglar alarm at the restaurant.

MEL TOWNER, chief engineer for the fire district, said when police arrived at the scene, the front of the one-story building was engulfed in flames. Long Grove fire units were dispatched, and firefighters could see the fire from their station, Towner said.

Towner said someone broke the window to the front dining area and apparently tossed gasoline into the building and set fire to it. Three Long Grove units were dispatched, and the fire was quickly extinguished. A Palatine unit assisted, and a Buffalo Grove fire crew stood by at the Long Grove station.

Paul Christian, Palatine, the restaurant owner, said he did not know who would want to set fire to his restaurant and that he had not received any threats.

Christian had established a high-quality reputation for his restaurant, which opened about three years ago.

As he swept wet debris from the kitchen area, Christian said he would rebuild the structure and continue to serve French cuisine.

Trailer destroyed by fire at track

A trailer used for selling horse equipment and medication was destroyed by fire Thursday night about 7:15 in the backstretch area of Arlington Park Race Track.

Fire officials estimated damage to contents and the trailer may rise to $40,000. The trailer is owned by a private enterprise. The cause of the blaze is under investigation.
